The Rev. Dr. S. Parkes Cadman, president of the Federated Churches of Christ in America, and noted radio preacher, delivered the installation sermon from the text: "How can we sing the songs of Zion in a strange land?" —Psalms, 137-4. He said in part:

"Your church is a part of the universal history of our common faith. No preacher is worth his salt who cannot challenge the time in which he lives, and if it needs be take it by the throat and shake the life out of it. Our times are not things that control us unless we so will it. The control of the times, however, depends upon the minister's fellowship with the time, and its realities, and there has seldom been a day when this lesson needed enforcement more than at the present hour.

"Within the past one hundred years, fourteen of the twenty greatest discoveries have been made by the allocation of eminent authority. Within that same period of time all barriers of a material sort has been broken down. The rush of modern life for you young people, as well as for your elders, is now so great that you have no time to possess your own soul.

"No people has been blessed more than those of the United States, so far as history is concerned. It is our business to show to men and women of every church and fellowship the great religious opportunity of giving to life its expression in sacrificial service.

"We have come to the point where there is not a great poet in the world at the pres at time—or if we have, he is too modest to reveal himself. We have no great statesmen now, except in the United States.

"No minister can preach at other times as he will preach when his heart is bleeding. No poet can sing as he will sing when he himself has felt the prick of desperate circumstances.

"I can pledge, if you are faithful to this brother and he to you, there will be that responsibility in this church of yours, that will make it henceforth a magnet, and all who come to it shall be nourished and blessed by it. This minister shall witness this testimony, and may the spirit of the Living God grant this unto this people. Amen."

Friday evening, Nov. 19, Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Karnes were very pleasantly surprised by a number of friends at their new home, 137 N. Roys Ave. Progressive uchre was enjoyed throughout the evening, followed by music and dancing, after which dainty refreshments were served. Those present were: Mr. and Mrs. Harley Postle, Mr. and Mrs. Ade Hurl, Mr. and Mrs. B. D. Postle, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Gossman, Mr. and Mrs. Emil Postle, Mr. and Mrs. Carl Miller, Mrs. Hazel Long, Misses Mildred and Lucille Miller, Misses Catherine, Marjory and Mary Emily Postle; Mr. James Reed and James Neil Ritchie. Prizes were awarded Mrs. B. D. Postle and Mr. Ade Hurl.

Hit By Auto Arm Is Broken

William Anderson, Camp Chase, suffered a fractured right arm, Saturday night, when he was struck by an unknown autoist who failed to stop, while he was walking in Hague avenue, one mile north of Broad street.

School Children Enjoy Four Days' Vacation

School children are thankful for a great many things, but probably the outstanding thing they are thankful for this week is that they have a four-day vacation.

These few days may be spent in various ways. Shows and visits will be leading entertaining features and the thought of school, teacher and lessons will be out of their minds until Monday morning when the old routine starts again.

University students will begin leaving Wednesday evening for a visit "back home."

New Apartment on Sullivant Avenue

Excavation was begun Monday on the lot at 2262-66 Sullivant Ave., for a new apartment house. The building will be two stories high, and when finished will have five complete apartments. It is being built by John Harley.

Mr. C. L. Chafee of 2069 Floral Ave., who is supervising engineer for the Snook-Hillhouse & Co., consulting engineers, 40 W. Gay St., left at the end of the week for Tampa Fla. This makes Mr. Chafee's third trip to the Peninsular State since May. The Snook-Hillhouse & Co. are active in several large engineering projects there.

MARKET HOUSE IS REMODELED

Into Recreation Hall and Gymnasium—Assembly Hall on Second Floor.

The West Side is very fortunate in being the only end of town to sport two recreation centers, Glenwood Shelter House and the new West Market Hall.

The West Market Hall has been remodeled and a new gym built on the south side of the building which is large enough for many winter activities. It is equipped with showers both for boys and girls, and has a large assembly hall on the second floor with a stage. With its new coat of stucco it presents a very picturesque appearance of which the West Side should be very proud.

Mrs. E. L. Collatine of 240 N. Hague Ave., entertained a number of friends on Saturday evening, Nov 7th., honoring her mother, Mrs. A. V. Porter of 221 North Burgess Ave., the occasion being Mrs. Porter's birthday, who was presented with a number of beautiful gifts. A dainty buffet lunch was served by the hostess. Those present were: Mr. and Mrs. A. V. Porter and family, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Bader, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Blum, Mr. and Mrs. Ed Hibbler, Mr. and Mrs. Jacob Blum, Mr. and Mrs. John Miller, Mr. and Mrs. George Blum and daughter, Mrs. Lena Trott, Mr. Sam Trott, Miss Edith Trott, Mrs. Anna Kimmel, Mr. Philip Kimmel, Miss Frieda Kimmel, Miss Bernadine Holmes, Mr. and Mrs. Ray Brown.

THE GREAT RUBY OF RUSSIA

The "great ruby of Russia," pride of the crowned heads for centuries, once a treasured possession of Catherine the Great and considered one of the most valuable of the Russian crown jewels, is now declared by a Russian scientist to be merely a large rubellite and far from precious.

The bogus character of this long famed jewel is disclosed by Professor Gregor Aminoff, head of the mineralogical department of the Swedish museum.

His statement is based on a report published in the journal of the Russian Academy of Science, in which a Russian authority writes about it as follows:

"It was, as a matter of fact, a light red tourmaline (not Burma rubellite) —genuine rubies are always dark red, weighing 250 carats, of irregular shape and representing nothing exceptional either as to size or quality."

This ends the appeal of one of the most noted pieces of jewelry that have figured in Swedish-Russian history.

Originally, the Swedish crown obtained it as war booty at Prague, its earlier history being shrouded in mystery, and Queen Christiana, the spendthrift daughter of a Gustav Adolphus, once "hocked" it for ready cash at Antwerp, where it was later redeemed by the Swedish government.

It was in the summer of 1777 while visiting Catherine the Great in St. Petersburg (now Leningrad) that the Swedish king, Gustavus III, had it removed illegally from the Swedish collection in order to bestow it on the empress in return for similar favors. Since then there have been many proposals to have it redeemed once more by the Swedish authorities, but it is still kept in the Russian collection and now the Swedish interest has cooled off.

INOCULATE ICEBERGS

The inoculations of icebergs with thermit, a mixture of aluminum and iron oxide, to disrupt or dissolve them, is the new plan of Professor H. T. Barnes, of McGill University. Last spring he tried the plan on a perilous ice jam in the Allegheny River, and the results were highly successful. Recently Professor Barnes was in Newfoundland and tested his thermit process in northern waters. A press dispatch said, "Three icebergs which were treated by this process disrupted speedily, cracking and disintegrating in a manner resembling Vesuvius." Already the dangers of icebergs to navigation has been lessened by the efforts of the American Coast Guards, who watch for the icebergs, and by wireless notify vessels of a berg's position and probable course. This patrol is carried on by the United States, acting as the executive for eleven countries in association.

USEFUL HOUSEHOLD HINTS

NUT LOAF CAKE

1¼ cupfuls flour, 1 teaspoonful desired extract, ¾ cupful sugar, ½ teaspoonful salt, 6 tablespoonfuls shortening, ½ cupful milk, 3 eggs, 2½ teaspoonfuls baking powder, 1 cup coarsely chopped nut meats.

SOUR CREAM CAKE

Cream together ½ cup margarine and 1 cup sugar; add ½ cup molasses and 2 eggs well beaten; sift together 1 teaspoonful cinnamon, ¼ teaspoonful salt, 1 teaspoonful nutmeg, 1½ teaspoonful soda, 2 cups pastry flour, reserving sufficient flour for dusting the raisins; add this alternately with 1 cup sour cream to the mixture. Chop ¾ cup nut meats and ¾ cup raisins fine, dust with flour and add. Beat well, pour into a large loaf-pan, and bake at 350 degrees Fahrenheit for about 45 minutes.

PRUNE CREAM PIE

Cook ½ lb. prunes with as little water as possible, using 3 tablespoonfuls molasses to sweeten. Make syrup of ½ cup sugar and ½ cup prune juice. Add ¾ cup molasses, prunes and 2-3 cup grated cocoanut. Cook 10 minutes. Remove from fire and add ½ cup butter, 4 egg yolks beaten, ¼ cup orange marmalade or candied orange peel and fill pie. Bake 25-30 minutes. Add meringue made with two egg whites and four tablespoons of confectioner's sugar.

ORANGE CAKE

Mix together 1 cup molasses, ½ cup shortening, 2 eggs, ½ cup lukewarm water or milk, 1 orange juice and grated rind); then add 2 cups flour, ½ cup whole wheat flour, 1 teaspoonful soda, 1 teaspoonful ginger, ½ teaspoonful allspice which have been sifted together. Mix well and pour into shallow pan. Bake for 35 minutes in a moderate oven.

Orange Icing—Grate the rind of one orange, let it stand for 15 minutes in ½ teaspoonful lemon juice and 1 tablespoonful orange juice. Strain and add gradually to the slightly beaten yolk of one egg. Stir in confectioner's sugar until of right consistency to spread.

BAKED HAM WITH POTATOES

One and one-half pound slice of ham, 4 medium-sized potatoes, 2 cups milk.

Wipe a slice of ham, cut off the outside edge of fat and cut the ham in pieces for serving. Put in oiled baking dish. Pare potatoes, cut in very thin slices and place on top of the ham. Pour the milk over the potatoes, cover and bake in moderate over or at 350 degrees F. for 1½ hours. There should be some ham left for next day.

Say It With Flowers Worth Millions

Advertisa has been declared the tenth muse. This shows that advertising holds a place in art as well as commerce.

Men have spent their lives trying to write. Oftimes the results are total failures while others have earned merely their bread and butter.

On the other hand we are able to refer to four words worth millions of dollars. In August the Society of American Florists and Ornamental Horticulturists presented its annual gold medal to Major P. F. O'Keefe for his services to the industry in originating the slogan: "Say It With Flowers."

Florist experts declare that this phrase was a large factor in the national growth of the flower business, which doubled between 1921 and 1924, and increased a fourth again the following yaer.

It pays to advertise.

Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Harlow gave a surprise party, Friday evening, Nov. 14, at their home, 133 S. Harris Ave., honoring their son, Emerson's nineteenth birthday.

The evening was very pleasantly spent in playing games and a good time was enjoyed by all. Many useful presents were received by Emerson. The hostess served a delightful luncheon of pumpkin pie, doughnuts and cider.

The following guests were present: Bertha Anderson, Wells Anderson, Lloyd Anderson, Grace King, Raymond King, Robert King, Harold Renner, all of Hilliards, Ohio; Fern Culp, Flora Haueisen, Lillian Haueisen, Evelyn Leffel, Mildred Lane, Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Bleuhm, Mr. and Mrs. Blennis Harbow and daughter La Verne, and Emerson Harlow of Columbus; Virginia Stroenider and Fauntelle Strider of Sunbury, Ohio, and the host and hostess. At a late hour the guests departed wishing Emerson many more happy birthdays.

"I just stopped in to tell you," began the man at the complaint desk of the gas company, "that my gas stove blew up yesterday."

"Tell your troubles to a plumber," growled the surly clerk. "That's no fault of ours. You got no kick here."

"Oh, I'm not kicking," replied the customer cheerfully, as he opened the door. "Only I though I'd tell you that your new coin-in-the-slot meter backfired at the same time, and I haven't been doing anything but pick up silver quarters all over the cellar ever since. Good-day."—Pathfinder.

After All
The True Comparison Must Be Tone

But—

The most attractive cabinet would soon become very unattractive if the tone of the radio instrument was not pleasing to the ear.

In justice to yourself, let me set one up in your home. Tune it yourself. Test it for distance, ease of tuning, and—tone. It will talk for itself. You will also want to know about Ozarka Service.

Phone or write me when a demonstration will be most convenient.

LECTURE AT ST. PAUL'S

Sunday evening, Dec. 5th at 7:30 p. m. there will be a Musical Illustrated Lecture on the Holy City and the life of Christ at St. Paul's United Evangelical Church, 22 S. Warren Ave. This lecture is under the direction of Mr. T. Willard Birmingham, vocal instructor at Capital College of Music. Mr. Birmingham is also the instructor of Fine Arts at the Highland Avenue Junior High School.

Twelve beautiful pictures representing the Holy City are shown. It commences with a tenor solo on the Holy City, and the pictures "Old Jerusalem," "The Angels Singing," "The Lonely Cross," "The Gates Open Wide," "The New Jerusalem," etc., etc., are shown. "The Holy City" is sung by Mr. Meacham, whose beautiful voice and soulful singing cannot fail to leave a lasting impression.

"The Life of Christ," is shown in 28 beautiful slides. These pictures begin with the annunciation and go through the leading events of the life of Christ up to and including the resurrection. The soloists for these pictures are: Mr. Holcomb, Mr. Meacham, Mr. Staunk, Miss Poulson, Mrs. Holcomb, and Henry Schultz. In all it is a very beautiful musical illustrated lecture, and one that cannot be missed by any one.

The full chorus choir of the church will assist in the singing, and Mr. James Nitschke will be the reader. The public is cordially invited to this lecture.

Y. W. C. A. MEMBERS ORGANIZE CLUB

Business girls of the Y. W. C. A. who were former High School Girl Reserves are organizing a new club, the purpose of which is to study the jobs held by members and determine methods by which high school curricula may be improved to aid women in industry.

An industrial service committee, composed of women employes of the Hercules Paper Box Co. and the Federal Glass Co., is also being organized by the business girls' department of the Y. W. Mrs. Fay Corder heads this group. Mrs. Rose Gillian, Mrs. M. Reese and Edith Blizzard are other officers.

Mrs. Ethel Fishbaugh, worthy matron, and Mrs. Olive D. Williams, worthy matron-elect of Robert Morris Chapter O. E. S., shared honors at a turkey dinner Friday evening, Nov. 26, at the Charmaniel hotel with Areme club No. 7 as hostess. Mrs. Fishbaugh was presented with a dozen butter spreaders and Mrs. Williams received a visitors' roster to be used during her term in office.

Small Fire Loss at Roys Ave. Home

A loss of $100 was estimated as the result of fire in the new house of Lewis Buck, 575 S. Roys Ave., early Sunday morning.

Firemen were called out near one o'clock Sunday morning and found the inner walls in flames. After tearing the weather boarding from the side near the fireplace the flames were subdued.

The house was a new one under construction. It is believed a fire was left in the grate by carpenters who had been working there Saturday.

Mrs. Isabelle Burnside and daughters, Margaret, Eva and Estella, 92 N. Powell Ave., and Eugene Hall, 17th avenue spent Thanksgiving and the week-end at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Churton, Huntington, W. Va., returning home Sunday.

3 PEOPLE LOSE LIVES

Big Four Flyer Hits Machine at Georgesville Crossing.

Kenneth Fullen, 15 of 117 W. Park Ave., and a freshman in Central High School was killed instantly as was his aunt, Miss Stella Snyder, 39 of same address and Fred Bobo, 39 of Athens, Ohio, when the car they were driving was struck by the Big Four flyer No. 6 Sunday night at the Georgesville crossing.

Grover Snyder, brother of Miss Snyder and uncle of Fullen was riding in a car in front and had just passed beyond the railroad crossing and was looking to see if the car following would make it or not. To his surprise he saw the small coupe lifted from the tracks by the flyer speeding at 60 miles per hour.

All three were killed instantly and were brought to Columbus on the train that had proven fatal to them.

Monday marked the real beginning of the Christmas shopping season on the Hilltop. West Broad and Sullivant avenue merchants have expressed their opinions that the next three weeks will be very full.

The Hilltop merchants have prepared for a bigger Christmas than ever before. They are prepared in every way to accomodate the shoppers. The many novelty, hardware, drygoods and drug stores of West Broad and Sullivant avenue will be able to accomodate the crowds in downtown fashion.

A visit to the neighborhood stores will easily convince the Christmas shopper that downtown shopping is not necessary.

HIGHLAND 8A ACTIVITIES

All the 8A's of Highland Avenue School met in the portable, Thursday afternoon for an assembly meeting and Mr. Reighley gave a very worth while and interesting talk. He told them that the Sons of the American Revolution were giving a medal to the boy and girl who wrote the best essay on some subject in the preamble of the constitution. The qualities the children have to have before they can enter the contest were obedience, truthfulness, trustworthiness, loyalty, courtesy and promptness. The plan for carrying out the contest is to have the 8A English teachers select 20 pupils, 10 boys and 10 girls. From these, the pupils in the 8A will select five girls and five boys. These will be given the opportunity to write the essay in a school period and will be given the subject on which to write at that time.

Mr. Reighley also told of the standing between the different schools in attendance, and urged them all to try to bring Highland up to first place among the city schools in attendance. There is also a contest on among the different registration rooms as to scholarship and the number of pupils on the Honor Roll each month. Mr. Reighley urged each room to try to have first place in this contest. Audrey Earl.

The 8A dramatic class of Highland School presented a one-act drama called "Susan's Finish" on Tuesday, November 15, at 2:15 and 3:00. It was played in the portable back of the school and the admission was five cents. Nine dollars was cleared and this is to be used for dramatic properties. It was very well presented and the 8A dramatic class will present another such performance in the near future. The next will be a Christmas play, and an original play written by a pupil.

BUSINESS MEN MEET TONIGHT

The next regular meeting of the Hilltop Business Men's association will be held this (Thursday) evening at the meeting room in the Rivoli theater building. Seven-thirty is the time of the meeting. The officers of the association are desirous of a full attendance and trust they will not be disappointed. So let's go—be there on time and help boost.

Mr. and Mrs. Russel J. Smith of 165 Binns Blvd., left last Thursday night for Ashland, Ill., where they will be the guests of Mr. Smith's parents and other relatives.

Mrs. Edward Sands was very pleasantly surprised by a number of her friends from Hilliards, Ohio. When she returned from church, Sunday, Nov. 14, she found that they had taken possession of her home and had prepared a fine chicken dinner, which she and her friends enjoyed very much. The occasion was the celebration of Mrs. Sands' birthday anniversary.

The following guests were present: Rev. Rickert of Rome, Ohio, Mrs. Jacob Weber, sr. and three daughters, Sons, Florence and Fanny, Sam Chris Weber, one grandson, Earl Foerster, Mr. and Mrs. Stanley Barrett and two sons, John and Reiff, Mr. and Mrs. Theo. Weber and daughter Edna, Mr. and Mrs. William Distelhorst and two sons Norman and Melvin, Mr. and Mrs. Oscar Pistelton.

HOGE MEMORIAL WELCOMES NEW PASTOR

Rev. Hutchison Comes to Hilltop Church From Shelby, Ohio, Pastorate.

The Rev. Harry C. Hutchison, who has recently been called to Hoge Memorial church, will begin his work Sunday, Dec. 5.

Rev. Hutchison was born in Belmont county, 48 years ago, and is a graduate of Franklin college and Western Theological seminary. There were three brothers in the Hutchinson family—all Presbyterian ministers. One brother, Rev. Orville J. Hutchison, is deceased, and Dr. Wm. J. Hutchinson is pastor of Boulevard church, Cleveland, Ohio.

Rev. Mr. Hutchison held a double pastorate at Youngwood and Mt. Pleasant, Pa., from 1909 until 1914. During this time a commodious church was built at Youngwood and the church became self supporting. During the two years following, spent at Aspinwall, Pa., the Men's club was organized and men's work increased especially. From 1914 until 1922 Rev. Hutchison was pastor of the Hazelwood church, Pittsburgh, Pa., and a fine new chuch was built, valued at $100,000. Three hundred and fifty new members were added to the membership on confession. During the last four years and a half the benevolences have tripled and membership increased nearly 50 per cent in the Shelby, Ohio, church. Rev. Hutchison is married and has one son.

Mr. and Mrs. John Cooley of 186 S. Oakley Ave., entertained Thanksgiving evening. A three course dinner was served by the hostess. Those present were: Rev. and Mrs. Ashburn, jr., Mr. and Mrs. Ed. MacFarlane and Lawyer Walter of Virginia.

B. Y. P. U. MEET ENDED SUNDAY

Sunday evening brought to a close what was pronounced by many visitors as the biggest and best B. Y. P. U. Convention ever held in Ohio. It was at the Hillcrest Baptist Church from Friday through Sunday, Nov. 26 to 28.

Over 350 persons were in attendance from all parts of Ohio. Columbus was well represented.

Many interesting and enlightening speakers were on the three day program. Discussions of various kinds were also led by different representatives.

It was announced that the next convention would be held at Akron during the Thanksgiving holidays of 1927.

The folowing officers were elected: Dale Gorman, Marion, president; William Rhodes, Toledo, vice president; Ruth Herbert, Cleveland, secretary; Gladys Drake, Piqua, treasurer; Judson Russell, Akron, promotion secretary; William Schuiemeiata, Norwood, transportation manager.

One of the outstanding speakers of the meeting was Rev. Frank G. Sayers of Hamilton. Dr. Sayres stated that the present day knocking of the so-called shiek and flapper was very detrimental to the church in bringing them to the good of the church.

Each county had its own yells and participated often.

The banquet on Saturday evening in the church basement was very delightful to all. The after-dinner speakers were seated at a table on which was was placed a large ship.

Harry E. Owings as toastmaster was named captain of the ship. Other speakers were: Fellowship, Mr. Edwin Phelps; Friendship, Mrs. Vernon Phillips; Leadership, Rev. Theodore Adams; Fellowship, Dr. George Lawson; Citizenship, Dr. C. W. Atwater.

The plan of the ship also carried out in small plate favors.

Hillcrest B. Y. P. U. officials were very well satisfied with the convention.

The Woman's Missionary Society of the Hilltop Church of Christ will hold its regular monthly meeting, Friday Dec. 3rd, 2:30 p. m. at the home of Mrs. P. J. Robinson, 260 N. Terrace St. Mrs. Freeland of the Wilson Avenue Church of Christ will speak. Visitors are welcome.

Tomorrow night at 8 o'clock the third recital of a series will be held at the Hilltop School of Music on Midland avenue. The following pupils will be presented: Katherine Hoover, Sarah Renner, Gale Simmons, Margaret Runkar, Marjorie Drumm, Judith Ann Garrison, Edna Huntly, Vera Wheeler Thelma Leathers, Betty Spangler, Howard Zimmer, Clayton Tullis, Gordon Wilcox, Walter Miller, Paul Kent and Frank Woodin.

Mrs. Clyde Rinehart and Mrs. Alse Roush have returned from Chicago where they have visited with their brother and his wife, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Link. Mr. Link is employed by the Pure Oil Co.

Mrs. Jake Link and children, Woodrow and Thelma and Miss Nellie Athen of Camp Chase spent Thanksgiving holidays in Lexington, Ky., visiting Mr. and Mrs. Harold Link and Mr. and Mrs. J. D. Williams.

MISSIONARY AT CHURCH OF CHRIST

Miss Gladys Arnold of Nanking, China, will speak at the Hilltop Church of Christ, Sunday evening, Dec. 5th. Miss Arnold was born in China of English missionary parents. After the death of her father in China, her mother brought her family to America to be educated. When Miss Arnold finished college she returned to China as a missionary, and is now home after several years service there. She will have an interesting story to tell. Every one will be welcome.

Junior Hesperian Club met Wednesday evening at the home of Miss Hazel Terry, 72 Eldon Ave. Miss Kathryn Spence read a paper on "The Government of Columbus."

Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Cramer, 472 Nashoba Ave., motored to Cincinnati Saturday and spent the week-end with Mr. and Mrs. Robert Colwell. On the return trip they visited with Mr. and Mrs. Jack Gurra, Dayton, formerly of Columbus.

On last Thursday evening, Mr. and Mrs. A. V. Rhinehart, 124 N. Warren Ave., had as their dinner guests, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Ewart of Valgosta, Ga. and Mr. Wade Rhinehart of Chicago.

Christmas Party

A Christmas party will be held by the Young Married People's Class of Glenwood M. E. Church, after the regular meeting, Tuesday Dec. 7, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Karle and Don Armbrust, 207 S. Warren Ave.

All new members and prospective members are invited to attend the meeting. A special effort will be made to get acquainted with each other. A very interesting and entertaining program has been planned for the party.

The meeting will open at 8:15 p. m.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Clarke entertained the Black Joker Club at their home, 298 Columbian Ave., last Friday evening. Mrs. L. E. Scott was assisting hostess. The club will be entertained Friday evening, Dec. 10, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Hershberger, 190 Brehl Ave.

REVIVAL AT U. B. CHURCH

The revival meetings at the U. B. church are growing in spiritual fervor and for the first week the attendance was away above the average, the capacity of the auditorium being taxed to the limit last Sunday.

The pastor of the church is conducting the service and is being assisted by Mr. and Mrs. Delbert Shaw, singing evangelists of Muncie, Ind. Mr. Shaw, besides being an evangelist, is a musical saw artist.

The meetings will continue until Dec. 19. Special services will feature next Sunday. At the morning worship hour, the pastor, Rev. C. Elmer Miller, will use as a subject, "A Church of Power," and in the evening, "Dr. Jekyl and Mr. Hyde.' Special nights will feature the coming week. Wednesday night will be family night, and special recognition will be given the largest family present. Friday night will be Sunday school night, and other special features will be announced from the pulpit and by bulletin.

Man and Baby Injured

Carl Strickler, 36, of 261 N. Wheatland Ave., was cut about the face Sunday when the auto he was driving crashed into a pole at North Fourth street viaduct.

Audrey, 7 months old baby of Mr. and Mrs. O. H. Holser, 263 S. Park Ave. was thrown to the pavement and was slightly bruised when the Holser car struck a pole.

A large golden brown turkey crowned the table at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Karle and Don Armbrust, 207 S. Warren Ave., Thursday Nov. 24. Seventeen were seated at the Thanksgiving dinner. The house was cleverly decorated in fall colors and pretty little turkeys. Those attending the party were: Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Armbrust, Mr. and Mrs. John Elsey, Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Downs, Miss Esther Downs, Miss Lona Elsey, Mr. Louis Armbrust, Mr. Douglas Armbrust, Miss June Armbrust, Miss Margaret Ann Armbrust, master Mel Armbrust and the hosts and hostesses.

BASKETBALL GAME FRIDAY

Highland Junior High to Meet Franklin at Glenwood Shelter House.

Highland's team have cleared the first barrier towards a successful season, namely the scholastic barrier. Not a single one of the regulars failed to make passing grades, so the work in preparation for the opening basketball game goes merrily on.

Friday afternoon at 4 o'clock the first Junior High school basketball game ever to be held on the West Side will get under way. One other game will be played at Glenwood and one at Central High gym with Starling. Patrons are urged to purchase tickets from the school, as the entire proceeds goes to Highland.

Practice games have been held with Crestview Junior High and Washington U. B. Church champions. The boys are improving steadily and will be prepared to give Franklin a hard tussel Friday. Bill Waits, the popular playground supervisor, will officiate the game.

Missing Son Located

Mr. and Mrs. Grover Winstead of 180 N. Starrie Ave., received word on Monday afternoon that their son, Charles, who has been missing for three months, had been located in Sanford, Florida.

A search has been conducted for the boy since he disappeared from home. He is 16 years old.

CAMP FIRE GIRLS MEET

Thanksgiving Program at Elks Home—Highland School has Three Groups.

All of the Camp Fire Girls in the city attended the Thanksgiving meeting which was held at the Elks home, Saturday, Nov. 20, at 3 o'clock. The program was as follows:

Fire Lighting Ceremony.
Roll Call.
Song—"Burn, Fire, Burn."
Wood Gatherers' Rank awarded to 14 girls.
Work song.
Comparison of trees, obeying the laws of the Camp Fire as the Camp Fire Girls do and also the necessity for trees was given by Mrs. Roland.
Pleas for the forest were given by different Camp Fire Girls.
Song—"Il Trovatore," four Camp Fire Girls.
"Trees," by Van Dyke, given by Carlis Davis.
Song—"Mammy Moon."

This concluded the program [illegible] was highly enjoyed by all.

Highland Avenue school is proud to say that it now has three Camp Fire groups.

The first group was started in November of last year by Miss Baker, a teacher in the school, whom the girls are proud to say is still the guardian. She was recently elected president of the Guardians' Association of the city. The name of this group is "Odakonta," which means Friendly on the Hilltop."

The evening was spent in games and music, after which refreshments were served. She was the recipient of many beautiful little gifts. Those present were: Misses Ruth Jones, Geraldine Ginsberg, Louise Woerner, Esther Skipper, Mildred Johnson, Anita Jones, Leora Hatton, Mildred Schumann, Cless Butler, Helen Douglas, Helen Hartley, Margaret Aschinger and the hostess.

Glenwood Activities

December will be Christmas month at Glenwood Church. The Sunday morning service will be built up around the general theme "Christ and the Changing World." Next Sunday morning the subject of the sermon by Dr. Barber will be "Moral End of Secular Matters."

The evening service will be the annual Cristmas carol service in which a number of groups will join in the singing of carols, under the direction of Mrs. Walton and Miss Cora Chase. This is a service that every year becomes more popular and draws larger crowds. Following the prelude of caroling Dr. Barber will speak on "A Gospel of Joy."

The Junior church meets Sunday mornings at 10:30 for all children between 7 and 11 years.

A kindergarten program that has been arranged for the children of six years and under. This program commences next Sunday morning at 10:30 in the school building next door to the church and will be under the direction of Mrs. C. O. Irwin, trained nurse, so that the very greatest care and attention to the children can be guaranteed. Parents are urged to bring their children and leave them in charge of Mrs. Irwin during the morning service.

A meeting of the Epworth League cabinet will be held Sunday at 5:30 p. m. in the church parlor.

The Epworth League will meet at 6:30 p. m. Miss Alice King will lead the meeting and will speak on the subject "A New Program for the Epworth League." After the topic there will be a discussion in which all leaguers are expected to join.

The Intermediate league which meets every Sunday night, shows large numbers, will meet at 6:30 p. m., under the direction of Miss Cleo Kramer.

182 HENS AVERAGE 217.5 EGGS

Franklin county's poultry demonstration farms completed their year's production records last week with an average of 147.7 eggs per hen.

Eleven flocks in the county bettered the Ohio state standard of production—160 eggs per hen, with the flock owned by Mrs. N. C. Farber, Worthington, leading with a production of 217.5 eggs per hen. This flock consists of 182 leghorns. Another outstanding flock is that of 744 leghorns owned by John Offenberg of Grove City, which produced 171.3 eggs per hen.

The average labor income on the 30 flock was $3.02 per hen.

Forty seven calendar co-operators of Franklin county completed their year. The highest production in this group was 206 eggs per hen by the flock of white leghorns owned by Roger Tussing. Another flock, 85 white leghorns owned by Noble Brothers of Westerville, produced 194.5 eggs per hen.

The extension points out that the demonstrators and co-operators, by keeping records have found that the factors affecting cash receipts depend upon the number of eggs received from each hen, the amount of culling done by the owner and the amount of young stock raised. The factors affecting feed cost are the amount of feed raised on the farm, the egg production and the time of purchasing feed.

WINDOW WATCHING

The air is rather chilly today so I'm observing the outside world from my window. A flake of snow falls occasionally. A lady has just passed, carrying a large black umbrella over her head. The only conclusion I can draw, since there is no sun, is that she thinks the sun may come out and melt the snow on its downward journey. She is a person who believes it true that the sun is shining behind every cloud.

An auto loaded with camping outfits just slowed down and I was able to see that they were from Michigan. Possibly they are on their way to Florida. No, I won't be so pessimistic as to say they may wish they had stayed home. A little Florida warmth might make this section of the country a little more pleasant now.

Coal must have gone down in price. That's the second load today that has been dumped in front of the house across the street.

The man three doors down the street just passed with his wife. Here in our neighborhood we know that a happier family cannot be found. Yet away from home this man makes believe by his witty remarks that he is a hen pecked husband. In most cases the husband never lets on to others, but home really does take lots of "orders" from his chief.

THE SPECTATOR.

ELEVENTH WARD REPUBLICAN CLUB

About seventy-five of the members were present and several new members joined the club. Several members of the Republican Glee club sang a few old time campaign songs, which added more life to the meeting. Several readings were given by Miss Hilda Brown and Miss Bernice Seewalt. Harold Grayshon played several selections on the banjo. The meeting was addressed by Mr. Amos Harting on the duties of citizenship which was enjoyed by all present. A light luncheon was served at the close of the meeting.

Te officers of the club decided there would be no meeting in December on account of the meeting night coming during the holidays. But they plan to hold another big meeting in January. The place and time will be announced in the Record later.

Christmas and the Walton Pride

by Lily Rutherford Morris

CHRISTMAS morning broke bright and clear, sending rays of glistening sunshine over a thick blanket of new-fallen snow with its ever wonderful message of joy and love. Nowhere in all the world, perhaps, was there a keener appreciation of Christmas cheer than in the heart of winsome Ina Walton, the affectionate and resourceful younger sister of Edith, just now recovering from a long and desperate illness.

Seventeen-year-old Ina, the only living relative of the sick girl, had gone down into the valley of death with her, suffering in mind and spirit as severely almost as did Edith, physically. But now Edith was so greatly improved as to be able to sit up in bed for breakfast. Near her stood a small table on which was a vase of red-and-white roses, and dishes of very tempting food. She took up the saucer containg a half-orange and looked in bewilderment at the well-buttered toast, eggs and coffee.

"I don't understand," she announced. "I simply can't see how you manage to get all this, Ina," with a significant gesture toward the table.

The sister simled sweetly. "Don't you know it is Christmas?" she naively asked by way of reply.

"Oh, yes, of course. I know it is Christmas, Ina, dear, but the season does not put anything into our pockets, you know. We can't afford it."

"But I'm quite sure we can. So don't you worry."

"You Were in a Critical State," Ina Went On.

Edith did not seem satisfied. Her expression of perplexity called for further explanation and Ina continued: "I've been a daring creature while you were ill. I'm quite sure you'll not approve, even though I did it for your sake; but it really doesn't matter, now that you are getting well. Nothing matters but just that. Oh, Edith! You are my precious Christmas gift."

"You've been so good to me, dear," quickly responded Edith, ignoring her sister's claim of daring, "but you have not satisfied my curiosity. How do you manage to spread such sumptuous meals?"

"By my boldness," Ina tossed her head coquettishly and strode defiantly across the room, as if to characterize her words. Then she paused and leaned on the footboard of the bed, smiling teasingly. "I knew you would think it very dreadful. It is true, nevertheless. I had to do it."

"Nonsense, Ina. You couldn't be bold, even if you tried. You don't know how."

"I was though, very bold, I guess. Listen. When I went to pay the gas bill last week, I just told the clerk at the window all about it—your illness, my giving up my position to be with you, our lack of funds and our very great need, and just as good as asked him for help."

"Yes, I did just that before I realized what I was saying. I was desperate that day. I was quite ready to ask aid of anyone to save your life, and the clerk at the gas office was the one I happened to strike at the psychological moment.

'You were in a critical state," Ina went on, "and something had to be done at once. The new druggist who recently bought out our old friend, does no credit business. He refused to let me have medicine without the money; you had to have medicine."

"But, Ina, think of a Walton begging! What you did was actual begging," and the proud girl's face registered her humiliation.

"But the flowers?" Edith questioned. "Why the flowers? You surely do not consider them a grave necessity."

For reply Ina walked around to the table on which the tall vase stood and buried her face in the roses. "But they are so lovely," she said, "and I just adore flowers!"

"So do I, dearie, but you should be more prudent with our scant means. Did they cost much?"

"Much?" Ina hesitated. "Yes, they really were very expensive."

Edith was growing extremely annoyed. "You extravagant little imp! How much?"

Ina made a grimace at her and drawled. "Oh—about three dollars."

"Three dollars!" echoed Edith with a frown. "Why, we didn't have more than three times three dollars the last time I saw you count the money."

"No," blandly acquiesced Ina.

Edith looked really troubled. "Ina, you are too provoking for anything this morning. I never knew you to behave quite so foolishly."

"Foolish, am I?" crooned Ina, diving for her sister and kissing her on both cheeks. "Am I foolish for loving you? Suppose I had held on to my Walton pride and refused all help. You could not have had what your condition required, and I should not have—" Ina stopped abruptly, clapping both hands over her mouth while her neck and face went scarlet.

"What? Edith waited, but her sister only burst into a confused laugh. Then, "Sh-sh-sh—" she whispered, laying a finger on her lips. "Some one is at the door." Tripping across the room, Ina opened with an expectant air and took from a messenger boy a large well-filled basket, which she carried straight to the bed and set down by Edith. "There," she said, "It is all for you."

"Oh, dear!" exclaimed the wondering girl, shaking her head. "You puzzle me sorely. Flowers again!"

"It is not all flowers, I'm sure," answered radiant Ina with a provoking little toss of her head. "Let me see." With this she lifted the covering of carnations, laid them lovingly in

Edith's lap, and delved into the basket's remaining contents. "Look!" here is a young chicken, a pound of butter, rolls, eggs, a bottle of milk, and more oranges. Oh, Edith, it is all so lovely!"

"But where do all these lovely things come from? We haven't so interested a friend that I can recall. Edith was both pleased and curious.

RECONSTRUCTED HEAD

During excavations carried on by the Italian Department for Colonial Affairs there came to light a fragment of a head which is believed to be none other than that of the Olympian god, Zeus. In speaking of this the London Illustrated News says: "This epoch-making discovery is due to the distinguished Roman archaeologist, Dr. Giacomo Guidi, the new Inspector of Antiquities in Cyrenaica, who, excavating the courtyard of the so-called Great Temple, facing the Acropolis, collected small fragments, which might easily have escaped the attention of a common explorer. Piecing them together with marvelous patience, he produced an almost entire reconstruction of the magnificent head. Further excavations may bring to light not only the pieces still wanting, but also the remains of the body." An inscription unearthed by Dr. Guidi confirms the attribution of the statue, stating that this was the great temple erected by the city to the Olympian Zeus.

FISHING WITH CORMORANTS

Fishing is great sport. Whether you use the humble backyard earthworm or an expensive fly or spoon hook, a charm all its own is connected with rod and tackle. But how many would like to have a day's fishing with cormorants? These birds are used on the small rivers in China and Japan, and a man owning a fishing boat and some of these helpful birds can easily make a good livelihood.

We came across a fleet of these boats engaged in fishing on one of the rivers far in the interior of China, some two thousand miles from Shanghai. There were five or more cormorants perched on each boat, and the fishermen had given the birds distinguishing marks. One boat had its birds labeled with a red feather; another had its flock marked with two feathers, another with three and so on; some had feathers of different colors and one group had bits of cloth stuck to their wings.

When the fishermen find a suitable spot, where the fishes are numerous, the birds are loosed from the boat to which they have been tied. Away they swim, under the water, darting here and there until they have found their prey. With the fish in its mouth the cormorant comes back to its owner's boat and the man seizes the bird and promptly squeezes its neck, forcing the cormorant to give up the fish, which is immediately put into a basket or crock provided for that purpose. The bird is then sent away to catch another fish, and still another and another.

The cormorants are kept hungry so that they will be ardent fishers, and sometimes a bird will sit squawking beside the basket into which its dinner has been cast, begging for the fish to be given back to it. But it is necessary to keep it hungry, or it will not bring back more than enough to satisfy its hunger, and that would not suit the Chinese fisherman. However, the cormorants are well fed after the day's work is over, at a time when their food does not interfere with their efficiency as workers.

Why does the cormorant bring the fish that it catches back to the boat? Why does it not swallow the juicy morsel?

There is an excellent reason. The cormorant is not able to eat the fish because its owner has fastened a ring around its neck, which is tight enough to keep the fish from going down. The ring is not removed until the bird has brought back enough fish to satisfy the man who owns it.

The boats used are narrow and flat-bottomed, somewhat resembling canoes. Sometimes they are constructed of bamboo poles, bound together. The light, shallow boats are easily managed. The fisherman has a long pole, shod at one end with iron. With this he poles when the water is shallow and double paddles when it is deep.—M. Burns McKinley in Forward.

CO-OPERATIVE NEWSPAPER PUBLISHED

By Eight High Schools in Franklin County With Circulation of 2200.

A novel innovation in publishing of school newspaper has been developed in instituting a co-operative system in Franklin county high schools, the system was inaugurated by the board of education in order that the county high schools, most of which have enrollments of about 100 and are therefore, unable to support an individual school paper, might have a means of distributing their news to their students.

Eight of the 12 Franklin county high schools are included in the system and it is expected that the remainder, with the exception of Groveport, which has its own paper, will join the system next year.

Four-page papers are published under the system. The second and third pages of the papers are made up nd paid for by the county board of education, while the other two are in charge of the individual school staffs. The pages made up by the board of education, containing news of general interest to the schools, are the same for each of the eight papers. The first and last pages contain only local school news.

Each school has its own staff which writes its news. The papers, which are published under different names at each school, are issued once a month.

The first edition of the papers was issued in November. The combined circulation for the eight schools was 2200.

The schools included in the system, their editor-in-chiefs, and the name used at the different high schools are as follows: Gahanna High school, "The Echo," Merle Mathews; Grove City High, "The Mirror," Robert Shockey; Reynoldsburg High, "The Reflector," Vernon Ashton; Hilliards High, "The Hilliards School News," Lillian Hautzen; New Albany, "The Flashlight," Ruth Doran; Canal Winchester High, "The Mirror," staff not selected; Hamilton Township High, "The Hamiltonian," Mary Sullivan and Washington Township High, "The Dublin Echo," staff not selected.

County Superintendent G. C. Beery and his assistant, E. R. Beck, have charge of the board of education pages.

INVESTIGATION TO BE RESUMED

Resumption of the state-wide investigation of Bell Telephone rates will not take place until Dec. 7, it was decided Monday by the state public utilities commission. The probe was to have been renewed on Nov. 23 and 24, but at the request of William J. Hagenah, the state's valuation expert, the time was postponed until the following month in order that he might complete his inventory.

"Now, that's where you are mistaken," corrected Ina, shaking a wise finger in her sister's face. "We have got a friend who is just that interested—one wom you have not met and who has done even more than all this. This new friend has procured me a position, and I shall go to work next week if you are well enough for me to leave you."

Edith surveyed her sister critically. "Who is it, pray?"

Ina rippled another merry laugh, then tried to look very serious as she leaned heavily on the footboard of the bed and answered deliberately, "The—gas—man."

The two stared at each other for a moment in silence, the younger smiling roguishly at the elder's dignified disapproval. "I knew you would think me dreadful," said Ina finally, "that is why I have kept it from you until now. But listen to me, Edith, in all seriousness. I must make you understand. When I left you that day to pay the gas bill, because to have failed would have meant no heat, with the thermometer standing at zero, and you with pneumonia, I was nearly crazy. I returned as soon as possible and found you unconscious. The new woman across the hall had already called the doctor. He said you could not live unless there was a change for the better by midnight, and I am quite sure he did not expect that change.

Next morning, Mr. Clark, the clerk of whom you say I begged, came to see if there was anything he could do for us.

"He took in the situation at once and sent his own physician, Doctor Danks. It is to Doctor Danks that we owe your life. Then Mr. Clark sent everything that was needed for your comfort and mine, too. No doubt, the doctor made out the list for him. Nothing helpful was omitted. You were too sick to notice, and I, too anxious to refuse whatever might be of benefit to you. I simply used my common sense, instead of clinging to that old family pride that should have spent itself long ago. This basket is from him also. See?" handing her the card on which were inscribed holiday greetings and his full name. "And, oh, Edith, he—is—a—dear!" Ina clasped her hands over her heart to add emphasis to her enthusiasm. Edith listened in amusement while she rambled on:

"I am sure you will like him, dear. You just must, for my sake, because—because—" A merry twinkle lit the happy girl's face as she hesitated, "but I'll not tell you now—I'll let you guess."

Undecided as to whether the animal in question was a pole cat, opposum or gutter rat, several girls and women scattered in all directions last Tuesday night when the "varmint" marched out in their midst at Terrace and W. Broad street.

Much is known as to the disturbance a small mouse can make in the presence of a lady. A proportionally greater commotion was raised when this animal appeared on the scene.

AUTO TAGS ON SALE FRIDAY

County Auditor's Office Open Until 5 p. m. Daily—14 Extra Clerks.

Sale of auto license tags for 1927 will open Friday, Dec. 10 in Franklin county at the Courthouse, Columbus Automobile Club and other stations.

Preparations are being made by departments to care for the rush. In the office of County Auditor Thatcher 14 additional clerks will be employed daily until Dec. 31. The office will be open until 5 p. m. each day except Sunday.

Tag buyers, Mr. Thatcher said, must bring bills of sale with them and have them registered. No checks will be accepted in payment for tags, he said.

Tags cannot be used until Jan. 1, according to law.

When the sale opens Mr. Thatcher will have ready for distribution 40,000 passenger car tags, 5600 truck tags, 400 motorcycle tags, 150 sidecar tags and 300 trailer tags, a total of 46,450 tags or approximately 400 more than he distributed during 1926.

Hilltop Church Services

Glenwood M. E.

Christmas month at Glenwood is one of the most delightful seasons of the year. The spiritual significance of Christ's advent will be the outstanding feature of all services.

Next Sunday morning at 10:30 Dr. Barber will preach on "The Hope of the Nations," the second in a series of sermons on "Christ and the Changing World."

At 7:30 the Christmas message will be portrayed in the pageant "When He Cometh," to be presented under the direction of Mrs. F. K. Dickerson, Miss Blanche Ringa, Mrs. Ray Cole, Mrs. T. S. Fox, Mrs. L. E. Kline, Mrs. H. G. Hamilton, Miss Annie Turner and Mrs. D. Ames Leach, who have charge of the different episodes. Mrs. C. W. Walton will direct the music.

Following the pageant, the pastor will preach a short sermon on "To All People."

The Junior church will meet during the church hour in the morning for all children between 7 and 11 years.

During the same hour the kindergarten and nursery will conduct their program in the school house next door for all children and babies under six years of age.

Intermediate League at 6:30 in the Sunday school room.

Epworth League at 6:30.

XMAS CELEBRATION AT BROAD-HAGUE

Believing "the more the merrier," Broad-Hague merchants will have two Christmas celebrations, Saturday evening, Dec. 11, and Thursday evening, Dec. 23, at which time many beautiful gifts will be given away and on Thursday, Dec. 23, a grand prize will be given. The gifts will range from groceries to merchandise for the person or home.

A large community Christmas tree will be placed at a convenient location, when the drawing will take place.

Santa Claus will be at these stores Saturday afternoon and evening, and hopes to see many little boys and girls.

The Amity Embroidery club was entertained, Tuesday, Nov. 30 at the home of Mrs. Park, 194 N. Harris Ave. The following members were present: Mrs. Brant, Mrs. Ditrick, Mrs. Loomis, Mrs. Bigler, Mrs. Saugen, Mrs. Shields, Mrs. Mueller, Mrs. Wilson and the hostess, Mrs. Park. Plans were discussed for the Christmas party to be held at the home of Mrs. Park, Dec. 15. The next meeting will be at the home of Mrs. Mueller, 227 N. Harris Ave.

Mr. and Mrs. W. B. Keefer of Austin, Colo., arrived in Columbus last Saturday and are visiting at the home Mrs. Keefer's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Neff, 86 N. Burgess Ave., and other relatives. Mr. and Mrs. Keefer expect to make their future home in Columbus.

WINDOW TRIMMING TAUGHT AT WEST HI

A new course of art has been added to West High school. This course comes under the head of window trimming and display advertising. William Dallas Campbell, art instructor will begin teaching it next semester.

Window display directors from the various downtown department stores will address the students on window trimming at different times throughout the course.

The growth and importance of advertising along this line opens up a wide field to those interested in the work.

Mrs. Mary B. Riley of Marion, Ohio, is visiting with Mrs. N. N. Thornton this week.

Mrs. Charles Keyborth, who has been ill at the home of Mrs. William Eckel is improving.

RUSSELL KADEL MUCH BETTER

In Hospital with Tetanus Resulting From Accidental Pistol Wound.

While loading a pistol with blank cartridges Nov. 18, Russell Kadel, son of Mrs. Carrie Kadel, 126 S. Eureka Ave., was accidentally injured in the palm of one hand by the premature explosion of the cartridge.

Tetanus developed several days later and he was removed to Grant hospital Nov. 26, where he has been undergoing treatment. He is much improved.

Miss Elizabeth Kadel, a sister of Russell, who has been in Grant hospital for the past eleven weeks, convalescing from a broken limb, sustained when an auto struck her as she alighted from a car at Broad street and Eureka avenue, returned to her home last Sunday.

MAYOR THOMAS AT GLENWOOD

Thursday evening, Dec. 9, at 8 o'clock, members of the Home and Foreign Missionary societies of Glenwood M. E. church and their husbands will hold their annual Christmas meeting.

At this time Mayor J. J. Thomas will speak on his visit to the Western Indian reservations. He will also have many curios on display. Miss Zella Roberts, well known harpist, will give a program of harp selections, and Dr. Campbell's quartet will sing.

Mrs. F. B. Wilson's and Dr. Jordan's groups will be hostesses.

Hilltop W. C. T. U. will hold its regular meeting and Christmas party Friday evening at the home of Mrs. William Ferguson, 90 N. Warren Ave. A good program has been arranged and a good attendance is desired.

Tag Inn Changes Hands

F. B. Grimm, formerly of New Concord, Ohio, has purchased the Tag Inn Tea Room on West Broad street. A soda fountain has been installed and also a fine line of homemade candies. Mr. and Mrs. Grimm were in a machine accident on their trip here from New Concord and have not fully recovered from their injuries.

THUMBS WAY TO FLORIDA

Hilltop has a real "knight of the road" in the form of Charles Winstead, age 12, of 130 N. Harris avenue.

Having had two previous cross-country jaunts, Charles decided it was time to see some more of America first before old age began stealing upon him. His "romantic" spirit now led him toward Florida.

Some three months ago he left home and has been touring the south since then. By thumbing his way he was able to gain rides all the way to Jacksonville, Orlando and Tampa.

He was able to make as high as $3 per day selling papers and in this way he could afford to eat and to sleep sometimes in rooming houses.

In Birmingham, Alabama, he met another wanderer of his age and the two went on together. They were on their way back home when police located them in Sanford, Fla., and notified the parents.

Charles was held until money for transportation back home arrived. He pointed out that if he had been left to do as he wished he would have gotten home free of charge and the train fare would have been saved.

SANTA'S ERROR

Everybody makes mistakes. Even Santa Claus gets mixed up sometimes. Such was the case this week when Santa was handing out candy to the kiddies who visited Seiller's store.

One particular little girl near the age of eight years had approached him for her stick of candy. Santa asked if she had written her letter yet and she replied, "I've already written my letter." Santa thereupon realized his mistake and said, "Oh yes. I remember, I received your letter yesterday."

Upon returning home the small girl told her mother of the incident and said, "He must have somebody else's letter, mama."

"Why?" asked the mother.

"Well," she said. "You see I've written my letter but I haven't mailed it yet."

SANTA CLAUS PREFERS HILLTOP

Like the wise old chap that he is, Santa Claus has decided to spend the greater portion of his time from now until Christmas right out here on the Hilltop.

He may be seen at Seiller's Store in person every afternoon and every Saturday evening until Christmas. In keeping with his traditional generosity he insists upon giving every good little boy and girl who come to see him, a nibble at some of his choice Christmas sweets even though the great Holiday is still more than two weeks away. Further important news of his visit will be found in Seiller's announcement on the last page.

SECOND WEEK OF REVIVAL

At U. B. Church Reveals Much Interest—Thursday Is Men's Night.

The special revival meetings being held in the Burgess Avenue U. B. church are growing in spiritual fervor and in attendance as well, and are proving a real means of grace to the whole community.

The pastor, Rev C. E. Miller, is doing the preaching, and the musical part of the service is under the direction of Mr. and Mrs. Delbert Shaw, singing evangelists of Muncie, Ind.

This is an old-time revival of God-given power, and homes are being made happy because whole families are coming into vital touch with that great Heavenly Dynamic, the Holy Spirit. Both young people and adults are being won to Christ, while the church has been quickened to a new degree of sincere consecration to the work of the Kingdom of God.

Thursday night is men's night, and the pastor will speak upon the subject, "A Man Up a Tree." Friday night will be Sunday School night, subject, "A Hero Among the Lions."

C. J. Downs, 87 Dakota Ave., has purchased the E. J. Moorman Confectionery at Whitethorne avenue and Broad street, taking charge of the business Dec. 1.

Miss Ruth Sullivan, 192 Terrace avenue received cuts on the head when she was struck by a truck Wednesday, Dec. 1. She was taken to St. Francis hospital but is now at her home.

Miss Sullivan was attempting to cross the street at Long and Fourth streets when she was struck. The truck was driven by Henry Rondallis, 498 Grove street.

RELICS ARE UNEARTHED

Union and Confederate Uniform Buttons and Bullets Found on Site of New West High School

Civil war days were recalled recently when Kenneth Bents, 465 S. Chase avenue found several old reminders on the site of the new West High school at Chase avenue, three blocks south of West Broad street.

In the collection he has several old bullets, army uniform buttons and regiment numerals. These bring to mind the fact that Camp Chase was located on the ground near there.

The uniform buttons have the design of the eagle of the Union soldiers. Confederate buttons were also found.

Mrs. John Courtney, 288 N. Warren Ave., entertained with a bridge luncheon Saturday at the Southern Hotel with members of the committee on arrangements for the card party to be given by Amo Club at the Neil House Saturday, Dec. 11 as her guests. Mrs. P. J. Mueller is general chairman of the card party. Mrs. P. H. DeVore is in charge of the tickets; Mrs. W. B. Rosel, prizes; Mrs. Frank Kreuter and Mrs. W. H. Curry, candy.

BAPTISTS ELECT NEW OFFICIALS

Officers of the Hillcrest Baptist church were elected last Wednesday night at the church. They will be installed Dec. 29 at the annual business meeting and church supper to be held in the church basement.

The officers chosen were as follows: Deacons for three years: J. G. Sims, W. S. Uhl, L. D. Thompson. Trustee for three years: H. T. Wilson and H. W. Buckles; treasurer, G. D. Ballard; clerk, Mrs. Groves Denham; financial secretary, Mrs. Isaac Riel; Sunday school superintendent, H. Ray Evans; assistant superintendent, O. H. Craft; chief usher, N. W. Kent.

Mr. Evans has served himself as Sunday school superintendent, ever since the church has been built.

On Dec. 26 the Men's Bible class will hold a meeting at the Central Y. M. C. A. Mr. Kent is entertaining and says he expects more than 100 present.

The Elite Embroidery Club was very delightfully entertained at the home of Mrs. H. G. Deems on Thursday afternoon, Dec. 2. The members enjoyed a pleasant afternoon in Christmas sewing. A very delightful luncheon was served to the following members: Mrs. Jack Rees, Mrs. Orman Spencer, Mrs. Ivan Spencer, Mrs. D. U. Creager, Mrs. Albert Jordan, Mrs. W. H. Spangler and the hostess, Mrs. Deems.

Fire On Eureka

Three alarms were turned in Wednesday evening when the roof of the Lewis' home at 157 N. Eureka Ave. caught fire.

A neighbor across the street first saw smoke rising from the cornice of the roof and notified the fire department. Two other calls were soon sent in by neighbors. When the fire trucks arrived it had gained very little headway and was soon extinguished.

WILL SING XMAS CAROLS

Annual Song Fest of Columbus Public Schools to Be Held Dec. 19.

Annual Christmas carol singing by pupils of Columbus public schools will be held at Memorial Hall at 2:30 o'clock, Sunday, Dec. 19. Robert W. Roberts, supervisor of music, announces.

According to present plans an all-senior high orchestra will play accompaniments, a feature which has not been used heretofore. The personnel of the chorus will be made up of pupils selected from all the schools.

Christmas Party

The Home Guards and Kings Heralds of Glenwood church will entertain their mothers with a Christmas party, Monday, Dec. 13 after school. A beautiful pageant, "White Gifts for the King" will be given under the direction of Mildred Phalor. Miss Elsie Hipp of the Y. W. C. A. will tell a Christmas story. All members will have some part in the pageant.

And last, but not least, Santa will be there to give each a treat. Be sure to bring mother and your little sod stocking with your Christmas offering in it as you will need it for the pageant.

KRAMER HEADS ODD FELLOWS

At their regular meeting, held Wednesday evening Dec. 1, Hilltop Lodge of Odd Fellows, No. 682, I. O. O. F. elected the following officers for the ensuing term: James Kramer, noble grand; Earl Webb, vice grand; H. W. Lauer, recording secretary; L. O. Pearch, financial secretary; C. W. Haldy, treasurer; H. C. Kiefer, trustee for three years.

Mr. Haldy was elected treasurer for the tenth consecutive year.

Recently Hilltop Lodge moved in 2268½ W. Broad St., where it holds its regular meetings on Wednesday evening of each week.

Thirteen were present at a 6 o'clock Thanksgiving dinner, Thursday evening, Nov. 25, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Born, 22 S. Hawie Ave. Those present were: Rev. and Mrs. F. H. Born and daughter, Louise, of Marietta, Ohio, where Rev. Born is pastor of the Gilman Ave. M. E. Church; Mr. and Mrs. Harlan F. Born and son Junior, of Cleveland; Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Yantis of California, Mr. Wendell Weller, Miss Lillian Born, Miss Sarah Born of Baltimore, Ohio and the host and hostess.

WHITE ELEPHANT PARTY

M. P. B. class of Hoge Memorial Presbyterian church will hold their regular monthly meeting in the church house this Thursday evening at 7:30 o'clock. An unusual program is being offered as members are requested to bring their "white elephant" with them.

West Broad P.-T. A. Meets Friday Eve.

The pupils of the West Broad Street school are to furnish the music for the P.-T. A. meeting at 8 p. m. Friday, Dec. 10. This will consist of singing of carols by the children of different grades, also by the Boys' Glee club and selections by the school orchestra. There will also be piano solos by Margaret Fletcher and Dorothy Seiller.

The speaker of the evening is Miss Olive Say Judd, member of the Columbus Story Tellers' League, who is to tell Christmas stories.

This will be the only meeting of the year in which the pupils are to take an active part in the program, and all parents are urged to attend.

Group No. 6 of the Ladies' Aid society of Glenwood M. E. church met at the home of the chairman, Mrs. O. Hungelman, 2730 Steele avenue, on Thursday, Dec. 2, with a good attendance. Election of officers for the new group are as follows: Mrs. May Albert for secretary; Mrs. E. C. Johnson, treasurer, after which refreshments were served by the hostess, assisted by Mrs. Phalor.

CELEBRATES 80TH BIRTHDAY

Mr. William Link, 59 N. Park Ave., celebrated his 80th birthday last Saturday at the home of his daughter, Mrs. B. L. Skipper. His nine children and their families giving a supper in his honor. Those present were: Mr. and Mrs. Link and children, Woodrow and Thelma, Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Link, Mrs. Margaret Curran, Mr. and Mrs. W. G. Work and sons, Charley and Daniel, Mr. and Mrs. B. L. Skipper and daughters Irene and Margaret, Mr. and Mrs. John Link and children Charles, Norman, and Mary, Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Rinehart and children Bob and Kathryn, Mr. and Mrs. A. J. Link and sons Raymond, Roy and Billy, Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Roush and sons Martin and Daniel and Miss Anna Bratt.

Another son Charles and wife of Chicago were unable to be present but sent their well wishes. After an evening of enjoyment they left wishing their father many more happy birthdays.

Highland P. T. A.

The Highland P. T. A. will hold its next monthly meeting in the portable, Tuesday evening, December 14 at 7:30. The general topic of the meeting this month will be "Health," and a very interesting meeting has been planned.

There will be a play presented by the 6th Grade. This will be the old favorite, Dicken's "Christmas Carol," warranted to insure the real Christmas spirit. The chief speaker of the evening will be Mrs. Ives, of Ohio State, who will speak on "Health."

HIGHLAND LOSES TO FRANKLIN

Hard Fought Junior High Game Goes to East Siders by 12 to 8 Score.

Before a very small crowd of rooters Highland lost a close and exciting game to Franklin in the first of the elimination series.

Both teams played a five-man defense which was so strong that neither could penetrate for many shots. The Hilltop boys made more shots, but failed to make them good for points.

The guarding of McCune at backguard kept the score down. He seemed to be all over the floor and took the ball from the backboard continuously. There were no offensive stars for Highland, as that part of their work failed to function as it should. Stratton and Patterson featured the scoring for Franklin each getting two field goals. Fleming, the small backguard was the defensive star for the visitors.

Highland plays Mound Friday at the Shelterhouse. Barrett beat Mound 17 to 12, in an overtime game, so another close contest is expected.

Scoring: Field goals, McCrea, Larkin, Adair: Stratton 2; Patterson 2; Shaybaugh. Fouls, McCrea, 2 in 4, Larkin, 0 in 2, McCune, 0 in 3, Patterson, 1 in 4, Fleming, 1 in 3, Simmons, 0 in 2. Referee, "Bill" Waite.

Burroughs School Notes

Miss Charlotte Bender, librarian of West High school, gave an instructive talk on selecting books for a child's library to the John Burroughs Parent-Teacher association on Friday afternoon. Miss Bender had on display at the building a fine collection of books appropriate for children.

Miss Grace Smith, 5-B grade and Miss Dorothy Wallace, 3-B grade, led the building in highest percentage of attendance during the month of November.

The meeting of the Music Box, held last Friday night at 54 N. Burgess Ave. was very well attended. A membership drive was planned which will continue till the last of February, the captains for the two competing teams being the Misses Ruth Dell and Louise Alford. After a very entertaining program, light refreshments were served. The hostesses for the meeting were the Misses Louise Alford and Elsie Binder-[illegible].

MERRY CHRISTMAS.

How very old and how new are the words Merry Christmas. As the day draws near, we begin to wonder what gifts we shall receive and what we shall give our friends. Although we are anxious for the day to come because of the giving, let us not forget the real meaning of Christmas, the birthday of Jesus Christ. Let us stop for a moment and think of the morning long ago when the precious Christ child came to earth. On that morning a star shone all radiant on high and filled the earth and sky with glory. As the old, old story that every boy and girl knows, tells us, our Savior sacrificed a throne and suffered death for us. December 25 is set aside as the day when all the world shall give praises to Him, Savior King. Let us all be faithful, joyful and triumphant on that morning, not only because of our presents, but for the birth of the Holy Child, who came to save the world. Margot.

FREE SHOW AT RIVOLI THEATER

For Children at 10 o'Clock Saturday Morning—"Two Can Play" Will Be Presented.

Here is good news for the kiddies again. The Rivoli theater will entertain them on Saturday morning with free picture show. The picture, one especially for children, is entitled "Two Can Play," presented by an all-star cast, and Manager Pelpas wants the house filled.

It has another surprise for the children and here it is—nine other free shows for them—January 8 and 22 and the other dates to be announced later.

BABY CAMP TO BENEFIT

From Proceeds of Annual Ohio State Persian Cat Show January 8 and 9.

The ninth annual cat show of the Ohio State Persian club will be held in the ball room of the Neil House, January 8 and 9, 1927, according to announcement by the club officials.

This organization has made substantial donations to the Columbus Baby Camp in past years, from proceeds of their shows, and it is hoped that the general public will co-operate to make this coming event the most successful of all. Owners of cats are urged to enter them and to attend the exhibition.

Mrs. Ella Pace is president of the club; Mrs. F. L. Mock, vice president; Mrs. Karl H. Hoenig, secretary, and Mrs. Charles Burroughs, treasurer. Mrs. Mae Ackerman will serve as show manager this season and Mrs. Hoenig will officiate as judge.

Space for the exhibition in the Neil House was donated by the manager of the hotel as a gift for the Baby Camp.

EUREKA MARKET GRAND OPENING

Wednesday, Dec. 22 — Children's Hour and Food Demonstrations.

L. Moover has leased the building and storeroom at 192 S. Eureka Ave., formerly occupied by Sherburn's grocery and has opened a grocery and meat market with a new and fresh stock of goods. His store will be known as the Eureka Market.

The opening for the new store was held last Saturday night, when many people visited the market and participated in the distribution of ten prizes, among them being a large fruit cake and baskets of groceries.

On Wednesday, Dec. 22, the market will have its grand opening, for which elaborate preparations are being made so that it will be instructive as well as interesting.

The market will be open until ten o'clock that evening to welcome all who visit the store—and Mr. Hoover invites the whole Hilltop—but not for the transaction of business.

From 6 until 7 will be known as children's hours, when they will be guests of the store. Santa Claus will be there with a present for each child and to hear what they want for Christmas.

From 7 to 9 o'clock will be devoted to demonstrations of foods by representatives of food manufacturing concerns.

At 9 o'clock a drawing will be conducted in which three prizes will be awarded—a turkey as first prize, a duck—as second prize, and a chicken as third prize. A ticket will be given with each 25c purchase made at the market from now until Dec. 22, which entitles the holder to participate in the drawing. Here is a chance to get your Christmas dinner free.

Mr. Hoover is earnestly desirous of meeting many Hilltop people at this time.

THEY did not have very much money. In fact, they had very little. If you had peered into Ma Grady's worn pocketbook you would have seen only a two-dollar bill and a few stray coppers. This represented three months' careful saving for Christmas. The Gradys were poor and there were seven of them. Pa Grady was killed in an accident three years ago, since when Ma Grady and Susie and Bill had worked hard to keep the family together. But all the hardship in the world could not dampen the spirits of that fighting family.

Susie Grady was a plucky fifteen, and got small jobs of looking after the neighbors' babies, or coming in as a mother's helper. Bill Grady was twelve. He picked up odd quarters in all sorts of clever ways. Ma Grady, that rosy, smiling, battling woman, had her big arms in the suds from morning until night. She did the washings of half the town.

And so Christmas eve came. And Ma Grady stepped down to where the stores were and expended her two dollars and a few coppers on gifts for her family. In the meantime Susie and Bill were busy about a Christmas tree. Bill had bought it at a great reduction because it was so ugly.

Susie paused in draping a bit of tinsel on a branch. "Don't you hear a crying?" she asked.

"Haven't got time to listen to the wind," growled Bill, who was feeling too important to be bothered with trifles.

Susie went on with her work.

Then—"But I do hear something sure as the world!" she insisted. Bill grunted and stood off to squint up his eyes at some cotton he had just arranged like snow.

"It's a scratching sound and a whine. I'm going to see." Susie slipped into the hall. She opened the door. There, shivering on the sill, was the coldest, littlest dog she had ever seen in her life. It had long, silken ears and the biggest brown eyes imaginable.

"Why, you poor little beastie!" Susie gathered him up in her arms. A grateful pink tongue tapped her face. A cold little body pressed against her warm neck. She hurried back to the Christmas tree.

"Look! Look what I've found!"

Bill came over to examine the dog. "Cute little feller, ain't he?" he conceded. "Guess he's one o' them new-fangled kind: a Chinese Pekingese. Wonder why he came to our door?"

The children stood patting the new treasure. And the wee dog made tiny snortings of pleasure, wriggling and squirming with delight. The Christmas tree was forgotten.

"Don't get him to barking or it will wake up the other kids!" warned Bill.

For half an hour the two children played with the small stranger. Bill and Susie had never seen such a friendly little creature. They began to think of him as their own . . . as a Christmas gift come especially for them.

A loud rapping on the door. A rapping as of a cane knocked smartly against the panels.

"Mercy!" said Susie, "who's that?" And she flew to answer it.

"Have you seen?" asked a man's voice, a deep, businesslike voice, "a small dog about here?"

"Why—" stammered Susie, why—eh—"

A sharp little bark from the other room.

"Ah," said the stranger, "I perceive that you have. Allow me to enter and retrieve my property."

Before Susie could say a word the big man had pushed by her and was in the room where the Christmas tree [illegible].

Bill had the dog tight in his arms. There was an expression on the boy's face of dogged determination. He looked as though nothing in the world could seperate him from this new-found happiness.

"Yes," said the stranger, "that is the little fellow. He got away from me while I was giving him a walk. The mistress would be wild if I lost him. I'll have to teach him a lesson." He reached the dog.

"No, no!" cried Bill. "We found him and took him in. He's ours!"

"Why Bill," said Susie, "you mustn't speak that way!"

The man laughed. "I don't wonder you want him—he's a cute little tyke. But I must take him back home. I'm to drive the family to a party tonight and I'm late now."

But Bill relinquished his hold of the dog not a whit. "You can't have him! He's mine!"

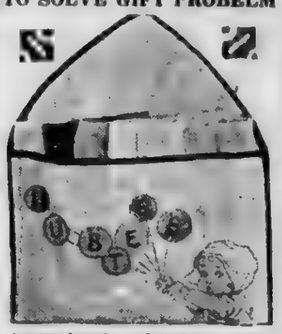
URGE EARLY MAILING OF XMAS GIFTS

Suggestions Made For Preparation of Packages to Be Sent During Holidays.



Early shipping of Christmas packages is urged by officials of the American Railway Co., and T. H. Watkins, Columbus agent for the company, declared Saturday, "a shipment started right is half way there."

In discussing the preparation of holiday shipments, Watkins offered the following suggestions: Writing on the packages should be made with waterproof crayon, ink or steel and not with lead pencil, and the name and address of the sender might be enclosed on the inside of the package, in addition to being on the outside. Address should include the name of the receiver, full street and number, city or town, state, and in small towns, the name of the county to prevent delay. Care in making the writing legible and in writing abbreviations of names of the states, also was stressed, and he said all fragile articles, such as glass and crockery, need the protection of a box or other container in addition to ample and suitable cushioning material

HOMEMADE SHADE

Scissor painted and "crysalline" lamp shades are going to shed radiant joy in the homes and hearts of many happy recipients this Christmas. These home-made shades are as beautiful as any that can be bought. They are made of handkerchief linen stretched over a wire frame and decorated with designs cut from printed crepe paper. Here is one in which the figures are silhouettes in black. After they are pasted on, the shade is painted over with thin transparent amber sealing-wax paint and, after this is dry, a background in soft yellows, reds and browns, is blended on.

125 STUDENTS TO GRADUATE

Dec. 22 Marks Ending of Fall Quarter and Beginning of Holidays at O. S. U.

A class of approximately 125 will be graduated Wednesday, Dec. 22, at the autumn convocation at Ohio State University, a preliminary survey shows.

The commencement exercises, marking the end of the fall quarter and the beginning of the Christmas holidays, will be held in the chapel.

Following the campus custom one of the outstanding members of the faculty will deliver the convocation address. The speaker for Dec. 22 will be Professor Frederick E. Lumley of the department of sociology, it was announced Saturday.

Professor Lumley, a member of the Ohio State faculty since 1920, formerly taught at Butler College. He is a graduate of Hiram College and holds advanced degrees from McMaster and Yale universities. Besides holding the doctor of philosophy degree from Yale, he is a graduate of the Yale Divinity School.

The Christmas Eve Dog

"Mrs. Grady," said the man, "could your name be Norah Finnegan?"

Mrs. Grady smiled. It could—and it is!"

"Well," said the man, and a queer shy look passed over his face, "maybe you won't be welcoming me—but I'm—I'm Tim's youngest brother, Tom. I ran away from home when I was sixteen. I've been pretty near all over the country. Just came to work for Mrs. Platt in October—right here in this town. I lost track of my family—but I did hear about Tim's death. I was in California then. I'm awful ashamed—"

"Could Your Name Be Norah Finnegan?" He asked.

The heart of Mrs. Grady was a large one. She forgot as easily as she forgave. And it took her only a few minutes to make this big youngest brother of her husband very much at home.

"You [illegible] favorite," she said, "and he used to worry about you a lot. Are ye married?"

"No," confessed Tom Grady, "not I. And by the livin' soul of St. Patrick, I'll lend a shoulder in this house! Ye've had a hard time, Norah, and you've done a fine job by the kids. It'll be grand to come here my nights off. I was feelin' terrible lonesome this Christmas. I have most of the day tomorrow and you bet I'll hike it over here as fast as I can. Will ye invite me?"

Susie slipped a shy hand into her new uncle's big fist. Bill moved nearer, his eyes round with bewilderment. He still held the little dog tight in his arms. "Can you bring the dog to visit, too?" he asked.

"I don't know about that, but I do know that I can buy another dog just like him for a lad I've just found—a boy by the name of Bill."

The Gradys had a merry Christmas—the merriest Christmas for years. Big Tim romped with the children like a boy. And barking away with all his exuberant might was a brown and white dog with large eyes and a plume of a tail—"To Bill with a Merry Christmas from his Uncle Tom," had been on the tag that came with the new puppy.

"Bedad, a fine day!" sighed Mrs. Grady. "'Tis maybe, I can give up a dozen washin's or so and tend to me family. That Tom is a whale of a lad for helpin'."

After All The True Comparison Must Be Tone

But—

The most attractive cabinet would soon become very unattractive if the tone of the radio instrument was not pleasing to the ear.

In justice to yourself, let me set one up in your home. Tune it yourself. Test it for distance, ease of tuning, and—tone. It will talk for itself. You will also want to know about Ozarka Service.

Phone or write me when a demonstration will be most convenient.

RESPONSE TO NEWSIE APPEAL IS GRATIFYING

10,000 More Buttons to be Ordered by Newsies in Effort to Raise $25,000.

Response of Columbus citizens to the appeal of the Charity Newsies in their effort to raise $25,000 for the poor and needy of the city, is very gratifying, the leaders announced late last week.

David Jones, president of the newsies, announced that 10,000 additional buttons have been ordered. Approximately 25,000 buttons were distributed to campaign workers at the start of the drive.

The sale of buttons is preliminary to the sale of charity edition newspapers December 18. Jones hopes to secure the necessary amount by the close of that day.

We do not enjoy success as long as we are the victims of sinful habits.

Santa, Esquimo Helpers and Reindeers to Come to Hilltop

ATTACKED BY UNKNOWN MAN

Mrs. Spencer Found Unconscious in street Near Her Home By Passerby.

While on her way home from her work as telephone operator, Friday night, Mrs. Jackie Love Spencer, 19, of 266 S. Park Ave., was attacked and left unconscious in the street a few doors from her home.

Later she told of her experience and said a man stepped out in front of her as she walked past the alley. She first attempted to go around him but he stepped in front of her again. Next she attempted to hit him with her hands but he grabbed both of them and held them behind her back. She tried to kick him but he held her legs also. She screamed and he threw her down. She was unconscious for what she supposed to have been about an half hour.

A colored lady heard her scream and took her to her house. Police believe they have a clew to the identity of Mrs. Spencer's assailant.

The older children will sing "Oh, Little Town of Bethlehem," "Hark, the Herald Angels Sing," and "The First Noel."

The whole school will recite the Scripture passage in Luke II, 8 to 17 verses and the school orchestra will play "Silent Night."

A musical recitation by Jane Fellers and the 4A-B will complete the program.

The rooms and halls have been decorated this week, and much has been done to give a Christmas air to the building, and to teach the beauty of giving as well as receiving.

Word was received late last week from Rev. R. E. Shields, Mountain Lakes, N. J., of the birth of a son, Herbert Jasper, Dec. 2. Both mother and son are reported to be doing nicely. Rev. Shields was former pastor of Hoge Memorial Presbyterian church on South Eureka avenue.

Y. M. P. B. CLASS ELECT OFFICERS

The Married People's Bible Class of Hoge Memorial Presbyterian Church held their regular monthly business meeting last Thursday evening, Dec. 9 at the church house on south Eureka avenue. Election of officers was held the following elected to office: Mr. George Hyer, president; Mr. Phil Cunningham, vice president; Mrs. Robert Gilliam, secretary; Mrs. Spencer, treasurer. A very novel entertainment in the form of a "White Elephant Party," meaning "Gift Exchange" was thoroughly enjoyed by all. A goodly number enjoyed the refreshments served by the following hostesses: Mrs. W K. Merriman, chairman; Mrs. Roush, assisting chairman; Mrs. Moyer, Mrs. Price, Mrs. Rees and Mrs. Saunders.

LUTHERAN CHOIR TO GIVE CANTATA

The choir of the Hilltop Lutheran church, under the direction of Miss Marion Rupe, will sing the cantata, "The First Christmas," on next Sunday evening at 7:30. The choir will have as soloists, Mrs. M. W. Carey, contralto; Mrs. Harry Hoffman, soprano; Mr. Earl Froggett, baritone, and Mr. C. T. Donaldson, tenor. Miss Marion Rupe will be at the organ. The cantata will give the story of Christmas from the prophesies of the Old Testament to the final adoration of the populace at the manger in Bethlehem.

Mr. and Mrs. Ellis S. Hawkins of Barnesville, Ohio, will come Saturday for the holidays, guests of their daughters, Mrs. Walter McBride and Mrs. Samuel Pool.

CHRISTMAS DECORATIONS

At Broad and Hague Make Attractive and Beautiful Display

Merchants at Broad and Hague have gone to considerable work and expense to decorate and beautify this section for the holiday season. Christmas trees decorate each telephone pole in this section from Hague avenue west and along the curbing of each side of the street is a string of electric wires with colored lights every few feet, supplementing the regular street lighting.

Merchants are planning the erection of a Christmas tree in this section and will have a celebration next Saturday night. Thirty prizes are to be given away. The climax of the Christmas festivities will be reached Thursday night, Dec. 23, when the grand prize will be given.

Mrs. Mary Renner Midgley of Logan, Ohio, spent the week-end with her nieces, the Misses Lulu and Margaret Renner, 2021 W. Broad St.

The Beta Lambda and J. R. B classes of Glenwood Sunday school will have their Christmas party together at the church on Monday evening, Dec 20. All members should be present and each one is to bring the usual Christmas gift to be exchanged with one another.

SULLIVANT AVE. GARAGE BURNS

Two Cars Are Badly Damaged in Fire Last Thursday Morning.

Fire to the loss of $500 or more ravaged the garage rented by Lew Holcomb at the rear of 2021 Sullivant avenue, between 8 and 10 o'clock Thursday morning. Two cars were badly damaged and the building remains in chars.

Firemen arrived on the scene near 9:30 o'clock and were soon able to check the flames. The cars had already been ignited by this time. The building is said to have caught fire from either coals left in the fire or poor wiring of the garage.

A Cadillac car belonging to J. D. Zigler of 2391 Sullivant avenue was burned beyond recognition. The other was a Ford truck belonging to Mayer & Sons Grocery, 2385 Sullivant Ave.

Mr. Holcumb, manager of the garage and repair shop lives at 553 South Burgess avenue.

The W. H. S. M. club will meet this Thursday evening at 7:30 o'clock at the home of Esther and Martha Skipper, 31 N. Eureka Ave.

Miss Emily Thrasher was hostess at a bridge party last Saturday afternoon at her home, 611 S. Warren Ave., at which the engagement of Miss Mary Catherine Stare of Newark to Mr. Edwin J. Mumm, 1747 Franklin Ave., was announced. Guests were Mrs. Margaret Drennan and Miss Angela Stare of Newark, Miss Elizabeth Carlowe, Miss Irene Clouse, Miss Florence Murray, Miss Frances Henderson, Miss Mary Muldoon, Mrs. H. A. Wagoner and Mrs. Andrew Contosta.

The Hilltop Embroidery club Christmas party will be held Monday evening, Dec. 20, at the Matsonia Barbecue, West Broad street. The husbands of the members will be guests. Mrs. Matson and Mrs. Payne are hostesses.

The Hilltop Child Conservation Circle will have their annual Christmas party for all members and their families, Friday, Dec. 17, at the new home of Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Rucker, 110 Whitethorne Ave. The pot luck dinner will be served at 6 p. m. Each member bring their gifts. The children will give the program and following, Santa will visit the party.

At the evening service hour the choir will render the Christmas cantata, "The Christmas Adoration," by Carrie B. Adams, under the direction of W. Haydn Jones, choir director.

December meeting of the Needle Art club was held at the home of Mrs. W. H. Large, 1573 Glenoble road. The next meeting will be turned into a Christmas party and held the evening of Dec. 22, at the home of Mrs. H. Pimms, 80 N. Park Ave.

Group No. 2 of the Ladies' Aid society of Hoge Memorial Presbyterian church, of which Mrs. A. C. Markert is chairman, has postponed their regular meeting until January, due to the Christmas holidays.

NOTICE TO RECORD READERS AND ADVERTISERS

Owing to the approaching holiday season, the Record has had a number of requests from advertisers to publish a day earlier than usual. Therefore next week's issue will be distributed on Wednesday. This necessitates copy being in a day earlier, and all news matter should be in the office Monday night if possible.

We trust our contributors will co-operate with us in the matter of news.

FREAK FIRE DAMAGES CAR

Interior of W. H. Rankin's Car Burned Without Doing Other Damage.

Strange things happen in the way of fires. Last Wednesday night, W. H. Rankin of 158 N. Ogden Ave. drove his car in the garage, locked the doors and departed.

Upon going for the car the next morning he was very much surprised to find that the entire upholstering and top had been burned to dark coals. It is evident that the car had not been in flames but had just smouldered and charred. Mr. Rankin blames a short circuited wire for his loss. The car was a Buick.

Two other cars were in the same garage but were not damaged. Two coats hanging on a post not more than 18 inches away were unhurt also.

The Philathea Class of Glenwood church will hold its next meeting on Tuesday evening, Dec. 21 with Mrs. Jennie Smith, 2402½ W. Broad St. The second group will be the hostesses of the evening.

W. J. Scheider, 102 Ogden Ave., Hocking Valley Railroad brakeman, is suffering a fractured shoulder and internal injuries in Marion City Hospital, after he was thrown from the rear of a train near Marion, Monday Dec. 13.

REQUEST RELIGIOUS EDUCATION

In Public Schools — Church Council Submits Plans Used In Other Cities.

Request for establishment of religious education in Columbus schools, made by a committee of the Week-day Religious Education Council of the Federated Churches of Franklin County, was referred to superintendent Vollcott by the board of education at its meeting last week.

Rev. T. Lehmann of St. John's Evangelical Protestant church, spokesman for the committee, outlined the plan to the board and cited instances where this type of education has been used effectively in other cities. Expenses of the education will be defrayed by the council, he explained.

FORMER HILLTOP POSTMASTER DIES

John W. Hagerty, 73, retired Hilltop business man died at his home, 81 S. Westland Ave., at 3 p. m. Sunday, Dec. 12. He had been ill for nearly two years.

He was best known to Hilltop people as postmaster of the substation located in Mykrantz drug store. He retired from active service last June after having served here since 1923.

He was a member of the Masonic lodge of Mt. Sterling from whence he came 30 years ago to make his home in Columbus.

He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Florence Hanawalt. Funeral services were held Tuesday, Dec. 14, at the grave in Mt. Sterling cemetery, where burial was made. The Masonic lodge were in charge of the services.

W. C. T. U. HAS XMAS PARTY

The annual Christmas party of the Hilltop W. C. T. U. was held Friday evening at the home of Mrs. W. M. Ferguson, 90 N. Warren Ave. Christmas decorations gave a festive air to the occasion.

During the short business meeting preceding the program, plans were completed for filling Christmas boxes of fruits, candy and cookies, to be sent to the Soldiers' Home at Dayton. All contributions for this work are to be sent to the home of Mrs. M. W. Westlake, 2490 W. Broad St., not later than Tuesday, Dec. 21.

The Past Chiefs' club of Westwood Temple, Pythian Sisters, will hold their regular meeting and Christmas party at the home of Mrs. Louise Bair, 154 Nedburgess Ave., Friday, Dec. 17.

The quartet from the Hilltop School of Music composed of Miss Robbins, violinist; Miss Greiner, pianist, Mr. Hubbert Jones, violinist, and Mr. Eugene Schneider, cello, will broadcast from W. A. I. U. Monday, Dec. 20 from 8 to 9 o'clock.

CIVIL SERVICE TESTS DEC. 22

Twenty-two assembled and three non-assembled examinations will be conducted by the state civil service commission, Dec. 22 and 23, according to the official bulletin just issued.

Assembled examinations are for the following position in the state service: Tax collection, stock clerk, stockman, grade 2 stenographers, assistant draftsman, assistant engineer, assistant superintendent of electrical construction, attorney examiner, grade 4 bacteriologist, grade 4 bookkeeper, branch office deputies, real estate examiner, pharmacist, plumber, pressman, physicians, and second assistant division engineer.

The non-assembled examinations are for draftsman, county service, laboratory helper, department of health and tax draftsman, also county service.

The official bulletin which gives complete data regarding all examinations will be mailed free upon request.

Anyone wishing to have the Highland School Camp Fire Girls sings carols on Christmas eve please call Ha. 3280-W.

JOHN BURROUGHS SCHOOL NOTES

Exercises appropriate for the occasion were held in the auditorium of the school, at which time the building received a prize of twenty dollars from the O. C. Miller fund for its fine display during the garden exhibit at Memorial Hall in the fall, also a prize of forty-five dollars from the state for its exhibit at the State Fair.

The individual prizes which amounted to $7.50 were won by the following pupils: Louanna Ruhlen, John Fry, George Lust, George Carter, Richard Cothran, John Eckhard and Joe Gentry.

Miss Mary Watts, garden supervisor for the John Burroughs District, in a well chosen speech, commended pupils for their good work and urged them to keep up interest for the coming year.

A letter of commendation from Supt. J. G. Collicott to the building and to each winner accompanied the prizes.

On Wednesday, Dec. 8, a number of the Crego Guild Sunday School class of Glenwood church gathered at the home of Mrs. Bulah Lindermood, 130 South Hague Ave., to spend the day. At noon a dinner was served, the afternoon being spent in pleasant social chat. Those present were: Mrs. Almeda Leach, Mrs. Mary C. Daugherty, Mrs. Delbert B. Ong, Mrs. Elizabeth Goul, Mrs. Ella Marshall, Mrs. Marsh, Miss Dora Major, Mrs. McElrith, Mrs. M. V. Fullmer, Mrs. M. Ketchem, Mrs. E. A. Bright Mrs. Williams and Miss Bulah Lindermood.

Ogden Ave., won highest score, 99.8 per cent in a recent baby contest at Muncie, Ind., in which there were 102 contestants, being adjudged Muncie's best baby. Carolyn is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Halford McNaughton (Frances Oyler), Muncie, Ind.

BURGESS AVE. U. B. REVIVAL

Closes Sunday With An All-day Meeting—Mass Meeting at 2 p. m.

Meetings have been most successful, large numbers making start in Christian life. Mr. and Mrs. Delbert Shaw, singing evangelists of Muncie, Ind., have proven a real blessing to the community, and many homes are happier because of their work here. Their messages in song and upon the musical saw have not only helped those who have attended the meetings, but have been broadcasted through station W. A. I. U. to unknown numbers.

The attendance at the services has been exceptionally good from the beginning, the spiritual life of the church has been quickened, many have professed conversion, and joined the church, and the whole community has felt the power of God working upon the hearts of the people.

A special community mass meeting will be held Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock. The orchestra from the Washington Avenue U. B. church will render a musical program to be followed by a special address by the pastor, Rev. C. R. Miller upon the subject, "Dare-Devils vs. Dare-Saints." Fellowship dinner in the basement at noon. Friends and members bring your baskets and stay all day. Everybody welcome.

TUESDAY EVE., DECEMBER 21

Wants Every Hilltop Boy and Girl to Come Out to See Him.

Santa Claus and his famous team of reindeer will pay a visit to the Hilltop Tuesday evening, Dec. 21st from 7 to 8:30 o'clock—and Santa is very anxious to meet every boy and girl of the Hilltop and have them meet his Esquimo helpers and talk to his reindeers of which they have heard so much.

While on the Hilltop with his helpers and reindeers Santa will spend his time on West Broad street between Highland and Hague avenues, so it behooves every child who wants to see him to be some place on West Broad between the hours of 7 and 8:30 o'clock on that evening. While Santa is here on the Hilltop he or one of his Esquimo helpers will give each boy and girl a stick of candy. For them to get this candy he makes only one condition and that is that they be good boys and girls.

A committee from the Hilltop Business Men's association made a call on Santa at his reindeer park last week and he assured them he would visit the Hilltop children with his helpers and reindeer on this date.

F. L. Suizberger was chairman of the committee that called upon him. Now kiddies, don't disappoint Santa, but be sure and meet him and his helpers on Tuesday evening, Dec. 21, between 7 and 8:30 o'clock.

Mr. and Mrs. P. J. Griffin, 178 N. Warren Ave., announce the birth of a seven pound daughter, Margaret Ellen, on Thursday, Dec. 9.

Miss Marilla Laycock of Toledo was the week-end guest of honor Sunday at a dinner party given in her honor by Miss Betty Munyan, 174 S. Warren Ave. Those present were: Mr. Howard Potter of Toledo, Mr. C. Smith Kauffman and Mr. Ramon Miller of Dayton all students at Ohio State University, Miss Elizabeth Raether, Miss Janice Munyan, Mrs. Margaret A. Gibson, Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Munyan and the hostess.

OBITUARIES

MRS. MINNIE D. ZEISLER

In failing health for the past eight weeks, Mrs. Zeisler, wife of John Zeisler, 80 North Roys avenue, died at her home, Tuesday, Dec. 7, at the age of 72 years. Death was attributed to a complication of ailments. Besides her husband, she leaves 4 sons, 4 daughters, 13 grandchildren, a great-grandchild. Funeral services were held at the residence, Friday afternoon, Dec. 10, at 1:30, with additional services at St. Matthew's Lutheran church, of which Mrs. Zeisler was a member, at 2 o'clock. Interment was made in Green Lawn cemetery.

MRS. MARY VOLP.

Mrs. Mary Volp, aged 68 years, succumbed at the family residence, 278 North Warren avenue, Tuesday night, Dec. 7, following an illness of a complication of ailments. Mrs. Volp, who was a native of Germany, was the wife of John Volp, and she leaves, in addition to her husband, three daughters, two sons and two sisters.

Funeral services were held Friday, Dec. 10 at 2 p. m. Interment in Green Lawn cemetery.

MRS. MABEL BRAGG.

The names of pupils who are enrolled on Highland's Honor Roll appear below. These pupils, according to the usual custom at Highland, consist of those whose grades, at the last report, were all A's and B's with at least half A's. This, therefore, is considered a great honor, and the pupils below are greatly to be congratulated. Parents are asked to urge their children to greater effort, with this goal ahead as an inspiration.

ERROR IN DATE OF FREE SHOW

Through a misunderstanding in dates the Record unintentionally caused much disappointment to several hundred Hilltop children last Saturday morning when they appeared at the Rivoli theater to attend the free show that had been announced through the Record columns. Just who is to blame for the error has not been decided. Nevertheless Manager Petras assures us that the show will be put on next Saturday morning, Dec. 18, at 10:30 o'clock, and hopes to see all the children out again at that time.

MEANT TO BE USEFUL

There are a number of things that this pretty lady can do besides merely being pretty, and therefore she presents herself as a pleasing Christmas gift for other dainty ladies. A little doll torso, mounted on a wire frame, is dressed up in panniered skirt and surplice bodice, like a colonial belle. Her dress may be of crisp silk or of fine crepe paper and she wears a cluster of little flowers on her corsage, and a band of ribbon about her hair. Sometimes she shades an electric light, and sometimes conceals a telephone, or she may cover a bottle of toilet water.

Last night I happened to be passing a store window on West Broad street when I was attracted to the assemblage of "kiddies" gazing eagerly in at the window which was filled with various toys.

Of this life-like group one small boy was particularly active and very able to express himself in high pitched tones. As could be expected they were discussing the possibilities of the coming Christmas and the particular small boy spoke up, "Well, have it your way, but I say they ain't no Santa Claus."

"Oh, how do you know?" inquired

"Cause," explained the first, "They ain't no airplane that's fast enough to fly around the world in a day and I know Santa Claus' reindeers ain't as fast as airplanes."

LARGER POTATO CROP REPORTED

Estimates released Nov. 1 by the U. S. department of agriculture show that the potato crop in the United States is 25,000,000 bushels larger than last year and 35,000,000 less than the average crop the last five years. The quality of the potatoes is lower than any season the last 25 years. This indicates more than the usual loss in sorting and storage.

Blight, made more damaging by the wet fall, C. R. Arnold, economist at the university says, is a big factor in this loss. Ohio ranks tenth among states in potato growing. Maine, New York, Michigan, Wisconsin, Minnesota, Pennsylvania, Idaho, Colorado and Washington rank higher.

Big Increase In Building Operations

November building operations in Columbus easily broke records for the same month a year ago.

A total of 466 permits for structures valued at $1,697, 100 were issued during the month against 400 permits valued at $1,233,800 in November, 1925.

Permits were issued for 155 dwellings against 135 last November, while 200 garages were authorized against 166.

H. D. Hastings, Manager

JACK had not been home in seven years. They had gone quickly enough in the way that years will go, but now that he was back, it seemed as though they had been longer. He had missed so much.

It was not that things had changed. Of course, there were changes in the looks of the town. There were few sleighs lined up along the main street; instead there were automobiles.

He had been thinking how the sleigh-bells would jingle as the horses pulled the sleighs over the crisp winter snow. But instead of sleigh-bells there were the sounds of firm rubber tires creaking over the frozen, snow-covered streets. There had been automobiles used in that winter of seven years past but they had not been predominant. The sleighs had a chance.

Now the sleighs were quite missing. The automobiles had charge.

He wondered if he stayed away for another seven years if he would see lights from airplanes and hear them buzzing over the buildings. Yet even if he did, he did not feel as though the place would really change.

There was something about the town that would never change. They might build more modern shops, airplane landings might take the places of so many garages as the garages had taken the places of blacksmith shops, but the essential qualities of the town would never change.

Always Christmas would be Christmas here with its holly-filled windows, its wreaths over doors, its trees, for Christmas lining the main street. Pointless that was the way Christmas would always be in many places. But here it would seem more important. Christmas would be deep in the whole heart of the town which always expanded and became so generous and big and open at this season of the year.

Probably because it was, Christmas did seem different here from that of any other place.

He remembered the Christmas before. There had been gayly decorated shops, hurried, happy shoppers, lighted Christmas trees in the streets, crisp snow and Christmas greetings.

But it hadn't been the same. Christmas seemed to belong so much more to his own home. In that other place he had felt a little lonely and a little out of it. But here he had no feeling of loneliness. Even though he was just back and as yet he had met few of the people he knew and had vaguely recognized some who were grown up now who had been children before he left, he did not feel out of it.

They might not recognize him, but he was at home and he was happy and loneliness had been banished from his heart in a gloriously complete fashion.

He had gone home as soon as he had arrived. And now he had come up to get the mail. It was not that he expected any mail. His Christmas cards and boxes of cigars and neckties and such would be sent to his business address, for it was not until the last minute that he had been sure he could make the long trip and reach home in time for Christmas Eve. His telegram had come before him, but his presents had already been sent out, and his mail would be waiting for him at his office. To be sure, he knew the family would quickly and marvelously find little gifts to put at his place on the Christmas gift table. But the going for the mail was simply a desire to do what he had always done, to mingle with the people, to see his own townsfolk.

It surely was wonderful to be back again. Wonderful beyond even what he had dreamed it would be. How lucky that the train had been on time and he had been able to have a long Christmas Eve.

Christmas trains, he thought, should always be on time. Moments at Christmas mean so much.

He was leaving the post office. He had seen a number of people he knew. Just outside he met a group of men who had been graduated from high school in his class. They were picking up some of the new falling snow and throwing snowballs at a group of laughing, red-cheeked girls.

"You remember them," he was told. And then it was explained to him that these grown-up young people were the youngsters of seven years ago.

"He joined in the snowball battle. Evidently he was a good shot, for a loud shriek from one of the girls proclaimed that fact.

"Oh, oh, that's not fair! Your snowball went right into my face. Lucky it was fresh snow or I'd have finished you!"

"I'm so sorry," he said to her and recognized her then as that nice little Adams kid he used to teach to balance on her bicycle and whose school bag he sometimes carried home for her.

She had been younger than he but she had always been such a good little sport, ready to enter into everything, eager to try.

"I'm Jack, you remember me, don't you, Connie?"

Constance Adams gasped just a little.

"Why, of course I do!" she exclaimed. "But I didn't expect to find you hitting me with snowballs. That's a fine kind of greeting!"

How beautifully she had changed. All her same nice essential qualities seemed just the same, but her changes were merely additional attributes. She dressed with more tastes than she had when a youngster, she was graceful now instead of tom-boyish.

She was like the town. In its spirit, its homeyness would always be the same, no matter with what succeeding fashions and customs it kept apace.

"Look here," he said abruptly. "Would you mind if I left the mail home and then came around for a nice chat with you?"

"I won't be home until ever so late," she said, "or only for a moment at any rate. I should be there now to get the baskets with the presents. I haven't delivered any of my gifts yet."

"Couldn't I come, too?"

"Indeed you, you'd be a great help in carrying the baskets. I always did like school-bags and baskets carried for me."

She looked up at him and laughed.

The general snowballing had stopped. Groups were going off together, all bent on their Christmas Eve activities.

"I'll be obliging," Constance said. "You take the mail down and I'll be ready as soon as you come. I won't keep you waiting. They do that, don't they, in stories?"

She stopped a little embarrassed. "Besides I want to get through," she added firmly. "I've so many places where I must go."

It sounded in his ears like a beautiful refrain, almost like a melody. "I won't keep you waiting. I won't keep you waiting."

He said it over and over again to himself. Nor did he keep her waiting. He was there in scarcely any time at all. His family had understood. They had seemed happy that he had found himself so quickly at home in the town. It was what they had dimly feared he would not be.

NO TUBERCULOSIS IN OHIO RABBITS

Reports of tuberculosis in wild rabbits are groundless, a state department of health bulletin said this week.

"Incidental to the opening of the hunting season, reports have been reaching the department that rabbits in various parts of the state are infected with tuberculosis," the bulletin said. "These reports have been investigated by the department. So far as can be determined, there is no evidence anywhere, at any time, of tuberculosis in wild rabbits; although in laboratory tests wild rabbits have been infected and tuberculosis have developed.

Rabbits have been found this year to have parasitic infections which may decimate the rabbit population, but are harmless to humans if the meat is cooked thoroughly, the bulletin said.

THE CHRISTMAS SNOWBALL

What a gay thing that was—taking around Christmas presents in baskets, in wishing people Christmas cheer and holiday greetings, in having doors opened to one where a whiff of balsam and shadows of firelight sent a glow over one's whole heart and mind and soul.

It was late, very late, when they got back to her house. He supposed he should wait. He supposed he should keep quiet—for a little longer than this. But he couldn't. Besides, it was Christmas and at Christmas, feelings weren't supposed to be hidden. One wasn't ashamed of sentiment, one didn't barricade one's affections.

"Connie, you may say I don't know, but I do," he began. "I knew at once. I think I've always known. It has been there, unrealized perhaps, but you know even as a kid you were unusual. You weren't like any of the others—all nice enough—but you!

"I wish I'd made a hit with something other than a snowball!" he ended.

"I'm rather glad it was a snowball," Constance answered slowly. "It was like getting back at once to the days when I was a child and you were so nice to me and let me be included in so many of the older boys' and girls' games."

"I'd like to include you, to exclusively include you, in my whole life," he said gently. "Couldn't you tell me that you wouldn't keep me waiting?"

"Well, maybe I could," she said, very seriously, "and maybe I'd mean it, too! Merry Christmas, old dear!"

"Only six years older, young smarty, but Merry Christmas just the same!"

And the old town just seemed to sparkle and twinkle that Christmas Eve as it never had before.

DO YOUR XMAS MAILING EARLY

Parcels post mail and packages are being received at the Columbus postoffice in daily increasing volume. Christmas mail, especially incoming matter, is expected to increase materially within the next few days, Postmaster Tibbetts said Saturday.

Patrons are taking advantage of the special window for the immediate handling of first class business mail. Business houses are observing the requirement that matter mailed at this special window must be sorted into local and outgoing packages and properly faced.

Gifts for the entire family, Seiller's.

Camp Fire Girls

The eigth grade group of Camp Fire Girls at Highland Junior High under the leadership of Miss Hatch chose as their name "Tutahi," which was the name of the boat which Miss Hatch went to Alaska on last summer. They took each letter and secured a word for it, which they will try to live up to. T, true; U, useful; T, trustworthy; S, sincere; H, happy, and I, industrious.

This group entertained the "Odakonta's" with a Thanksgiving party at the home of Audrey Earl, 338 S. Ogden. For Thanksgiving the girls personally distributed a basket of fruit at the Franklin County Infirmary, where they also left jellies and preserves.

Mrs. K. E. Lybarger, 2029 Fairmont Ave., spent the week-end with her mother and father, Mr. and Mrs. A. N. Tracy, at their new home on the National road near Etna.

The Bethany Bible Class will meet at the home of Mrs. E. E. Gillilan, 35 N. Hague Ave., on Friday from 2 to 4 p. m. The lesson study found in Leviticus beginning with the 16th chapter, deals with the subject of the scapegoat and the appointment of the annual day of attonement. These lessons are very interesting and helpful and a cordial invitation is extended to any one who desires to join the class.

TO WIDEN HIGH STREET IN SPRING

Announcement was made Saturday by Service Director Duffy that work on the widening of North High street between Fifth avenue and Dodridge street would begin in the spring, contrate for the work being awarded Saturday to the Yale Construction Co. on bid of $83,503.

The work includes the widening, three feet on each side of the street, setting back of curbs and poles.

When this work is completed the bottle neck between Fifth and Arcadia avenues, which has proven a traffic problem many years, will have been eliminated and High street established as a through thoroughfare capable of taking care of demands made by increasing traffic.

WEST STUDENTS GIVE TWO PLAYS

Members of Green Domino Club Present "Gifted Givers" and "Fiat Lux" Last Friday

Two Christmas plays were given at West High school Friday by members of the Green Domino Club. The cast of the "Gifted Givers" was as follows: Doris Stewart, Jack Polty, Edith Gibson, Isabelle Hughes, Isabel Lavely, John Feder, Robert McKinley and Edith McMaken.

The play represents an afternoon on the week preceding Christmas. The young persons' problem in buying Christmas gifts forms the theme.

Those who took part in "Fiat Lux" were: Victor Stiver, John Wagnitz, Christina McKenzie, Howard Shonting and James Tharp.

This play tells how an unbeliever is made to believe in God by hearing waifs chanting their Christmas carols.

NEW SERIAL STORY

Beginning in this issue is the first installment of another new serial story, "The Double Deception," written for the Record by Mrs. O. E. Carleton, Hilltop author. Many Record readers have enjoyed Mrs. Carleton's other stories we have published, "For Freedom" being the last one, and we bespeak for them an equal amount of pleasure in reading this later story, which we believe is by far the author's best. You will find the first installment on page 2 of this issue. Read it and enjoy it.

JOINS HILLTOP B. & L. STAFF

Carl Johnson Takes up Active Work With Hilltop Institution.

Due to the fact that the Hilltop Building and Loan has almost doubled its business the past year the work has become too heavy for Mr. Culp, secretary and Miss Glick, cashier.

Mr. Carl Johnson who was with Mr. Culp at the City National Bank for 10 years has taken up active duties with the institution. With this combination the Hilltop Building and Loan expects to be able to give much better service to the community.

Mr. Johnson has a wide acquaintance in the city, is of Welch decent, married 36 years of age and served about 3 years as lieutenant in the U. S. Navy during the World War. After the war he became associated with the Goodyear Tire Co. as office and credit manager, which position he resigned to take up his duties with the Hilltop Building and Loan.

Will Sing Carols

The Glenwood young people will spend Friday evening, being Christmas Eve., caroling among the shut-ins. This is an annual event among the Glenwood young people that brings much cheer to many who are not able to get out at Christmas time. All young people are asked to meet at the church at 6:30 p. m. Ways of conveyance will be provided.

BOWLING SCORES

WEST "Y" CHURCH LEAGUE

(Friday, Dec. 17)

Hope Memorial Presbyterians took all three games from St. John's Lutherans last Friday night at the Central Y. M. C. A. alleys, while West Park M. E. and Gift St. M. E. were taking the odd games from Hillcrest Baptists and Glenwood M. E. Dayton of West Park had three nice games of 214, 208 and 210, while A. Fox of Gift St. M. E. was close behind him with scores of 201, 210, 193. Other games over the 200 mark for the evening were: Roeck, 207; G. Welsh, 208; Ward, 210.

Hope Memorial	773	867	842

GIRL DEAD FROM BURNS

Clothing of Marie Smith Ignited When She Pours Gasoline On Fire.

Delight in seeing a pretty fire led to the death of Marie Helen Smith, age 9, on Friday night, Dec. 18, at her home 185 S. Princeton Ave.

Her mother, Mrs. Addie Smith, aged 38, is also suffering from arm and face burns which she received when she attempted to extinguish the burning clothing of her young daughter. She was taken to Mt. Carmel Hospital.

Marie had gone to the furnace and looking in decided that the fire was not large enough and so poured gasoline on to the hot coals in order to make it burn "brighter and prettier." The gasoline can exploded in her hands and the liquid was splattered over her clothing. Flames from the furnace spread to her clothing.

Her mother was ironing in the kitchen and heard the explosion and screams of her daughter and ran to her aid. The little girl was found on the floor with the flames about her and screaming. Here the mother attempted to extinguish the flames and her own clothes caught fire. She was unable to do so and ran to the street calling for aid. A man passing by came and tore the clothing from her body.

Mrs. Smith explained that she and Helen had just returned from the grocery store and Helen had gone to the basement to put some coal on the furnace.

STARLING WINS FROM HIGHLAND

Highland Avenue Junior High lost another seasonal basketball tilt last Friday. Starling left the "chelsea boomers" with the long end of a 14-8 score.

The Starling teamwork proved too much for the Hilltoppers. Highland has been totally [illegible] Highland plays at Barrett on Jan. 7.

The annual Christmas party of the New-So club was held on Wednesday evening at the home of Mrs. H. C. Shetrone, 75 N. Chase Ave. A pot luck dinner at 7 o'clock, and a basket-luck drawing of Christmas presents, were features of the function. Those present were: The Misses Marie Raether and Mary Metzger; Mrs. G. W. Lose, Mrs. J. Klinger, Mrs. C. H. Lose, Mrs. F. W. Raether, Mrs. C. E. Raether, Mrs. Adens Smith, Mrs. L. O. Pearch, Mrs. O. Davis, Mrs. J. E. Wilson, Mrs. O. P. Neutzel, Mrs. V. E. Wolf, Mrs. C. Sallee and the hostess

Eureka chapter, Young Women's Missionary society of Hope Memorial Presbyterian church, wish to extend heartiest thanks and sincere appreciations to all who helped so kindly in making the Christmas party for the children of Prospect a success.

GIVE RING TO MRS. SHIRKEY

A Pythian Sister ring was presented Mrs. J. R. Shirkey on her birthday, by members of the degree team of Dumona Temple, Pythian Sisters, who with other guests, were entertained by Mr. and Mrs. Shirkey at their home 88 Whitethorne Ave., on the evening of December 9. The following were present: Mr. and Mrs. A. W. Cline, Mrs. W. L. Bland, Mr. and Mrs. Burley Morrison, Mr. and Mrs. V. R. Mason, Mr. and Mrs. John Thompson, Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Knisely, Mr. and Mrs. G. E. Miller, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Prushing, Mr. and Mrs. George Griffith, Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Mayfield, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Wagner, Mr. and Mrs. C. F. Brixner Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Ballard, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Tanner, Mr. and Mrs. George Beltsch, Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Reed, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Bibler, Mr. and Mrs. T. C. Van Horn, Mr. and Mrs. George Eichenlaub, Mr. and Mrs. George Kilyworth, Mr. and Mrs. Jonas Aid, Miss Marvel Bland, Mrs. George Raymond, Mrs. E. S. Bland, Mr. and Mrs. Doane Morgan, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Baumbusch, Mr. and Mrs. G. Reed, Mr. and Mrs. L. High, Mr. and Mrs. Emmett Hoover, and Mr. Ed Irwin. Music for dancing was by the Baumbusch orchestra, pianist, Mrs. Lulu Tanner.

The W. H. S. M. Club met at the home of Miss Martha Skipper on North Eureka avenue. Entertainment was furnished by C. Dailey of the Boston Academy of Music. After a brief sewing session, refreshments were served to the following: Gertrude McCloud, Margaret Ashner, Helen Hartley, Mildred Schuman, Mary Wiseman, Mary Logan, Florence Ortman, Marie Fisher and Martha Skipper. The next meeting will be held Thursday at the home Miss Marie Fisher, 87 N. Eureka Ave.

XMAS TREE AT JOHN BURROUGHS

The teachers, pupils and a number of patrons of John Burroughs school, assembled in the auditorium of the building on Friday afternoon, Dec. 17, for the Christmas program.

A beautifully decorated Christmas tree in the center of the stage was a feature of much interest.

Miss Mary Phelan led the carol singing, assisted by Mrs Edna Watts at the piano

The annual Christmas party of the Hilltop W. C. T. U. was held Friday evening at the home of Mrs. W. M. Ferguson, 90 N. Warren Ave. The short business meeting was followed by a program and plans were completed for filling the Christmas boxes to be sent to the Soldiers' Home at Dayton. An exchange of gifts and a musical program followed.

SPRINGFIELD DEFEATS WEST

However Coach Fuller Holds Out That Championship Chances Are Good.

West High school lost its first basketball tilt of the season when they visited Springfield and returned with the score of 27-13 piled up against them.

Springfield High opened with a good score and held the lead throughout the game. Springfield lost to Columbus Central a few days ago.

The Westerners play at Zanesville on Dec. 22 and at Lancaster Dec. 23.

The West team has much better chances for basketball material now that they have a floor to practice on.

Johnny Fiesta, [illegible] captain of this year's team, has been declared ineligible. Another star by the name of Wilson is in the same boat.

Coach Fuller is holding out that chances of a championship team are not good. He has plenty of good guard material in Kelley, Kline, Gump and [illegible] for steady places on the team.

Mrs. E. E. Alford, 926 Sullivant Ave., entertained a number of ladies Tuesday night to a Christmas party: The guests were: Mrs. Bert McGinness, Washington, D. C.; Mrs. F. I. Woollett, Mrs. Mae Wyman, Mrs. Ida Murphy, Mrs. Bell Hull, Mrs. Charles Davis, Mrs. S. Schisler, Mrs. Ray Mettle, Mrs. E. M. Bale, Mrs. G. G. Berlew, Mrs. H. S. Brown, Mrs J P Brown, Mrs. H. L. Calboun, Mrs. L. Cornell, Mrs. F. W. Crawford, Mrs. Earl Davis, Mrs. O. E. Davis, Mrs. W. S. Davis, Mrs. G. H. Day, Mrs. Frank Dennis, Mrs. Charles Doxer, Mrs. E. D. Evans, Mrs. W. D. XMAS PROGRAM AT HIGHLAND

A very interesting musical assembly was held at Highland Avenue Junior High school on Friday at 1:30 o'clock.

The program began by the whole school singing "Joy to the World." Prof. Reilly then called the assembly to order and made a few announcements after which a chorus made up of 40 children sang several Christmas songs.

The 6-A class presented a playlet called "A Christmas Carol" taken from Dicken's story of the same title. It was very interesting and well worked out.

The Girls Glee Club sang two selections and the 7B grade sang two numbers. The assembly closed by the whole school singing "Holy Night."

A. H. Budd left Saturday night, Dec. 11, for Carson, Ia., to join Mrs. Budd, who was called away three weeks ago by the serious illness of an aged aunt. Their stay will be indefinite.

WEST CHURCH LEAGUE ELECTS

J. A. Davis Chosen President of Basketball League—Season Opens Jan. 4.

At a meeting of the West Church Basketball Leagues held recently in the office of the recreation department, J. A. Davis, 2929 Crescent Dr. was elected president. Mr. Davis is a well known business man of the West Side being very much interested in young men and boys activities.

Mr. W. L. Roller, 129 S. Burgess Ave. was the choice for vice president. Mr. Roller is active in young men's work at Glenwood M. E. church and is employed by the H. V. R. R.

Mr. Frank Colburn, 327 S. Burgess Ave., carried the honors for treasurer. Mr. Colburn has for several years been the sponsor of many West Side boys athletic teams. He is at present in the real estate business.

The season opens Jan. 4 at the new West Market Hall which has been entirely remodeled and will be used exclusively for a West Side recreation center. There are a few franchises still open in the Senior, Intermediate and Junior leagues. If two more teams may be had in the senior league, two leagues will be formed, class A and class B. One or two teams can be used in both the intermediate and junior leagues.

Any church or Sunday school being interested in entering a team in any of these leagues should get in touch with the city recreation department at once.

W. H. Waite will again have charge of the West Side activities both Glenwood shelterhouse and West Market hall, he will have competent assistants and will co-operate with the league officers in making the West Church League 100 per cent better than last year.

OBITUARY

MRS. SARAH E. SWAIN

Mrs. Sarah E. Swain, 67, wife of Lieutenant Joseph E. Swain of No. 10 [illegible] of the City Fire Dept. died last Thursday at her home, 60 S. Park Ave., after a few hours illness due to intestinal trouble. Her death was very unexpected by members of the family.

She is survived by her husband, two sons, Francis E. and Albert J., veterans of the World War; two daughters, Mrs. J. A. Luchesi, World War nurse and Miss Alice E. Swain, nurse at University Hospital; two grandchildren and a sister, Mrs. John Compliman of Columbus.

Funeral services were held in Aloysius Church, Saturday morning and interment followed at the St. Joseph's cemetery.

RICHARD DAVID DALE

The funeral of Richard David Dale, son of Mr. and Mrs. David Dale, 446 S. Harris Ave., was held at the family residence on Monday, Dec. 20. Richard was a pupil in the first grade at John Burroughs school where his many likeable qualities made him a great favorite. He died at Grant hospital on Dec. 17, from complications following an attack of diptheria. Burial was made in Green Lawn cemetery.

XMAS PROGRAM AT P.-T. A. MEET

The December meeting of the Highland Avenue Parent-Teachers' Association was one of unusual interest and the steadily increasing attendance of that organization taxed the capacity of the portable school building in which the sessions are held.

The first and second grade pupils, under the supervision of Misses Gerrity and Zinn, sang Christmas carols interspersed with jolly St. Nick songs holding promise of wonderful things for Christmas day.

A playlet, supervised by Miss Burington, given by the sixth grade pupils, "Dickens' Christmas Carol," showed marked talent on the part of the players and brought the beautiful lesson of the true Christmas spirit forcibly home to the audience.

Mrs. Ives, whose talks over the radio on food values, etc., have been always interesting, was the speaker of the evening, taking as her subject "Nutrition" and developing same in a most practical and helpful way.

A short business meeting followed after which Santa Claus suddenly appeared bearing a bundle of candy canes for the kiddies.

Adjournment was then made to the school building proper where a fine exhibit of work done in the Art Department, under the direction of Mr. Birmingham, was on display.

"The Junior High School—why and what it is" was announced for the January meeting.

Miss Ethel Greiner of the Hilltop School of Music will spend the holidays at home with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Greiner, Westwood, Cincinnati, Ohio.

EXPERT EXPLAINS NEED FOR BUDGET

Says Same Methods Needed in Home as Are Used in Business Houses.

Tell your money where to go, never ask it where it went.

So says Geneva M. Hane, extension specialist in home management at Ohio State University, in reminding housekeepers that it is time to plan another budget of family expenditures for the coming year.

Any business run with no plan of spending would go bankrupt in a very short time. Three-fourths of the yearly income, about 53 billion dollars, is spent for the home.

Haphazard spending in the family business bungles the family living and causes much waste and worry.

Buyers in stores are paid higher salaries than salesmen. The homemaker who makes a business of her spending and studies to make herself a better buyer will make a real contribution to the family income, Miss Hane observes.

A budget if often confused with an account of income and expenditure. It is a definite plan for estimating the probable expenditures for the coming years. It is a pattern or a blueprint which is used as a guide in spending during the year.

The Double Deception

By MRS. E. O. CARLSTON

Author of "For Freedom."

Mr. Frank Morgan sat beside the desk in the library of his home, apparently deeply interested in the business letter he was reading; but a close observer would notice that although his eyes were directed on the sheet of paper before him, his thoughts were elsewhere.

The saddened expression of his face told of a great sorrow. Only two weeks previous to this cold November day, his dearest earthly companion, his sweetheart of his boyhood days, and the wife of his more mature years, had been taken from him, leaving behind nothing to console him for his loss but the tiny baby girl, who had entered this world only a few hours before the mother's spirit departed therefrom. As Mr. Morgan's mind went over the years he and his wife had spent together, recalled nearly ever look and word that had passed between them, it seemed almost impossible that he could live without her. How empty the years would be!

He was aroused from his reverie by the cry of his infant daughter. As a result of his extreme mental depression, he almost hated the sound of that voice. "The cause of her mother's death," he thought. He arose to his feet and walked mechanically through the big house from one room to the other, aimlessly. Every article of furniture reminded him anew of the one who had gone. It seemed as though she should call a cheery word to him from one of the large, luxuriously furnished rooms as he passed through the long hallway that led to the nursery.

Miss Bradford, the nurse, who was to have the care of the young child, chancing to glance toward the door between the hall and the nursery, saw a man's figure advancing toward this room. Could that be Mr. Morgan—this man with the slow, lagging step and significant droop of the shoulders? Although only thirty-five years of age, one would judge him to be at least fifty. As he entered the room, she could see the haggard expression of his face. He scarcely looked at her, but walked past her toward the tiny cradle in the corner. Without the least change in his expression or manner, he abruptly turned and left the room.

Miss Bradford sat down again.

"Poor man," she mused to herself. "I do not envy his mental attitude. He will go crazy unless he can find something to occupy his time."

Outside the wind howled, as only a November wind can howl. No other noise broke the stillness of that dreary winter evening, except the monotonous ticking of the old clock which was an heirloom in the Morgan family, and the soft gentle breathing of the new born baby. As if in answer to Miss Bradford's wish that Mr. Morgan had something to occupy his time, a shrill whistle pierced the night air. Recently a railroad company had paid Mr. Morgan a large amount of money for a corner of his estate, and now a locomotive and three coaches of the Great Western Railway System passed swiftly near the Morgan home twice daily. The whistle was repeated as the train neared a crossroad. Then a loud crash was heard. There had been an accident.

As Miss Bradford doubted whether her employer would sufficiently awaken from his deep depression to hasten to the scene of the wreck, she went to search for him, intending to summon the servants herself, if Mr. Morgan did not. She found him at the opposite end of the hall ringing for his colored servant, Jim, who quickly answered the summons, knowing it was not advisable to do otherwise.

"Jim, I want you to go with me to the railroad track. There has been an accident, and many have probably been killed and injured. Come on, and don't stand there gapping like a fool," he added sternly.

"But, massa, I'se 'fraid o' dead people—so skeered I'm nearly white in de face. Don't make me go over dar. I'd see ghosts the rest ub my life," and Jim shuddered at the thought.

"You'll see ghosts the rest of your life, if you don't do as I say, Jim, and be without a home besides. I won't have a coward working for me. Now, bestir yourself."

Jim was even more afraid of his master than of any phantom he might see, so a few moments later found Mr. Morgan leading the way along a narrow path, with the quivering Jim reluctantly following. After a walk of several minutes they reached the scene. On the side of the track nearest Mr. Morgan's home, at the foot of a small, but steep embankment, lay the wrecked train. As this part of the country was thinly populated, only a very few persons had arrived to offer assistance. Mr. Morgan advanced toward the brakeman.

"What caused the wreck?" he asked.

WELCOME PHONE SCREEN

There are many ways of making pretty telephone screens, and they are acceptable gifts for either men or women friends. The simplest are are made with figured cretonne for covering, and plain sateen for lining. The cretonne is stretched over a foundation of very thick cardboard, and the sateen over a like foundation of thin cardboard, using a stainless glue to fasten the fabrics to place. Then these covered foundations are glued together. A narrow strip of cretonne glued between the two foundations will form hinges for joining the sections.

INDIANS WITH A BROGUE

Chauncey M. Depew tells of a visit to New York with his father. He was ten years old, and the long ride by train was a great adventure. Father and son went through the crowds of lower Broadway, finally reaching the museum of P. T. Barnum. Inside, two Indians were on display, made known by the vivid posters which Mr. Barnum knew so well how to devise.

"My father looked at the posters, bought a pair of tickets, and we followed the crowd," says Mr. Depew. "There, on a high platform, stood two Indians, supposedly chiefs of the Pawnees and Sioux. They were the fiercest fellows anybody could imagine, dressed in feathers and paint, bearing every mark of the wild frontier. Occasionally one of them would give voice to a war whoop that made the museum ring and the crowd jump. I could see the whole drama of their pursuit and capture, as Mr. Barnum outlined the story on his posters. After a while the crowd thinned a bit and there were only a few people near the platform, when one of the chiefs said to the other:

"'Moike, if this heat don't let up a bit I'm thinkin' we'll be nothing but grease spots.'

"It may interest the reader to know that the brogue of the Indians astonished me, but nothing more. Some days had passed before I felt misgivings. Little boys in the forties were not so worldly wise as now. And I most reluctantly accepted the idea that an Indian chief could hardly have an Irish brogue."—Forward.

Her CHRISTMAS PRAYER

It was cold along the Seine that Christmas Eve. There was a thin rain, half snow, and a nasty, penetrating wind coming up from the river that sent chills trembling down one's back.

Little Juliette Caret blew her breath against her hands to warm them and pulled her ragged little coat more tightly about her. She was the sole support of a family of four—this little, shivering tot, who stood always before the door of Notre Dame selling holy cards and medals to people as they passed in or out of the church.

Her mother was very ill and the three other children of the family—younger than Juliette—were too little to do any kind of work. How she would have loved to bring home something very special for them for Christmas.

On her way to the church this evening she had stopped to look in at the window of a patisserie shop and her heart was taken with a great cake in the center—all white with dots of large red cherries around the sides. The price was ten francs. She took out a little worn purse and counted—two francs, five sous. Slowly she closed the purse and put it back in her pocket. The cake was out of the question. It would have to be a loaf of bread only.

All evening she had stood in front of the church, but had made almost nothing. Great numbers of people were coming to the midnight mass, but they all passed by little Juliette with only an annoyed "Non, non, non." A little later there was almost nobody coming. She could her the organ playing. Mass had begun.

She would have hurried home but her feet were numb with the cold.

Slipped Quietly Into a Seat of the Large Church.

Besides, she thought, she really ought to go in and say a little prayer for her mother.

She opened the huge door of the cathedral, slipped quietly into a seat of the large church and prayed fervently for her mother and little sisters; prayed, too, that she might somehow, be able to buy them a cake for Christmas.

The heat of the church after intense cold outside made her drowsy. She went fast to sleep and her head fell heavily against the shoulder of a man sitting next to her.

The man was an American. He was at first annoyed when he saw the bowsed head with its dirty cap against his coat sleeve, but on second glance at the pathetic little figure he was overcome with genuine emotion. "Poor little devil," he thought. "wonder what's been your short history and what will it be in the future." He saw in her dirty little hands the strings of medals and the box of holy cards she had been trying to sell. He reached into his pocket, pulled out two crisp 1,000-franc notes, folded them carefully and placed them on top of the cards.

PRIZED HAND-CRAFT TOYS

She who is ingenious with paint and needle can make many amusing Christmas gifts, including toys that are more highly valued than those the factories turn out. Turkish toweling, unbleached domestics, bits of bright-colored flannel and felt, with a little box of water colors, are mainly the stock in trade of the toymaker. Here is a little chick made of turkish toweling and wearing a red flannel cape. A shoe button makes his eye; a bit of domestic his yellow bill; his feet are whittled from wood and his body stuffed with cotton.

A bluff old colonel was telling a jungle story in the club coffee room, relates the London Telegraph. "Yes," he exclaimed dramatically, 'it was in the dead of night. Outside was a roving elephant bent on destruction. I I crept out and shot it dead in my pajamas."

Christmas Decorations and Novelties at Weber's.

Almost everyone had left the church when Juliette wakened. Mass was over; all the candles on the altar had been extinguished, the lights of the church were being put out. Juliette rubbed her eyes drowsily and with a [illegible] her medals to see that no one had taken any while she slept. They were all quite safe. She next turned to her box of cards and her eyes became two large moons. "Two thousand francs, two thousand francs!" She couldn't believe it. It was a miracle! Hadn't she prayed for money to buy her people a Christmas gift? She knelt down again, said a fervent prayer in thanksgiving; then gathered all her things together and ran quickly from the church—past the confisserie shop. It was closed, of course, but the white cake was still in the window. Tomorrow morning she would go there early and buy it—buy every good thing in the shop. And still there would be enough left to buy them all clothes in the after-Christmas sales. She leaped joyously in the air. She did not feel the cold now.

"Merry Christmas," she called to an old lady who passed her. "Merry Christmas to the whole world!"

We have at hand a letter from California saying the air is warm, sun is shining and doors are wide open. This sounds interesting. Wonder if they don't need a little of our breeze to keep them cooled off. They may have a bigger boom than Florida if this keeps up.

Mexico continues to be a little unruly and many are today claiming that China and Japan will unite forces with her. One war has just begun to wear off our minds when thoughts of another confront us. What does it all mean? Let's keep in mind the thousands of disabled veterans we have with us today as a result of the last turmoil. This should be reason enough for preventing another war.

HELIUM GAS AIDS SEA DIVERS

Helium, that rare gas which floats airships, is now being put to the novel use of aiding deep sea divers in their struggles at ocean bottom.

Experiments by the bureau of mines indicate that Helium's utility will be as great in the depths as it is in the heights and considerably more workable in practicle value. With its assistance, new low levels may be attained safely by the salvage worker under water.

Divers who work with the usual equipment suffer from what is known as "the bends" when their stay and exertions under the water are prolonged. The cause of this sometimes fatal ailment is the absorption by the divers' tissue of nitrogen which causes bubbles in bloodstreams and arteries.

Helium like nitrogen, is so inert and untransformable that it may be mixed with oxygen, forming a synthetic atmosphere, compressible for supply to divers and very nearly free of the tendency to produce the internal bubbles for which nitrogen is responsible.

Many long experiments were made by the mines bureau with animals and then the bureau's apparatus invented for the divers was turned over to the navy. Its first extensive utility was proven in the raising of the submarine S-51, sunk near Newport, R. I.

JADE TREES FLOURISH

From old and cultured China came the little "jade tree" which is so much admired everywhere. It has been imitated in many ways and has quaint, stiff flowers fashionable for decorative purposes. These are made in several ways: some of translucent shells, tinted in colors, others of ordinary fabric flowers dipped in clear shellac, and others of crepe paper, heavily painted with sealing wax paint, as in the tree pictured. Thread wire is used to support the edges of the petals and leaves and heavier wire wound with strips of paper for the stems. A pot or jardiniere holds the tree, which makes a lovly gift.

Recipes

Cereal and Bacon.

Make a porridge of cornmeal, or any of the usual breakfast cereals, and let them jell down cold. Cut in slices half an inch thick and fry in hot fat with broiled bacon. Maple syrup or honey, is offered with the cereal. Sometimes poached eggs are also served.

Mock Duck.

Three pounds round steak, one cup bread crumbs, one-quarter cup flour, one tablespoon Worcestershire sauce, one small can tomatoes, pepper and salt to taste, three tablespoons margarine, one teaspoon chopped onion, one-half teaspoon green sage. Sprinkle the flour over the steak. Add pepper and salt and pound with potato masher for five minutes to make it tender. Mix the bread crumbs, seasoning, onions and margarine. Spread on the steak.

Oyster Salad.

One dozen oysters, half head celery, copped, half head lettuce, one-quarter cup mayonnaise dressing. The oysters are first stewed in their own juice. Then the juice is drained until the oysters are quite dry. They are then chopped and mixed with the celery and mayonnaise and served on lettuce leaves.

JOURNALISM TEACHERS

Will Hold Three-Day Convention at State University, Convening Dec. 29.

Notables of the newspaper world will participate, Dec. 28 in the annual convention of the Association of American Schools and Departments of Journalism, and Dec. 29-30-31 in the annual meeting of the American Association of Teachers of Journalism. The Ohio State university will be host to both gatherings.

Among the speakers at the afternoon session of the journalism teachers association will be Eric C. Hopwood, editor of the Cleveland Plain Dealer, and president of the American Society of Newspaper Editors, and Roy L. French of the University of North Dakota, president of Sigma Delta Chi, national professional journalism fraternity.

Nelson A. Crawford of the U. S. department of agriculture, will address the Thursday afternoon meeting, Dec. 30, on "Some Contemporary Attitudes Toward Journalism," W. A. Ireland, cartoonist of the Columbus Dispatch and R. C. Ryder, editor of the Ohio State Journal, are among those scheduled to participate in a round table discussion.

Prof. Joseph S. Myers, head of the journalism department, Ohio State university, will preside at a dinner meeting, Thursday. The speakers will include Dr. George W. Rightmire, president of the university; David Lawrence, president Consolidated Press association; Dr. Walter Williams of the University of Missouri, honorary president of the Press Congress of the World and A. B. McKee associate editor, the Ohio State Journal.

NOVEMBER CONTRACTS

Total $24,170,500—Representing Two Per Cent Increase Over Year Ago.

Ohio State had $24,170,500 in contracts for new construction work last month, according to F. W. Dodge corporation. This figure was 2 per cent in excess of November, 1925, but was 41 per cent below October of this year.

Included in the November building and engineering record for the state were the following important classes of work: $10,822,600, or 45 per cent of all construction, for residential buildings; $4,261,000, or 18 per cent for industrial buildings; $2,846,000, or 12 per cent, for social and recreational projects; $2,200,500, or 9 per cent for public works and utilities; $1,579,500, or 7 per cent, for commercial buildings; $994,000, or 4 per cent for religious and memorial buildings, and $758,200, or 3 per cent for educational buildings.

New building and engineering work started in Ohio during the first eleven months of this year reached a total of $379,853,300, as compared with $425,148,900, in the first eleven months of 1925, which was a loss of 11 per cent.

AUTO DEATH TOLL HEAVY

In an address before the Association of Life Insurance Presidents, in New York, recently, Henry S. Noland of Des Moines, Ia., president of the Equitable Life Insurance Co., of Iowa, told his listeners that deaths this year would probably exceed 75,000 the total number for 1926.

More Americans were killed by automobiles during the past two years than in the world war, he said, estimating that the total number of death victims in automobile accidents would exceed 22,000 this year. Suicides increased 10 per cent during the year, while deaths by murder dropped seven per cent, figures so far indicate, he said.

This year's increase in the death rate, Mr. Nollen pointed out, should not be taken as indicating such a trend for recent years, as the mortality rate during the period of the past six years alone has decreased more than nine per cent.

CAN SELL BOOKS TO STUDENTS

State Court of Appeals Decides State University Has That Privilege.

Trustees of the State University have the right to sell books to students there at cost, according to an opinion given Saturday morning, by the Franklin county court of appeals dismissing an injunction proceeding filed by Frank C. Long, a book dealer and other tax payers against the board of trustees. The decision of the appellate court is an affirmation of a similar decision rendered by the common pleas court from which an appeal was taken.

In reviewing the book selling activities of the university trustees, the appellate court notes the fact that they took over the merchandise stock of the old students "co-op store," valued at $19,000 by assuming its debts aggregating $16,657 and since the time of making this purchase have expended approximately $52,000 in additional merchandise.

It was claimed by the tax payers [illegible]

It was claimed by the tax payers that the action of the trustees was unconstitutional and without the scope of their authority.

"THE DOUBLE DECEPTION"

"We were approaching that crossroad, and the engineer saw a wagon on the track drawn by a pair of horses. The horses stopped, leaving the wagon on the track and refused to budge an inch. Of course Pat—that's the engineer, didn't want to kill the farmer, so he tried to stop the train, but stopped too suddenly and the coaches jumped the track. But let's quit jabberin' about the causes, and see if we can't help some of these people who have been hurt.

TO HOLD NEW YEAR'S CAMP

Annual Affair of Boy Scout Troop No. 21—Cabin Well Equipped for Outing.

Boy Scout Troop No. 21, with headquarters at Hoge Memorial church, will hold their winter camp at their cabin near Flint, beginning Friday and lasting through Sunday.

This is an annual affair with the boys of this troop and is one of the many features of the troop which its members look forward to. This troop is especially well prepared for an outing of this character at this time of the year, as their cabin is a feature the boys are very proud of.

The cabin is an old two-story log structure which the boys, through their own efforts, have rehabilitated into commodious and comfortable living quarters. The main floor of the structure has a long living room, almost 30 feet long, with a stone fireplace in one end which is equipped for a wood fire. Adjoining the living room is the dining room and kitchen. All meals are served cafeteria style. The upstairs is one large room equipped with bunks for sleeping quarters.

ST. JOHNS' CHOIR TO GIVE CANTATA

On Sunday next the senior choir of St. Johns' Lutheran church will present "The Manger Prince," Ashford's beautiful Christmas cantata. The solos, duets, quartets and choruses lead up to a thrilling climax. Mr. L. O. Pearch, director, Miss Elisabeth Raether, organist, Miss Ruth Pearch, pianist.

Annual Meeting

The annual meeting of the Hilltop Building & Loan association will be held at the association offices, 2369 W. Broad St., Tuesday, Jan 4, for the election of officers, directors and transact any other business which may come before the meeting.

Newly elected officers of the Young Married People's class of Hillcrest Baptist church for next year are: Mr John L. Astor, president; Mr. L. W. Goodwin, vice president; Mrs. Ruggles Graham, treasurer; Mrs. E. W. Martz, secretary; Mrs. Roma Waymer, re-elected pianist; Dr. Raymond J. Miller, re-elected teacher; Mr. I. N. DeRolph, re-elected assistant teacher; and Dr. E. W. Martz, elected member assistant teacher. This class was organized one year ago with only seven members present but now have more than forty on the membership list. This wonderful increase is due largely to the personal work of the individual members and the beautiful teachings of Dr. Miller.

BETTER GET YOUR '27 AUTO TAGS

Autoists driving in the streets of Columbus after Dec. 31, must display 1927 tags on their cars, or be arrested. Police Chief Harry E. French declared Saturday. This year's Florida licenses must be replaced by new Florida or Ohio plates the chief said. Cars bearing tags from adjacent states will be given several days' grace.

RETURNS HOME FROM HOSPITAL

Russell Kadel Recovers from Tetanus Attack—Miss Elizabeth Kadel Improving.

After four weeks spent in Grant hospital recovering from an attack of tetanus, Russell Kadel, son of Mrs. Carrie Kadel, 126 S. Eureka Ave., had recovered sufficiently to return to his home, last Friday.

Russell was taken to the hospital five weeks ago as a result of the accidental explosion of a pistol, wounding him in the hand, from which tetanus developed. Although not able to be out of doors he is not confined to his bed, but is able to be about his home.

Miss Elizabeth Kadel, who suffered a fractured limb fourteen weeks ago when she was struck by an automobile as she alighted from a street car at Broad street and Eureka avenue, while returning home from work, is still confined to her bed with her limb in a plaster cast. She is improving, however, and it is expected she will have improved sufficiently to have the cast removed this week.

The last meeting of the Needle Art club was turned into a Christmas party and held at the home of Mrs. H. Timms, 80 N. Park Ave. Twelve members were present. The next meeting will take place Jan. 6, at the home of Mrs. Wm. Draper, 87 S. Westgate Ave.

On Wednesday evening, Dec. 22, Miss Ruth Dell, who is a piano student of Prof. Walter King played a group of piano solos at the Christmas party given by Crown Chapter No. 8 O. E. S. at their hall, 198 S. High St.

SWINDLE STATION ATTENDANT OF $10

Two men in an automobile bearing an Illinois state license swindled the attendant at the Pure Oil Co. filling station at Whitethorne avenue and Broad street, out of $10 when he attempted to make change for a small purchase, police were told, Monday night.

A very pleasant event of Monday evening, Dec. 27, was the wedding of Mr. Charles Brokowsky and Miss Violet Snowden, both of Detroit, Mich., which took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas W. Coberly, 81 N. Eureka Ave., grandparents of the groom. Dr. George F. Barber, officiated. Mr. and Mrs. Brokowsky will make their home in Detroit where the groom has a responsible position. Among those present were four generations of the same family, Mrs. Margaret A. Coberly, her daughter, Mrs. Daisy Geyman, Detroit, Mich., Mrs. Betty White, a granddaughter and Richard White a great-grandson, also of Detroit.

Miss NaomiGraves, 2133 W. Broad St., and Mr. James F. Ingarham, 1183 Sidney St., were married Tuesday, Dec. 28, Rev. George M. Hughes, pastor of Grace M. E. church officiating. The ceremony was performed at the Grace church parsonage. The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin B. Graves of Somerset, Ohio, and the groom is the son of Mrs. Laura Dunrorm, 1183 Sidney St.

Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Churton and sons and Jabed Churton of Huntington, W. Va., are spending the week at the home of Mrs. Churton's mother, Mrs. Isabel Burnside, 92 N. Powell Ave.

Miss Dorothy Helen Dickenson of Columbia, S. C., is in Columbus visiting her aunt, Mrs. George B. Weatherman, 147 S. Eureka Ave., and her grandmother, Mrs. Emilie Barth Schaible. Miss Dickenson is a talented pianist.

The Children's Hour of Holmes Hilltop Library will be started Saturday, Jan. 8 from 1 to 2 p. m.
Parents are urged to bring this to their children's attention and children be on time so you will get all the Hour of Stories.

Mrs. A. C. Markert, who has been seriously ill at her home, 310 S. Ogden Ave., is much improved and able to receive her many friends, and will be glad to have them call.

CHRISTMAS WEEK ACTIVITIES AT HOGE MEMORIAL

The Christmas season was very appropriately observed at Hoge Memorial church. The children of the church school presented the pageant "The Christmas Spirit," at the morning service, Dec. 19th. Mr. W. H. Orebaugh again made the children happy by giving them a treat. The church house was filled for this service, which was thoroughly enjoyed. At seven-thirty another large audience greeted the chorus choir of thirty voices, who rendered the cantata, "The Christmas Adoration." The cantata was under the direction of Mr. Haydn Jones, accompanied by Miss Margaret Andrix, organist, and Mrs. W. H. Deems, pianist. Solo parts were taken by Mrs. E. P Rauch, Mrs. J. W. Thompson, Mrs. Paul Benton, Mrs. Daniel Jerman, Mrs. Robert Gilliam, Henry Jones, J. E. Allison and Haydn Jones. Many were the comments that this was the best program the choir has given.

Monday evening, Dec. 20, the Young Women's Missionary society gave a Christmas party to 54 children from Prospect. There were games, then ice cream and cake and lastly, Santa with candy, an orange and a gift for each child.

Friday several needy families were remembered with well filled baskets packed by Girl Scouts, the Young Married People's class and Group 2 of the Ladies' Aid society. Friday evening the Girl Scouts and later a group of Christian Endeavorers sang carols at many Hilltop homes.

Sunday, Dec. 26, the music was all devoted to Christmas as well as the two sermons, "The World's Greatest Need" and "The Christmas Heart," delivered by the new pastor H. C. Hutchison.

The C. E. society is in the midst of an interesting contest. Mr. Owen Harrison is the new president. This meeting is at 6:30 each Sunday evening.

Hoge Memorial church invites any who are not affiliated with other Hilltop churches to attend the various services.

OPEN HOUSE AT Y. M. C. A.

The board of directors of the Y. M. C. A. has invited members and friends of the Columbus Y. M. C. A. to be present, with their families at the annual New Year's Day open house at the Central building, January first.

The members of the board of directors and their wives will receive in the lobbies from 2 until 5, when the programs will begin in the gymnasium and swimming pool. More than 250 boys will participate in the games, sports, calisthenic drills, apparatus exhibition on the gym, and in the swimming sports and games in the natatorium. The program will run full through the afternoon from 2 to 5, concluding with a basket-ball game at 5, between the St. Paul M. E. and the First Christian church teams, runners-up in the 1926 Church league tourney.

The marriage of Miss Bernice Maria Trabue and Mr. Jacob Carl Neff took place Tuesday, Dec. 28, at 1:30 in the afternoon at the home of the bride-elect's mother, Mrs. Macon Trabue of North Hague avenue. Miss Trabue's uncle, Rev. W. R. Dudley, a retired minister of the Methodist Episcopal church, performed the ceremony. Miss Eudora Trabue was her sister's maid of honor and Mr. McEwen of Maine, was best man for Mr. Neff. Betty Skidmore, daughter of Mrs. Louise Skidmore, 1128 Wyandotte Rd., a cousin of Miss Trabue was her flower girl. Fifty guests witnessed the ceremony.

HAMILTON MARKET IN NEW LOCATION

The Hamilton Grocery and Meat Market, Sullivant and Eureka avenues, which has been operated the past year by C. H. Hamilton, will move to more commodious quarters over the week-end, their new location being just across the street at 2453 Sullivant Ave.

Mr. Hamilton took over the business at this location about a year ago and his business has grown to such proportions that it necessitates more room, where he will be able to handle a much more complete and varied line of groceries and meats.

The change of quarters will be made over the week-end, the store being open for business next Monday morning.

A Christmas party followed the meeting of Delta Alpha class of Gift Street Methodist Episcopal Church Monday evening, Dec. 20, at the home of Mrs. C. H. Householder, 53 N. Roys ave. Mrs. Howard Myers was assisting hostess.

Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Charnier (Frances Lane) announce the birth of a son, Robert G. at White Cross hospital, Dec. 27.

Miss Irene and Mary Belle Cowman of Greenfield, Ohio, are visiting their uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. H. L. Waugh, 203 N. Harris Ave.

Friday evening there will be a watch night service at the St. Paul's United Evangelical church. This service will begin at 9:30. There will be several who will give a retrospect of the past year, while others will give our aims for the coming year.

B. F. Allen Rebecca Lodge held their Christmas entertainment in their hall on West Broad street on the night of Dec. 27. The large crowd in attendance enjoyed a beautifully decorated tree and the program which was very efficiently given. Piano solo, Kathleen Davis, recitation, Betty Davies, vocal solo, Mr. Orin Williams, piano solo, Miss Elizabeth Curby, recitation, Dorothey Nicely, vocal solo, Mr. Howard Bland, recitation, Jack Davies, vocal solo, May Bland; reading by Mrs. Mary L. Herron. Santa Claus made a visit at the close of the program with oranges and candy.

Mr. and Mrs. George Mathias and family of White Cottage, Ohio, spent Xmas with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. R. Dougherty, 426 S. Eureka Ave. After the Xmas dinner games were played and a family concert was rendered.

ANNUAL RECEPTION OF COUNTY P.-T. A.

The annual reception given by the Columbus-Franklin County Council of the Parent-Teacher association for the school officials of the city and county, members of the board of education, heads of departments, school principals and presidents of local Parent-Teacher associations, will be held on New Year's afternoon from 3 until 5 o'clock at the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. M. Poston, 236 Woodland Ave. Mrs. Poston and members of the executive board of the Parent-Teacher Council will be hostesses. Arrangements for the reception are being made by Mrs. T. W. Friend, 1254 E. Livingston Ave., and members of her committee.

The annual Christmas party of Bay View Literary club was held Monday afternoon, December 20th, at the home of Mrs. Rudolph Heid, 282 N. Burgess Ave. Luncheon was served at noon, covers being laid for 23 members of the club. Instead of the usual exchange of gifts, 30 garments were purchased for the Columbus branch of the Needlework Guild of America. Mrs. Fred Tibbets, president of the club, presided at the business meeting. Club songs and Christmas carols were sung by all those present and Mrs. Rudolph Heid sang a solo, "Birth of Our King," by Neidlet. Mrs. Daniel Jerman sang, "Silent Night," accompanied by Mrs. Heid. Mrs. W. W. Clark, 63 Erie Rd., was introduced and welcomed into the club. The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. R. H. Horton, 730 Linwood Ave.

A WORD OF APPRECIATION

WILL DEBATE AT WESTWOOD

Flow of Oratory Will Be Heard at Westwood Lodge Next Monday Night.

"Is Damon or Pythias, According to the Pythian Version, More Worthy of Emulation?" This is the subject of debate at Westwood Lodge, K. of P., next Monday night at Westwood's hall, corner of Burgess avenue and Broad street.

This is the question which interests every Pythian, and it will be more so on this occasion when the pick of the orators of Westwood Lodge—Demus B. Ulrey, Cecil J. Randall and John F. Carlile, with James A. White, former candidate for governor of Ohio, will use all the arts of speech as only men of long experience in public speech can use, to win their side of the debate.

Carlisle and Ulrey will uphold the staunchness of Damon, while Randall and White will argue for the true friendship of Pythias. These men are all true Pythians, are lawyers of prominence in Columbus, know their subject well and are capable of presenting their side of the argument in the most able manner.

Previous to the debate "The Lesson of Friendship" will be given.

Officers of Westwood Lodge are hoping that a large number of Pythians will be present to hear this debate and urge every Pythian to be their guest if they possibly can.

Mrs. N. E. Walcutt, 44 S. Wheatland Ave., wishes to thank the young people of St. John's Evangelical Church for their beautiful Christmas carols at 4:30 Christmas morning also the young people of Highland Avenue Friends Church who sang for her at 1 o'clock. Mrs. Walcutt has been shut in since Sept. 22.

Mr. Joseph Linville, a student at Ohio Wesleyan university, who has been appointed to the "committee of 88," an organization of representative students to boost the university, is visiting his parents, Mr. and Mrs. O. J. Linville, 38 Eldon Ave.

Mrs. E. Bellis formerly of 100 N. Warren Ave. and mother of Mrs. U. S. Miller, 496 S. Ogden Ave. is spending the winter with her daughter, Mrs. Ruth Wachstheim in San Antonio Texas.

Mr. and Mrs. U. S. Miller of 496 S Ogden Ave. had as their guest Christmas day, Mr. and Mrs. Ed. Bowley of Portsmouth, Ohio, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Miller and daughter, Betty Jane, of Lancaster, Ohio, Mr. and Mrs. Ray Bowley and Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Fox. Mr. Herbert Miller and family are spending the holidays with his parents.

KEY TO HILLTOP GIVEN TO SANTA

Children Delighted With His Visit—Rainy Weather Didn't Stop Him.

Santa Claus will never have to miss the Hilltop again on his rounds on Christmas eve for he now has a key which will unlock the heart of any Hilltop boy or girl. This key, heavily gold plated and prepared especially for presentation to him was given to him when he visited the Hilltop boys and girls last week with his Eskimo helpers and reindeers.

While the weatherman was none too kind to us that evening, dishing us out a supply of wet weather for the occasion, neither Santa nor the Hilltop children had anything on each other, for they all turned out in full force, and Santa was just a much delighted with his visit here as the children were to have him.

Santa was met at the top of the hill with a supply of candy which he distributed along the route. His first stop was at North Park avenue and West Broad street where, Betty Ann Sulzberger and Master Jack Fox presented him with a gold plated key to the Hilltop. Santa was very much touched with this evidence of good will toward him and with tears in his eyes he promised the little ones he would always keep the key, in memory of the kindnesses displayed toward him.

He then proceeded westward, his next stop being at Broad street and Hague avenue, where he spent a quarter of an hour shaking hands with the children and distributing candy. His return to reindeer park was over the same route he had covered to Hague, stopping a few minutes at South Park avenue and West Broad street.

All in all it was an occasion to be long remembered by the children and the Columbus Dispatch is to be congratulated on its enterprise in providing the children with this entertainment, and all who in any way helped to make the event a success are to be congratulated.

The Sullivant W. C. T. U. held its regular monthly meeting and Xmas party at the home of Mrs. A. Sturberger, 285 Avondale Ave. Mrs. Florence Thomas was hostess. Benevolence will go for the Near East Relief this year. After the business meeting a social hour of music and singing was enjoyed. Presents were exchanged and dainty refreshments were served. Those present were: Mrs. Wm. Horn, Mrs. Hattie Compton, Mrs. Mabel Hamilton, Mrs. C. Shaver, Mrs. Jesse Shaver, Mrs. Ada Hyder, Mrs. Rose Cetanese, Mrs. C. H. Henslee, Mrs. Wm. Ross, Mrs. S. Combs, Mrs. Anna Hatton, Mrs. John Marshall, Mrs. J. Swetz, Mrs. Hale and Mrs. Russell, assistant hostess.

Miss Myrtle McWilliams, 203 N. Harris Ave., has returned to her home after spending the holiday season with her niece, Mrs. George W. Le Cras, of Cleveland, Ohio.

A very delightful evening was spent at the home of Irene Skipper, 81 N. Terrace Ave., Monday evening, Dec. 20, when the Jewell Gatherers Class entertained the Octagon Bible Class of Highland Avenue Friends Church with a Christmas party. A beautiful Christmas tree in the front yard, somehow gripped your heart and installed the Christmas spirit, even before you entered the house, where there was another lovely tree. Instrumental and vocal numbers were rendered by some of the young people. The remainder of the evening was spent in playing games. Daintyrefreshments were served by the girls class. The gifts were then given out, and a very enjoyable time was spent in unwrapping them. After the guests had donned their wraps, and were preparing to leave, the group gathered around the piano to sing the Christmas carols, that never grow old, no matter how oft they are repeated. The young folks then departed feeling it was truly good to have been there. Those present were: Nellie Miller, Martha Stuart, Helene Stuart, Martha Skipper, Margaret Muth, Mary Elisabeth Muth, Elizabeth Stalker, Eugenia Ring, Ruth Vickers, Mildred Patterson, Elizabeth Stahl, Irene Skipper, Margaret Skipper, Virginia Elford, Verna Walcutt, John Stevenson, Joseph Watkins, Constant Muth, Victor Fippin, Harry Hemerly, Paul Wood, Mrs. Charles Stalker, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Fippin, and Mr. and Mrs. Roy Skipper.

Mrs. George Herrel of Hallsville, Ohio, spent the past week in Columbus, visiting her brothers, Mr. E. V. Gatwood, 65 N. Harris Ave., and Mr. Harley B. Gatwood, 2363 Whitethorne Ave.

Dr. and Mrs. Jay Emerson Sharp of Reville, Ohio, arrived Friday for a visit with Dr. and Mrs. C. E. Sharp, 2366 W. Broad St.

Columbus Second in Postal Savings

Columbus postal savings depositors have savings accounts more than five times greater than depositors on the entire state of North Carolina, it was announced by James R. Geren, assistant postmaster and superintendent of finances of the Columbus postoffice Saturday evening, after receiving a report from the postal department at Washington, containing figures for all offices in the United States.

Columbus ranks second in Ohio with deposits of $3,890,696, the statistics reveal, Cincinnati being in the lead with $4,451,802.

"The per capita deposit of citizens in Columbus is much greater than those of Cincinnati," Geren declared, "as there are 1172 depositors in Cincinnati and 1182 depositors in Columbus."

According to these figures, the per capita deposit in Columbus is $3353, while in Cincinnati it is $264, a difference of $89. The per capita deposit in Columbus is $17 over the $336 average shown for the entire United States.

The Double Deception

By MRS. E. O. CARLSTON
Author of "For Freedom."

Mr. Morgan and the frightened Jim followed this employe of the railroad company to the wrecked coaches.

"I don't think there will be many to care for, as only a few passengers were on the train. This train was only going to the next town," the man explained.

After a careful search of several hours, it was learned that the train had only carried nine passengers, five of whom had only received minor bruises. One of the remaining four, had been killed, and the other three were still unconscious. One of the victims, a middle-aged woman, who held a small baby in her arms, was carried by Mr. Morgan and Jim to the Morgan home, the other people being cared for by other neighbors. They carried her to a small bedroom on the second floor, and Miss Bradford was summoned to offer any professional assistance that would be needed.

An old crib that had been considered too plain for the Morgan baby was brought from the attic to the nursery, and while the mother was being cared for by Miss Bradford, Mrs. White, the housekeeper, took care of the newcomer's baby, who had not been hurt, probably because it was so well wrapped in blankets, which protected its little body from injury.

Meanwhile, the woman upstairs was regaining consciousness, as a result of the stimulants given her by Miss Bradford. Mr. Morgan entered the doorway to the room just as she opened her eyes, which fell on him instantly. At sight of him she gave a little start, which neither Mr. Morgan or the nurse noticed. The woman instantly had herself in hand, and no one knew that fate had played a prank in the Morgan home that night.

CHAPTER II.

The doctor who was called to the bedside of Mrs. Wentworth, informed Mr. Morgan that her condition was nothing to be alarmed about, and that she should be able to continue her journey within three or four days. But Mrs. Wentworth managed to find imaginary ailments and did not leave her room until two weeks time had elapsed. As fate would have it, Mrs. White, who had been housekeeper in the Morgan home since Mr. and Mrs. Morgan were married, one day went to the room Mr. Morgan used for an office, where he was seated at his desk. Upon observing her approach, he put his pen and paper aside, and waited for her to speak, as Mrs. White never ventured into this room except for an important reason.

"Good morning, Mr. Morgan," she said pleasantly. "As you seem to be busy, I will come to the point at once. I have received a letter from my son, offering me a home with his family, and I am a little tired of living out here on the plains, and get homesick for the East."

"No doubt you do, Mrs. White; I should have thought of it sooner, and given you a much needed and well deserved vacation. If you want to go East, why not make it a visit only? You know how to manage the servants so well, and my wife always thought so much of you. I hate to see you go away."

His voice grew husky as he mentioned the woman he loved so well. But Mrs. White was very firm in her resolution, and before she left the room, following her conversation with Mr. Morgan, a figure who had been bent to a listening attitude outside the door to this room, straightened up, and the woman's face took on a satisfied smile. Thereafter, she made a desperate effort to make herself pleasing in the eyes of Mr. Morgan.

That evening, as Mr. Morgan, Mrs. White and Mrs. Wentworth were partaking of their evening meal, Mrs. Wentworth skillfully started the subject of most interest to her.

"Mr. Morgan, I suppose you think I have taken advantage of your hospitality long enough, and that I should be starting on my way again; but the truth of the matter is that I have no home, and had no particular destination in view when I boarded the train." She paused for a few seconds, and then turning to Mrs. White went on:

"I wish I were as fortunate as you are, Mrs. White. It is so nice to have your time occupied, without being greatly overworked. I wish that I had a home like this under my care, instead of being knocked about from one place to the other as I am."

Mrs. White instantly sympathized with this poor, lonely lady; and looked inquiringly at Mr. Morgan, who, whatever his thoughts may have been, did not want to make Mrs. Wentworth any impulsive promises. He did not doubt that she would make a good housekeeper, but had no matrimonial intentions himself, and certainly did not want a housekeeper who was inclined to be sentimental, as he feared Mrs. Wentworth would be; but in this part of the country, it was hard to find an unincumbered woman who could fill Mrs. White's place, so the next morning he summoned Mrs. Wenworth to "his private sanctum," as that lady always pronounced it to herself.

Mrs. Wentworth seated herself on the chair Mr. Morgan offered her and was all attention for whatever he should have to say.

"Mrs. White, as you probably know, is leaving my employ next Saturday. I gathered from your conversation last night that you would like a similar position to this; and am now offering you the opportunity of taking Mrs. White's place as the housekeeper of this home. Do you wish to accept?"

Mrs. Wentworth looked her thanks and said:

RADIO SURE CAN WORK WONDERS

Few drivers rejoice when arrested for traffic law violation.

But Harry W. Lewis, flivver and radio dealer of Reynoldsburg, gives three cheers. Such an arrest means money to him.

When he was halted for speeding last week and directed to go to police headquarters to arrange bail, he was not saddened. Instead he asked the arresting officer if he was a radio fan.

He was. He was the turnkey and another policeman he met in the clerk's office.

So Lewis talked fast. When he finished the cops had signed orders for sets and paid an installment on the price.

HERE AND THERE
By C. C. H.

A course in marriage is the latest in college courses. Ohio State will have such a course during the winter quarter. No doubt it will be held in the stadium due to the great number of man hunters' that will enroll for it. The only trouble will lie in the fact that the greater portion, we dare say, will never graduate and be successful.

These are "swell" days. If you don't believe it just leave your bottle of milk out on the porch a little while. Herein lies the difference between home brew and 'cow juice.' The latter moves very slowly to a position above the bottle while home brew has the real kick and kicks far.

Why not give up the idea of travelling to Mars by rockets? Soon we will be able to go by elevator. New York has plans for a new building which will reach into the sky 653 feet higher than the A. I. U. It will contain 110 stories. Going up?

LARGE AMOUNT OF BUILDING

Federal Government Plans Expenditure of $165,000,000 in Five Years.

The present flourishing condition of business is closely related with the building activity throughout the nation and is expected to continue without any strong indication of slackening according to the survey of business issued by Eastman, Dillon and Co. of New York.

There is an accumulation of government, state and municipal building which has been postponed until private requirements are met and which can be counted on to offset any sharp falling off in private building. Not only has the federal government adopted a five-year building program, involving $165,000,000, but local governments also will spend large sums for new constructions.

WHITE CROSSES DOT HIGHWAYS

State Has Erected More Than 1800 Reminders to Autoists of Lost Lives.

More than 1800 white crosses dot the highways of Ohio, each showing where a life had been snuffed out in an automobile accident, George F. Schlesinger, state highway director, announced Thursday.

This number does not represent the total highway casualty list by any means, Schlesinger says, because in many cases there would be too many on one spot.

Crosses have not been erected in other cases where friends or relatives of the victims have protested that it is a cruel reminder of their loss, the director says.

The object of the crosses is to remind automobile drivers that constant care must be exercised to avoid accidents, it is pointed out. The department feels the lesson has been effective, altho no figures are available.

OBITUARY

MRS. FANNIE E. KALB

Mrs. Fannie E. Kalb, 83, widow of Henry Kalb, died Tuesday night, Dec. 21, following a year's illness at the home of her son, Dr. George E. Kalb, 136 N. Burgess Ave. She leaves another son, Frank E. Kalb of Oakland, Cal., and a sister, Mrs. A. D. Anderson, 63 N. Wheatland Ave. Funeral services were held at 10 a. m. Friday at the residence. Burial in Canal Winchester cemetery.

JOHN DISS

John Diss, 57, foreman of pipe-fitters, employed by the Hocking Valley R. R., died of cerebral hemorrhages Tuesday Dec. 21, at his home, 236 S. Ogden Ave. He was a member of St. Joseph's Court, Catholic Order of Foresters, and Columbus Lodge, Loyal Order of Moose. Surviving are his widow, Mrs. Mary Morgan Diss; a sister; a brother, Andrew Diss, 361 Belvidere Ave., and a brother and sister in Germany. Funeral services were held at 8:30 a. m. Friday at St. Aloysius Church. Burial in Calvary cemetery.

WEALTH AHEAD OF POPULATION

Money in Circulation Has Increased Eight Times Since Jan. 1, 1879.

The monthly circulation statement of the department of the treasury just made public shows that the increase in the population of the United States since 1879 has fallen behind the increase in wealth of the nation over the same period.

The nation's wealth, it is shown, based on money in circulation as of Nov. 1, 1926, has increased more than eight times since Jan. 1, 1879—the earliest comparative figures available—whereas the population is only about three times greater than on that date.

NEW LAWYERS TO BE GUESTS OF BAR

Attorneys who have successfully completed the state bar examination will be honor guests at a noon luncheon at the New Southern hotel, Friday, to be given by the Columbus Bar association. Following the luncheon the oath of office will be administered to the guests by Chief Justice Marshall of the Ohio supreme court.

President George W. Rightmire of Ohio State university will deliver a short adress. A committee of 25 lawyers, of which John Eagleson is chairman, has been appointed.

THE MAGIC ROCK

In his "Memories of Travel" the late Lord Bryce tells of a remarkable story of a retired major in the Austrian army who eked out a scanty pension by guiding small parties among the peaks of the Hungarian Alps. Starting out one morning with a troup of fat Viennese hotel keepers, the old major found much trouble in maintaining a proper mileage, and presently was informed of the imminence of a general strike unless water was forthcoming at once.

"Have patience, my friends there is a refreshing spring round the next turn of the road," the guide besought. Loud therefore were the murmurs when the spring was found to be dry. "Do not yet despair!" exclaimed the major, casting a hasty but penetrating glance toward the heights beyond. "I promise you water within ten minutes."

Grumbling and incredulous they went on and were astounded to find, within five minutes, a tiny rivulet trickling down the dry bed, and before the expiration of the prescribed period, all had been able to slake their thirst. The major's keen eye had noticed that the sun's rays, having just rounded the mountain's edge, were resting squarely on a great patch of snow, fallen during the night, so he staked his reputation on its melting in time.—Forward

NEW HILLTOP THEATER OPENS

"The Ritz," Located on Sullivant Avenue, to Open Saturday Evening.

The Hilltop's new community theatre, the Ritz, located at 2548 Sullivant Ave., will open its doors to the public for the first time next Saturday evening when "Three Bad Men," a Fox Production, based on Herman Whitaker's novel, "Over the Border," will be the offering.

The Ritz, just completed and a decided addition to the Sullivant avenue section, will seat approximately 700 people, and is thoroughly up to date in every way.

The opening play is a story dealing with the opening of the Sioux lands in the Dakotas in the middle '70's to white settlers.

Fred Salvatore is the owner of the new theatre, and he has named Steve Duros as his manager. H. G. Dupler was the contractor for the erection of the building.

Up and Down

All that goes up comes down. Such proved to be a fact Monday morning at the Hilltop Feed store on N. Eureka avenue.

While loading baled hay and straw from a truck to the second story of their frame storehouse the strain was too much for the floor and it gave away thereby dumping all the hay and straw to the ground floor below. No one was injured since there were no persons in the room below.

Mrs. J. Howard Young entertained the following guests Thursday, Dec. 30, at her home, 218 N. Powell Ave, honoring her little daughter, Lois Jane, who was four years old: Maralyn Hughes, Juanita Dunkle, Jean Louise Young, Marjorie and Roger Lose, Mary, Alice and Billy Lauer, Harry Jr. and Dick Anthony, Dean and Don Dorsey as well as Mrs. C. H. Lose, an aunt, Miss Lonelady Hamilton and the paternal grandfather, Mr. J. A. Young, also the maternal grandparents, Rev. and Mrs. G. W. Lose and Mr. J. Howard Young.

Mr. and Mrs. J. Q. Hartsough, 33 S. Eureka Ave., announce the marriage of their niece, Miss Lucile Harrison, to Mr. Kenneth F. Yaeger, son of Mr. and Mrs. Franklin Yaeger, 2657 N. Terrace Ave. Rev. P. H. Fry, a retired minister of the Methodist Episcopal church, performed the ceremony December 31, at his home, 50 Glenmont Ave. The couple will reside temporarily at 33 S. Eureka Ave.

The Double Deception

By MRS. E. O. CARLSTON

"I shall be glad to accept Mr. Morgan, as I need a home, and this one of yours has been a blessed haven to me the last few weeks. I should hate to leave now."

"May I ask you a question, Mrs. Wentworth? Is your husband living? I do not wish to employ a woman as my housekeeper who should be in a home of her own living with her husband."

"If you wish to hear my story, Mr. Morgan, I will be willing to give you the particulars," Mrs. Wentworth replied.

"Go on," in stated Mr. Morgan.

"My husband ran away with another woman only one week after our baby was born. I did not ask the law to interfere, as I want nothing, not even financial support from a man who can be so mean. I may obtain a divorce in the future if necessary."

Not being a conscientious woman, Mrs. Wentworth was not particular about the truth of her statement.

"There is one thing I want to make clear to you," Mr. Morgan said, "My wife had known Mrs. White all her life, and we made her one of the family, by allowing her to share all of our home privileges, both at the table and in the reception room when guests were present. As it had always been our custom, no changes were made when my wife died; but I think it would be better for you to take your meals with the servants, and use the small room in the left wing for your sitting room. I hope you do not feel offended at my suggestion, as I made it to prevent any gossip from inquisitive callers and neighbors. Your salary will be two hundred per month and you may have Saturday afternoon and evening, also Sunday afternoon and evening to do as you like. I hope we shall both be satisfied with this arrangement. That will be all," and he abruptly turned to his desk.

The few days remaining before time for Mrs. White's departure passed rather slowly to all concerned, Mrs. White, herself being impatient to see her son; Mr. Morgan allowing himself to be subject to depression, and Mrs. Wentworth, anxious to make a future for herself and little Norma, who was only a week older than the Morgan child. Finally the time came for Mrs. White to board the train at the station in Carlinville, which was the nearest town to the Morgan home; and as only a short stop was made, she was soon out of sight from Mr. Morgan and Jim who stood on the platform near the waiting room. As the train went around the bend, Mr. Morgan felt that the last link connecting him with the sacred past had been broken. For days, he gave way to the gloom that oppressed him, and finally decided that he had his choice of becoming insane or of finding something to occupy his time. He had looked over the same papers in his desk so many times that he knew every document word for word. An old friend of his and former business associate had matters of utmost importance to be taken care of in Europe, and had asked Mr. Morgan to make the trip. Mr. Morgan had at first refused, but now reconsidered the offer, and arrangements were immediately made for the journey.

Miss Bradford, the nurse, now had charge of both babies ,at Mrs. Wentworth's request; and both children occupied the nursery together. Before Mr. Morgan had completed preparations for his journey, Miss Bradford noticed that little Beatrice Morgan was fast failing in health. She called Mr. Morgan's attention to the fact.

"Miss Bradford ,you know more about babies than I do. My presence here could not possibly help her condition, and the business responsibilities I have assumed must be attended to immediately. Mrs. Wentworth will give you enough money to take care of all the child's wants. I hope you will not disturb me further about the matter," and he turned on his heel and left the room.

Miss Bradford felt tears of resentment in her eyes, as she walked across the room, and gathered the tiny little body in her arms.

"Poor little darling girlie," she murmured. "No mother to love you, and a father so deeply engrossed in himself that he does not care whether you live or die!"

She carried the child around the room in her arms ,and presently stopped beside the other child's bed. She looked back and forth from one child to the other. How strongly they resembled one another—the same little round face, the same dark curly hair, the same nose. A stranger would have believed they were twins; but already the Wentworth child showed a remarkable temper for its age. Miss Bradford declared to herself that she would prefer to care for a dozen babies like little Beatrice than one like Mrs. Wentworth's child. The new housekeeper could see that the nurse had a strong preference for the Morgan baby, and mentally decided to mend that matter, when the Atlantic Ocean separated Mr. Morgan from his child. He had already placed a large amount of money in the bank in Mrs. Wentworth's name, to be used for household purposes, and that amiable woman decided to have things in her own way in a very short time.

Mr. Morgan had engaged passage in a steamer which was to leave New York the week before Christmas, and of course, left his home in the middle west in plenty of time to make his connections conveniently. Jim accompanied his master to the depot, after having been refused permission to go along; and before the two were out of the house, Mrs. Wentworth was trying hard to conceal her satisfied smile. She had never been in position before to spend money as she liked, and felt that now she would have an excellent opportunity to do so, as her own salary and allowance which Mr. Morgan had placed in the bank to be used for household purposes and for the needs of his child for her own personal wants.

The week following Mr. Morgan's departure passed uneventfully to the ones who had been left at the Morgan home. Miss Bradford, at first, being accustomed to the sweet gentle way Mrs. Morgan had always managed things, did not like Mrs. Wentworth, who was very hard to please, due to her peculiar ideas, and that lady in her turn, feared that Miss Bradford would be a serious hindrance to any plans the older woman would wish to make. One day, Mrs. Wentworth called the nurse to her room.

"Miss Bradford," she said, "I regret to inform you that I must ask you to find a situation elsewhere . Mr. Morgan's financial affairs have taken a sudden turn, and I am forced to economize. As I am not very busy myself, and understand thoroughly the care of babies, I have decided to let you go."

"But, Mrs. Wentworth," the nurse insisted, "little Beatrice is a very delicate child, and really needs professional care, which I am sure you cannot give her ,and attend to your household duties also."

"I am confident that I can give both matters sufficient amount of attention, Miss Bradford. I do not ask you to go away today. You may have a few days in which to do your packing, and to make any arrangements that may be necessary. If it were possible for me to do so, I would be glad to keep you, but under the circumstances, it is impossible. I think you can go to the city, and will find life there more enjoyable than in this out-of-the-way place."

"You are mistaken, Mrs. Wentworth," Miss Bradford replied. "I have become deeply attached to little Beatrice, and certainly regret that I must go away. Pardon me for the suggestion, but I believe it would be wiser for you to dismiss some of the other people who have been employed by Mr. Morgan, than to deprive his only child of the care she should have."

"I certainly intend to," Mrs. Wentworth said, untruthfully, "but as I said at first; you will have to go too."

Miss Bradford's eyes were full of tears.

"It is too bad, dear," Mrs. Wentworth said, trying to appear kind and considerate. It would not help things to incur Miss Bradford's displeasure.

The following day, Emily Bradford seated herself at the writing desk in her bed room to write a letter to Mr. Morgan. She did not doubt Mrs. Wentworth's statement that Mr. Morgan's financial condition could not warrant paying for the services of a nurse. In her letter, the nurse begged Mr. Morgan to allow her to remain at his home to care for the motherless baby, and offered to accept a much smaller salary than she had been receiving.

A foreign visitor on taking his boat at New York after a tour of the United States was asked by newspaper men what aspect of American activity had impressed him most.

"Your great number of motor cars and the wonderful roads!" he replied. "Many miles were excellent—marvelous! Lincoln has built a wonderful highway, and Jefferson's route from the Gulf of Mexico to Canada is a great road. I liked the Babcock roads in Minnesota, too. But there is another road builder running wild in your admirable country. His name is Detour, a Frenchman, perhaps, and very eccentric. I care less for his roads than any other."

SPECIAL ACTIVITIES AT HOGE MEMORIAL

On Sunday afternoon, Jan. 9th, the men of the church will conduct an Every Member Social Canvass of the congregation. This has been planned by the session, through the committee on Evangelism and Local Church Extension, with Dr. R. P. Rauch, chairman.

The purpose of this visitation is not financial, but to help officers and members of the church to become better acquainted and to discuss the many interests of the church and enlist the co-operation of all in its program.

Recipes

OATMEAL IN APPLES

Core tart cooking apples, leaving large cavities; pare and cook in a syrup made by boiling a cup of sugar with one and a half cups of water for five minutes. When the apples are soft, drain and fill the cavities with hot, well-cooked oatmeal or any cereal, and serve with cream and brown sugar.

APPLE-CHEESE LUNCHEON DISH

Cover the bottom of a baking dish with bread crumbs, then add a layer of thinly sliced pealed apples, some grated cheese, a little salt, and repeat until the dish is full, then cover with milk and bake in a slow oven until the apples are soft.

WILL RESUME LAW PRACTICE

Common Pleas Judge Charles T. Warner, who completed his six-year term as common pleas judge Dec. 31, resumed the practice of law January 1 with offices in the Columbian building on East Gay street.

In entering upon his career on the common pleas bench Judge Warner gave up a flourishing law practice extending over a period of more than twenty years. He brought to his position as Judge a thorough legal training, has discharged the duties of the same with signal ability and with fidelity to the highest traditions of legal jurisprudence, and his work has been uniformly approved by the bar and reviewing courts.

Judge Warner has always been active in civic affairs and church and fraternal work.

He was the chairman of First Municipal Civil Service Commission appointed under the city charter, and directed the organization of the commission and establishing the classified service under the civil service law.

He also served on the Columbus Board of Education for four years from 1916 to 1920.

THE DOUBLE DECEPTION

Not having noticed that Mrs. Wentworth had been following her around through the house, expecting her to do just what she was doing, Miss Bradford placed her letter in an envelope which was addressed to Mr. Morgan's foreign address. Then she stamped and sealed it. Mrs. Wentworth had been watching her from the doorway; and now entered the room to inform Miss Bradford that a young gentleman was waiting for her downstairs, which was true. Mrs. Wentworth had seen the nurse go upstairs and immediately followed her. She had only climbed a few steps when the doorbell rang. She, herself admitted the young man, and told him Miss Bradford would be down in a few minutes. Then she went upstairs, and stood for some time outside the door of Miss Bradford's room waiting for her to finish writing the letter.

CIVIC QUESTIONS DISCUSSED AT BUSINESS MEN'S MEETING

Councilmen Postle, Lewis and Zimpfer Address Members and Express Willingness to Cooperate in Securing Needed Improvements.

About fifty members were in attendance at the dinner meeting of the Hilltop Business Men's Association last Thursday evening at the Matsonia and had as their guests, Councilmen Postle, Lewis and Zimpfer.

President Harrison of the association called the meeting to order and announced that he had appointed a pep committee, of which George W. Matson was chairman, whereupon George produced favors in the form of paper caps to cover the "tin roofs," as he expressed it, along with other witty (?) remarks.

Preceeding the business meeting the three councilmen adressed the members, explaining the workings of council and the problems that the body had to meet from requests for service from all sections of the city. All expressed their willingness to cooperate in any way they could in obtaining necessary service for the Hilltop.

Councilman Lewis, in the course of his remarks, was heartily in favor of better lighting for this section of the city, having walked from Hague avenue to the Matsonia—the night being an especially dark one.

All three councilmen expressed their belief that the street car service should extend to the Big Four railroad and were willing to do all they could to bring this about, but each felt that the possibilities were rather vague.

Councilman Zimpfer in his discussion, brought out the plan of using buses from Hague avenue to the Big 4 railroad as a feeder service for the street cars and was of the opinion that this would meet the immediate needs of this section and expressed his willingness to try and bring this about.

In the discussion that followed during the business meeting of the association the bus feature did not meet with the approval of a number of members, their feeling being that if the buses were once established it would be an excuse to delay car service for this section. The feeling that this rapidly developing section with its increasing number of homes and residences should have regular car service.

The matter of some sort of improvement of Westgate park was taken up and discussed at some length, it being the opinion of the association members and the councilmen that there should be some improvement of this park to enable residents to use the grounds with some comfort. The councilmen expressed their willingness to bring this before council.

In the matter of paving West Broad street the councilmen felt the street should be paved from Shady Lane to Wheatland avenue, and expressed their belief that this could be brought about if the property owners in this section would withdraw their objections. It was explained by one property owner of this section that the objection of a number of residents of this section to this paving program was that the paving should be extended to Hague avenue and not stop at Wheatland. Included in this stretch of paving is a large frontage of state owned property, which the paving of which the councilmen were of the opinion would be paid for by the state ,as this has been the procedure in the city for the past number of years.

Story Hour at Library

Under the direction of Hilltop Child Conservation Circle and Story Tellers League the Story Hour at the Holmes Hilltop Library, corner W. Broad and South Park avenue, will be held for all children each Saturday afternoon from 1 to 2 p. m.

The program of stories as outlined for January began Saturday, Jan. 8, with the stories taking the children through the Land of Contentment. Jan. 15 they will journey through the Land of Happiness. Jan. 22 through the Land of Kind Heartedness and Jan. 29 through the Land of Truth.

Mrs. F. P. Brown of Hilltop Child Conservation Circle and Miss Hasel Richards and Miss Harriett Harmon of the Story Tellers' league will have charge of the next Saturday's story hour, Jan. 15.

Mrs. H. O. Schultz, 48 N. Chase Ave., is acting chairman for Hilltop Circle for the year and Mrs. R. E. Lockett, 1654 Genesee Ave., chairman for Hilltop district for Story Tellers League.

The Hilltop W. C. T. U. will hold a victory meeting, Friday, Jan. 14, at 2 p. m., at the home of Mrs. W. B. Smith, 303 S. Terrace St. There will be an open discussion of the subject, "What the Volstead Law Has Meant to Us, and How We Can Best Serve to Enforce the Law." There will be a reading by Mrs. S. J. Hanawalt, 126 Eldon Ave.

West Broad P.-T. A.

The monthly meeting of the West Broad St. P.-T. A. will be held in the school auditorium Friday, Jan. 14, at 3 p. m. The subject under consideration is "Our Children's Health." Miss Rhea McLaughlin, school nurse, will speak of the physical education of the school children, and also of pre-school preparation, the latter subject being of special interest to mothers of children that are at present under school age.

Miss Ona Prather, head nutrition teacher, will give the mothers some ideas in regard to school lunches and the proper kind of breakfasts for school children.

Music will be furnished by Miss Doris Stewart, soloist, and Mrs. C. W. Walton, organist at Glenwood M. E. church, the accompanist.

A large attendance is desired for this meeting, which promises to be very interesting.

Group 10, Ladies Aid of Glenwood M. E. Church, will meet Thursday afternoon, Jan. 13, at the home of Mrs. Carl Geren, 2030 Crescent Drive. Mrs. Michaelis and Mrs. O'Hara are assisting hostesses.

MORE TRAFFIC LIGHTS WANTED

Chief French Made Annual Report to Council Monday Night.

Extension of the traffic light system to outlying districts where accidents have been numerous, is urged in the annual report of Police Chief French, to be submitted to City Council Monday night.

Increase in the detective force, 15 additional police corporals to take charge of districts when the flexible patrol system is reestablished next month, more automobiles, changes in sickness and accident pay provisions and additional patrol boxes, also are asked by the chief.

Five new light patrol wagons, requested by French, would replace substation touring cars now in use. This would make possible the handling of accidents from the substations and would eliminate long waits at boxes by policemen who have made arrests.

More police patrol call boxes are needed in remote sections and especially in those territories recently annexed. More lines also are needed as the present system is heavily overloaded.

Increased pay for the acting lieutenant of detectives, property clerks and two automobile mechanics, is asked.

Change in the ordinance, which now provides that policemen shall be paid for a period of 90 days in cases of illness and for six months in cases of accidents, is sought by Chief French.

Many abuses have grown out of this provision, Chief French says.

He urges that the ordinance be changed so that payment of salaries should be decided for each individual case on recommendation of the police sergeant and approval of the chief, with a provision for appeal to the director of public safety by any man not satisfied with the settlement of his case.

The Willing Workers Class of the Burgess Ave. U. B. Church, E. O. Price, teacher, held their monthly business and social meeting at the home of Mrs. Clover, 342 S. Warren Ave., Tuesday evening, Jan. 11. Twenty members of the class and nine visitors were present. After the regular business session conducted by Mrs. Lantz, president of the class, a delightful social hour was enjoyed by all and a delicious lunch was served by the hostesses, Mrs. Clover and Mrs. Brickles.

Infant Baker, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lynn C. Baker, 179 N. Chase avenue, died Sunday in Mt. Carmel hospital.

OPEN ANOTHER BRANCH BANK

The eleventh branch of the Citizens Trust & Savings bank will be opened Feb. 5th, it was announced by bank officials last Friday. The new bank will occupy quarters at 1435 East Main street.

Derroll R. Johnson will be manager of the bank and William Styger assistant cashier. Plans for the formal opening have not been completed.

SIDEWALKS NECESSARY

From Powell Avenue to Big 4—Council Passes Resolution for Improvement.

In the City Council meeting held Monday night two resolutions were presented and passed upon concerning the Hilltop. The Council readily entertained and passed upon a motion for the laying of sidewalks on West Broad street from Hague avenue west to the Big Four railroad. The resolution was presented by Fred L. Sulzburger, representative of the Hilltop Business Men's Association.

This distance has for ever been a danger spot to children coming and going to school. There being no sidewalks they are forced to walk in the street. Many times cars and trucks are parked alongside the road thereby making it necessary for the pedestrians to walk in the center of the road which might easily be termed a speedway for motorists.

Mothers have for some time had fear of accidents to their children along this section. Night walkers are also in much danger because there are no lights along the street. The sidewalk work will probably begin as soon as the weather permits. Both sides will have walks.

Mr. Sulzburger also asked for facilities in the way of water and housing for the Westgate Park. The resolution was put on file.

SPECIAL MEETING OF BUSINESS MEN'S ASSOCIATION

A special meeting of the Hilltop Business Men's Association will be held next Tuesday evening at 7:30 o'clock at the Rivoli theatre. This is a postponed meeting which was to have been held last Tuesday evening. All members please take note.

M. C. LANE HEADS LETTER CARRIERS

Lichtner; L. B. Carter, clerk of the Mutual Benefit Association; Eugene Sebring, clerk of the National Sick Benefit Association; Hamilton Roebuck, correspondent; I. E. Sebring, trustee, and R. H. Baehtel, sergeant-at-arms.

Mrs. Ivan Sebring was installed as president of the auxiliary to Buckeye Branch. Associated with her in an official capacity for the ensuing term will be: Mrs. A. E. Lee, vice president; Mrs. Carl Wisker, recording secretary; Mrs. Ira Miller, financial secretary; Mrs. Jacob Egger, treasurer; Mrs. J. W. Klensel and Mrs. A. W. Wallace, trustees, and Mrs. Herbert Pennell, mistress-at-arms.

Democratic Meeting

The regular meeting of the Women's Democratic club of the Eleventh ward will be held next Monday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Berkaw, 78 S. Richardson Ave. All members are urged to attend this meeting.

BUILDING & LOAN ELECTS OFFICERS

Ezra Hill Succeeds J. W. Dinsmore as President of the Organization.

At the annual meeting of the Hilltop Building and Loan Association held at the association's offices last week, Ezra Hill was elected president ,succeeding J. W. Dinsmore, who has held that office since the organization of the association several years ago.

Harley D. Culp, secretary of the association for the past two years ,was elected to continue in that capacity. Other officers elected were: Henry Alder, vice president and the same board of directors.

The annual statement of the association, which appears on another page of this issue, shows a gain in assets for the year amounting to over $257,000.00, or 65 per cent.

Glenwood Woman's Home Missionary Society will meet Thursday, Jan. 20, at the church. Mrs. R. Reynolds will give the study book.

FINE PROGRAM AT HILLCREST

Choir Rendered Cantata, "The Christ Child," Last Sunday Evening.

A well filled house listened attentively to what may be pronounced the leading song service of the year at the Hillcrest Baptist Church, Sunday evening, Jan. 9. The cantata, "The Christ Child," was pleasing from beginning to end.

The Hillcrest choi. is to be congratulated for their successful efforts in this production. Solos, duets and trios were all very delightful.

The cantata was under the direction of W. E. Knox, well known choir leader and showed the same spirit of achievement as do all other of Mr. Knox's song services.

An outstanding feature of the whole program was the assistance given by the Robbins-Greiser String Quartet, made up of Edith Robbins, Ethel Greiser, Hubbert S. Jones and Eugene Schneider. The chorus was ably accompanied by Ferne L. Buckingham, organist.

The program was as follows:
"The Light of Promise," chorus.
"Come, Savior, Come," duet.
"The Hope of the World," duet and chorus.
"A Child Shall Lead Them," sextette.
"Wise Men Came," baritone solo.
"Peace on Earth," chorus.
"The World is Thrilled With Joy," contralto solo.
"Salvation," duet and chorus.
"The Healer of Sorrow," tenor solo.
"Christ is Our Righteousness," tenor solo and chorus.
"The Wonderful Nazarene," soprano solo.
"The Prince of Peace and Heaven," final chorus.

Mr. and Mrs. P. S. Cartmille of London, Ohio, have announced the marriage of their daughter, Virginia Jane, to Dr. Clement V. Wolfe, son of Dr. and Mrs. L. D. Wolfe, 2552 West Broad street.

The ceremony took place New Year's eve at 6 o'clock at the home of the officiating minister, Rev. Daniel F. Tittenhouse, 60 South Champion avenue, pastor of the First Baptist church. Miss Florence Brooks and Mr. Louis Howell Wolfe, brother of the bridegroom, were the only attendants. The bride and bridegroom will reside in Columbus, where the latter will be associated with his father in practice. Their home at 2558 West Broad street is nearing completion and will be ready for occupancy about February 1.

VAN SKAIK IMPROVING

Patrolman Larry P. Van Skaik, of 342 South Terrace avenue, who was removed to Grant hospital, Monday, when he was found to be suffering from a fracture of his skull, the result of having been struck by an automobile on Christmas eve, is improving. Although his recovery will be slow, his condition is reported by hospital attaches to be as good as can be expected.

MISS MILLER WINS CONTEST

Will Compete With Entrants From Other Counties Late This Month.

At the Congressional Prize Declamation Contest, held in Glenwood M. E. Church last Sunday evening, Miss Elsie Miller of the West Fourth Avenue Church of Christ was adjudged the winner.

For this achievement she was awarded a gold medal and $25, which was presented to her by Rev. B. F. Lamb, secretary of the Ohio Council of Churches.

Miss Miller's subject was "Give Us a Chance." The two other contestants for the honor are Dorothy Ingles of the West Park Avenue M. E. Church, whose subject was "The Nightmare of a Nation," and Billy Bennett of the Miller Avenue Evangelical Church and the Wilson Avenue Church of Christ.

When the Ohio pastors' convention is held in Memorial Hall, Jan. 24-27, Miss Miller will match her skill as a declaimer against that of contestants from other counties for the state championship. College scholarships and cash awards await the winners.

Mrs. C. O. Irwin, 77 South Richardson avenue, entertained members of the Hilltop Embroidery club on Wednesday, Jan. 5 at the Matsonia tea room. Covers were laid for 13 at the luncheon.

LIBRARY BENEFIT AT RIVOLI JAN. 21

For the benefit of the Holmes Hilltop Library the Rivoli theatre will donate the use of the theatre Friday, Jan. 21. The entire receipts of the show will go to the library.

Presented on that date will be House Peters in Blase Burke in "Combat," a special production in seven parts.

For the benefit of the children, Manager Pekras has arranged for the showing to begin immediately after the dismissal of the schools, being continous from 3:30 to 11.

One-Armed Man Stages Hold-Up

One armed men are as forceful as those who have two arms, providing the one hand clasps a gun.

A one armed man marched into the Capital City Oil Co. station at 2561 Sullivant avenue, Tuesday evening, Jan 4, and demanded that Frank H. Neer, attendant stick his hands up and hand over the cash. The cash register was thereupon relieved of $64.70. Two men were waiting outside in a car in which they made their get away.

Police records show that the same car belonged to Mark Hendrickson of 40 W. Gay street and had been stolen early in the evening.

Mrs. C. O. Irwin, 77 S. Richardson Ave. entertained the members of the Hilltop Embroidery Club with a one o'clock luncheon, Wednesday Jan. 5 at the Matsonia. Covers were laid for the following members: Mesdames John Evans, L. M. Sellier, Denny Wells, E. E. Shaffer, C. J. Randall, R. A. Millikin, George Matson, P. G. Gantz, G. A. Payne, T. S. Fox, W. K. Merriman and hostess. After the luncheon, election of officers was held for the new year. Mrs. C. O. Irwin, president; Mrs. C. J. Randall, vice president; Mrs. E. E. Shaffer, secretary; Mrs. Denny Wells, treasurer. Mrs. C. J. Randall will be the next hostess.

W. H. Orebaugh, 57 Eldon avenue, left last Thursday for Sarasota, Fla. He will be gone five weeks.

REV. HUTCHISON IS INSTALLED

Dr. C. H. Limouse Preaches Installation Sermon—(Special) Music by Choir.

A most impressive service before a church filled with members and friends of Hoge Memorial Presbyterian church was witnessed last Tuesday evening when Rev. Harry C. Hutchison was installed as pastor of Hoge Memorial Presbyterian church.

Dr. W. A. Perrins of Columbus, former pastor of West Broad Street Presbyterian church, presided.

Dr. A. H. Limouse, pastor of Northminster Presbyterian church, preached the sermon, taking for his text the parable of the mustard seed as found in Matthew 13:31-32: "The kingdom of heaven is like to a grain of mustard seed, which a man took, and sowed in his field: Which indeed is the least of all seeds: but when it is grown, it is the greatest among herbs, and becometh a tree, so that the birds of the air come and lodge in the branches thereof."

Dr. Limouse, in the course of his sermon, stressed the thought that the seed must be planted in our garden—in our own hearts to bring forth the kingdom of our Lord and Savior.

Dr. Frank H. Throop, pastor of Central Presbyterian church, gave the charge to the people.

Dr. William J. Hutchison, brother of the pastor, and pastor of the Boulevard church of Cleveland, gave the charge to the pastor.

The services were interspersed by the songs, "Come Let Us Join With Faithful Souls" and "Glorious Things of Thee Are Spoken," sung by the congregation.

Special music by the choir, under the direction of W. Haydn Jones, was the anthem, "Build Ye More Stately Mansions," a duet, "The Lord Is My Shepherd,' by Mrs. John Thompson and Mrs. R. P. Ranch, and a solo, "Forever With the Lord," by Mrs. Robert Gilliam. The music was very creditably rendered and added much to the beauty and impressiveness of the service.

A congregational reception for the pastor and his family will be held in the church Friday evening, Jan. 14, at 8:15 o'clock. All friends of the pastor and family are cordially invited.

The next meeting of the Music Box will be held at the home of Miss Jane Allen, 58 Blake Blvd., Friday, Jan. 14, at 7 p. m. Miss Elizabeth Kirby will be the assisting hostess for the occasion. All are requested to be present as the officers for the coming year will be elected.

WESTWOOD LODGE INSTALLS OFFICERS

At the installation services of Westwood Lodge, K. of P., last Monday A. D. Miller was installed as chancellor commander. Other officers installed at this time were: R. E. Beeber, vice chancellor; G. W. Barnhart, master of work. C. W. Ruffing, keeper of records and seal; D. G.Lear, master of finance; C. L. Lucas, master of exchequer; C. W. Cotter, master at arms; Ira Hunter, inner guard; A. Nagle, outer guard; George Heeinganer ,trustee, and M. Greuser, property trustee.

Revival at St. Paul's

The revival meetings at St. Paul's United Evangelical church, South Warren avenue are in full operation and are increasing in interest. Rev. N. J. Broadway is conducting the meetings. His subject for Friday evening will be "The Mighty Men of David," and on Sunday evening he will speak on, "The New Birth." Other subjects to be discussed are, "The Man Who Tried to Get Away from God," "A Dozen Ways to Hell," "A Man Troubled by His Thoughts," etc.

Special music each evening and a song service from 7:30 on, led by the church orchestra is a leading feature of these meetings. Meetings will be held every night except Saturday. Every one is cordially invited to attend.

A daughter was born to Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Saylor, Jan. 6.

Funeral in Vinton For Civil War Vet

James M. Hamilton, 89, civil war veteran, died Sunday, Jan. 9 at his home, 209 Clarendon avenue. He was a member of Co. B, 43rd Ohio Infantry. Surviving are his widow, Mrs. Addie B. Hamilton; a daughter, Mrs. Rosa Spahr of Oklahoma City and six sons, Charles B. of Pasadena, Harry J. of Oklahoma City, Clara J. of Denver, Bert of Vinton, O., James of Columbus and Gail W. Hamilton.

The body was taken to Vinton for funeral services and burial.

The Double Deception

By MRS. E. O. CARLSTON

When the nurse noticed the housekeeper's approach, she hastily and shamefacedly placed her letter in the top drawer of her desk, and hurried downstairs. Mrs. Wentworth, quickly found the letter, opened the envelope, took from it the letter Miss Bradford wrote, inserting one she had written in the nurse's handwriting, and again sealed the envelope, which looked exactly as it did before being tampered with.

The forged letter Mr. Morgan received ran as follows:

"Dear Sir: Your housekeeper has requested me to personally inform you that I am leaving your employ, as this part of the country is so lonely for a young woman. Mrs. Wentworth promises to take good care of your little daughter, so you need not regret my decision. I am sure she is as competent as I, in that respect. If you should care to reply to this letter, please send it in care of Mrs. Wentworth, as I have not decided definitely where I will locate, and will keep her advised from time to time as to my whereabouts."

When Miss Bradford's caller left, she went back to her room to get the letter she had written. As she descended the stairs, Mrs. Wentworth with her hat and coat on was waiting in the hall.

"My dear, I see you have a letter or a card, whichever it is, to be mailed. I am going to the village now, and will be glad to mail it for you."

"Thank you, Mrs. Wentworth, but I want to make some purchases myself. If you will kindly wait a few seconds, I will go with you."

Miss Bradford, who suspicioned nothing of the deception practiced upon her, was glad that she was to have the company of Mrs. Wentworth, and intended to let the older woman help her with the selection of a new coat and other wearing apparel which she wished to buy, as Mrs. Wentworth had just come from a busy city, while she, herself, had seen very few people during the last few months.

Mrs. Wentworth, feeling that it would be to her advantage to make a good impression on Emily Bradford, was very gracious toward the younger woman as they examined the rather limited supply of merchandise at the different stores. The few days remaining before time for Miss Bradford to make her journey eastward passed quickly to her, but slowly to Mrs. Wentworth. At last, the time arrived and Miss Bradford, after taking tearful leave of the baby who had been committed to her care, hastened toward the vehicle waiting in front of the large house which was to convey her and her trunk to the railroad station. Mrs. Wentworth accompanied her, and as they parted at the station, she asked Miss Bradford to write often, which the young woman promised to do.

CHAPTER III

Several weeks time elapsed before Mrs. Wentworth received a letter from Mr. Morgan addressed to Emily Bradford in care of the housekeeper at his home, as he had been requested to do in the forged letter he had received. Mrs. Wentworth carefully opened it in the privacy of her room. It was a short letter, regretting that Miss Bradford preferred life in the city to the one she had once been so contented with in the days before and immediately following his wife's death. To express his appreciation of the loving and efficient services she had rendered toward his wife and baby, he sent her a check for a generous amount of money and hoped she would reconsider her decision to remain with his child at least until his return from Europe.

"Now, that I have been away so long, I long so much to see my little daughter, whom I shamefully neglected while I was with her," he wrote. "I expect to return soon, as I grow more anxious every day to see her."

"Hmf!" Mrs. Wentworth ejaculated "He expects to return soon. That means that I will have to hurry."

Again, she made use of her power to imitate skillfully anyone's handwriting, and wrote a letter to Miss Bradford purporting to be from Mr. Morgan to the effect that he was very sorry hi recent financial reverses had caused her to be compelled to seek other employment. Mrs. Wentworth could not decide what to do with the check. If she should forward it with the letter to Miss Bradford, that would prove that Mr. Morgan's financial affairs were not so bad after all.

She finally decided to return it to Mr. Morgan without explanation, addressing the envelope in Miss Bradford's writing. This would cause him to feel that Miss Bradford did not care to accept a check from him, and that she was rather insolent in her manner of returning it. He would probably be disgusted with such a show of ingratitude, and would not take the trouble to even inquire for her on his return from Europe.

That part of the underhand business being settled, Mrs. Wentworth at once transferred her attention to the other part. The following afternoon, she detailed each of the servants to some special duty, which would occupy their time steadily for several hours. Then she went to the nursery.

As Miss Bradford had done, she looked from one baby to the other, noting the strong resemblance. For a few seconds, her conscience condemned her for laying the little plot she had in mind, but the thought of the apparent future of her baby compared with the Morgan child re-aroused her jealousy, and she quickly went to work.

"Little Beatrice Morgan is not likely to live long anyway," she muttered to herself, to soothe that horrible pang of conscience. "My little Norma may as well be known to the world and to Frank, himself, as Beatrice Morgan, while the name of Norma Wentworth will die with this little favorite of Emily Bradford's. Glad I was clever enough to get rid of her."

In less than a half hour, both babies clothes were changed ,and little Beatrice Morgan lay in the crib that had been brought from the attic for the use of the child saved from the railroad wreck. Baby Norma, not knowing that her fortune had been suddenly increased, proved her unamiable disposition by sending forth some loud cries when she was placed in a strange bed.

"This will never do," Mrs. Wentworth said to herself. "Servants, though usually dumb creatures ,always get smart at the wrong time. They all know that my baby is as cross as a bear."

For several days, she gave the heiress a certain small amount of drugs which caused it to sleep most of the time. Gradually, she lessened the dose, until everyone became accustomed to the new state of affairs. Weeks passed. Still Mr. Morgan did not return. Contrary to Mrs. Wentworth's expectations, the real daughter of Mr. Morgan began to improve in health, and all doubt about her full recovery was removed; but the wicked woman's plans for the future of her offspring were not changed. Mr. Morgan returned from Europe early the following summer. He did not mention Emily Bradford's name. Every day, he went to the nursery, where he amused the child he thought was his own, and did not pay enough attention to the wronged baby to even notice the resemblance between them.

CHAPTER IV

Eighteen Years Later

"Where in the world is that dress my my dressmaker sent to me yesterday?" The question was asked by Beatrice Morgan, now a young lady, who was supervising the packing of trunks and suitcases, which were to be sent to Wayland's Select School for Girls, where Miss Morgan was to spend one more year, which would complete her education. Although she had possessed dark curly hair when a baby, she was now decidely of the blonde type, and presented quite a contrast to the other young girl in the room with her, who was a brunette, having dark hair, lovely brown eyes. She was clothed in a maid's uniform. Fortunately for her, she had an exceptionally good disposition, which was often taxed to the limit by Beatrice Morgan, who was anything but kind to the servants.

"Are you going to answer my question, Norma?" Miss Morgan inquired.

"The dress you want is in the bottom of this trunk," Norma Wentworth replied.

"You always have a way of putting everything I want in a place where it is hardest to find. Unpack that trunk immediately, and find that dress. I want to wear it to the party tonight. You will have to press it for me, now. And mend this stocking for me. I do wish I could persuade father to move to the city. I do not like to wear clothes that have been mended just as though I were someone's maid, and there is no time to send away for a new supply. Hurry up and get that dress for me," she said ,stamping her foot angrily.

"I am hurrying as fast as I can. This trunk is full, and cannot be unpacked in a second."

"Why in the world did you put that dress in the trunk ,you imbecile? You should have known I would want it."

"I asked you just a short while ago what you wished to wear to the party and you told me you preferred the one just received from Boston yesterday."

"No back talk, now. I do not intend to ask permission from my maid when I wish to change my mind. Curl my hair next, and be quick about it."

Norma hastened to do Miss Morgan's bidding, and after a very unpleasant hour and a half, Beatrice was ready for the party; and having changed her mind about a party dress at least a dozen times, at last decided to wear the one Norma had brought her in the first place. Norma again folded the dress Beatrice had decided not to wear. As she looked out the bedroom window into the yard below, she saw Beatrice step into Donald Benson's machine, and the young couple were soon lost to her view as the big car rolled toward the main road.

Norma wearily sat down beside the window, and became lost in thought. She imagined herself in Beatrice's place. How nice it would be to have pretty clothes, be able to go away to school, attend parties, and enjoy all of the other things that go toward making the life of a young girl pleasant and happy.

Feeling very tired from the unpleasant hours she had spent that day, due to Beatrice Morgan's whims and fancies, she arose wearily to her feet, and set about tidying up the room. Yielding to a sudden desire, she hastily changed from her own unbecoming clothes to the cast aside party dress belonging to Beatrice Morgan. She, herself, was startled at the vast difference in her appearance. Yielding to the impulse of the moment, and forgetting her tired feet, she started to whistle as softly as possible, a merry little tune she had often heard in the reception room downstairs, when Beatrice was giving a party. For a few moments, Norma forgot everything. She danced around the room to the time of her own music, occasionally glancing at her graceful figure in the long mirror, and wishing again and again that she were an equal of Beatrice Morgan's, instead of an unpopular servant in the Morgan home.

Her thoughts for a short time, were centered so entirely on herself, that she did not notice that the door of the room had opened, and that someone had entered the room. Suddenly, she felt a rough hand grab her arm, and turning, she saw Mrs. Wentworth.

"Now, you get that dress off and come downstairs. If you have so much energy you don't know what to do with, take it out by working in the kitchen. You can wash the dishes, and scrub the floor for me. After that, I will find something else for you."

Tears blinded Norma's eyes. It seemed that she did not have a friend on earth. This woman, whom she supposed to be her own mother, never gave the girl a kind word. Norma went obediently to the kitchen, where she was kept busy until late that night. When her tasks were finally completed, she climbed the stairs to a small, badly ventilated room on the third floor, and fell into an exhausted sleep.

The next day ,Beatrice Morgan took her departure, much to Norma's relief, as the services of a maid were of necessity dispensed with during the school term by Miss Morgan. Mrs. Wentworth had been looking forward to the time when Norma would have more time to assist her with the cares of the household, and if the girl expected to have any rest after Beatrice went away, she was mistaken. The housekeeper gradually kept adding new duties to Norma's list of tasks, until the young girl felt that she was doing all the work, and that her mother was being paid for it.

It was Mr. Morgan's custom to pay the housekeeper and his servants twice each month, by check. One day, Mrs. Wentworth and Norma went to the village to get their checks cashed at the bank. The older woman had been in the habit of using most of the money belonging to Norma for herself, and Norma had begun to feel recently that, since she had passed her eighteenth birthday, she was old enough to use her own money in her own way.

nection with the evening meal was finished, Mrs. Wentworth, still very angry, went to Norma's room, intending to get the girl under her thumb again.

"What did you mean by your action at the bank this afternoon, young lady? Who told you that you could have charge of your own money? Answer me," and she shook the girl violently.

"Because, in this state, a girl of eighteen is not compelled to submit to anyone's authority. If you had always been a good mother to me, I would be a dutiful daughter to you. As it is, I owe you absolutely nothing. I work harder around this place than you do, and should be getting part of your salary instead of giving you all of mine."

The knight was in addition to her maid uniforms. When Norma bade Mrs. Wentworth goodbye, she kissed the woman mechanically, as she felt it was necessary to do when taking leave of her mother. Although Mr. Morgan had heard that the girl was leaving, he did not even take the trouble to see that she reached the railroad safely. However, John, the chauffeur, had a liking for Norma, and when the cook told him that the girl was going away on the night train, he made a sudden decision. When Norma carrying a small bundle, wrapped in paper, and a little handbag containing a small amount of money, which she had managed to save unknown to Mrs. Wentworth, closed the door after her, she saw John's own car, a small roadster standing in front

WHALES' YIELD VALUABLE

There are several kinds of whales and each one is valuable for certain products. The fat meat of all whales yields large quantities of oil, but the best is obtained from the sperm whale which lives in warmer waters.

The beluga or white male is caught chiefly for its skin from which valuable leather is made. This is used in the manufacture of machinery belting, shoestrings, traveling bags and other articles where a tough leather is desired.

The bowhead whale furnishes us with whalebone. The whale is a large creature but has a small throat and therefore lives on small fish. Hanging from the roof of its mouth is a fringed sheet of bony material which prevents the fish from escaping from the mouth after once entering it. A sheet of whalebone is several feet long and weighs half a ton or more.

Recipes

SPICED CRANBERRY JELLY

Pick over and wash one quart of cranberries. Add one cup of boiling water and cook until the berries are soft. Press through a sieve and add two cups of sugar, one-third cup of cold water, and a spice bag containing a piece of cinnamon, two dozen cloves and six allspice berries. Bring to the boiling point and simmer gently for about 15 minutes. Add a few grains salt, turn into a mold and chill. Serve with delicate meat.

APPLE SALAD

Pare, core and dice apples enough to make two cupfuls. Drop them into cold water with a little lemon juice to keep white. Dice a cupful of celery, a quarter cupful of minced red peppers, and a cupful of lettuce cut to ribbons with kitchen scissors. Drain the apples and toss all ingredients together in a half cupful of heavy mayonnaise made without mustard, to which a few drops of onion juice has been added. Serve in lettuce leaves and garnish with a little chopped English walnut sprinkled on top.

CRANBERRY SALAD

A lettuce leaf filled with cranberry jam, sprinkled over with cream cheese which has been put through a sieve. Add chopped nuts as a top garnish and serve with French dressing made with lemon juice instead of vinegar.

SWEET POTATOES WITH APPLES

Boil five small sweet potatoes with the jackets on for ten minutes, remove the skins and cut into small pieces. Pare and chop five small apples and place with alternate layers of the potatoes in a buttered baking dish. Pour over the top half a cup of maple syrup and an equal quantity of water and bake slowly.

APPLE AND SAUSAGE SANDWICHES

Make sausage into round, flat cakes, fry brown and keep hot in the oven. Remove the cores from tart apples and cut crosswise in half-inch slices, without paring. Fry in the sausage fat, then arrange on platter as sandwiches, a sausage between two rounds of apples.

1003 BUSES IN EGYPT

Within the shadow of the Sphinx 1003 motor buses are now traveling back and forth serving the population which formerly depended on the camel. Modern transportation is making a bustling land of the country once ruled by King Tut.

Motor vehicle equipment in Egypt consists of 8891 private cars, 4233 taxis, 1533 trucks, in addition to buses, as reported by the American Trade Commissioner at Cairo to Walton Schmidt, who is visiting the land of Cleopatra on behalf of the National Automobile Chamber of Commerce.

The German cruiser, Hindenburg, which was sunk by her crew six years ago in Scapa Flow, is to be the next ship to be set afloat again. Twenty-one smaller warships have been brought to the surface, so far, by means of wires passed under them and fastened to floating docks, but the Hindenburg is too heavy to respond to this treatment. It is hoped that she can be made to rise by having the water pumped out of her. To do this the sea cocks and portholes which were opened by the crew to sink her will have to be cemented or closed with steel. This means that tunnels will have to be dug in the sea bed, and the barnacles and seaweed will have to be scraped away before operations can be begun. It will take twelve divers six months to complete operations, and after that forty pumps will pump out sixty thousand tons of water in twelve hours, and the Hindenburg will rise gently to the top.

SOCIAL WORKERS STAGE SURPRISE

All-Day Meeting Ends in Surprise for Mrs. Louis Neff, Wife of Church of God Pastor.

The social workers of the various congregations of the Church of God met for an all-day meeting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Mont Ball, 386 S. Park avenue, for the purpose of filling baskets to distribute to the sick and shut-ins over the city that they had been visiting throughout the past year.

Fifty baskets beautifully trimmed with paper and tinsel of the Yuletide colors were gorgeously filled with fruits, nuts, candy and cake and distributed to the sick and shut-ins, some of which to mention were the Franklin Tuberculosis hospital, Toledo Tuberculosis hospital.

It would be impossible to describe in words the expressions of love and gratitude displayed on those who received the baskets, which not only overflowed with good things to eat, also an abundance of a real Christmas spirit. And this spirit as manifested coming from so worthy a congregation was only natural as they believe with all their hearts these words spoken by the master Jesus, "In as much as ye have done it until the least of these my brethren ye have done it unto me."

By noon the baskets were all filled and Mrs. Ball called the workers from labor to refreshments, and a delicious luncheon was served and enjoyed by all. But the big surprise was yet to come, as from an upper chamber came the singing of the old familiar hymn, "We will work for Jesus." Whereupon all rushed to that part part of the house, where behold a room beautifully decorated, lighted with various colored lights and candles displayed a sign bearing this inscription: "Merry Christmas, Clara," and a host of packages and bundles, a surprise party for Mrs. Clara Neff, wife of Rev. Louis Neff, pastor of the Hilltop Church of God. Mrs. Neff was much surprised that her coworkers had put this party over on her.

The keenest enjoyment was enjoyed by all as Mrs. Neff opened the various packages, displaying the many beautiful gifts.

The meeting was adjourned by prayer and song.

It would be impossible to express in this column the appreciation of the social workers to their charming hostess, Mrs. Ball for her help and cooperation and the use of her home, which was so beautifully decorated for the occasion, and they extend to her and her family, God's richest blessings. May God continue to use her to His honor and glory, and a Merry Christmas and a happy New Year to you all.

On this particular day, Mrs. Wentworth, as she had always done, opened her purse at the bank and presented both checks to the teller, who immediately gave her an equivalent amount of money. He divided it into two parts, supposing Norma would place her share in the small leather purse she carried; but Mrs. Wentworth attempted to pick up all of the bills before her, intending to do as she had always done. A sudden idea occurred to Norma, and she was surprised at herself to know that she really intended to carry it out. Before Mrs. Wentworth had pocketed the bills belonging to Norma, the girl spoke quickly to the teller with whom she was well acquainted, as in their childhood, they had attended the same school, one advantage Mrs. Wentworth had not been able to seize from the girl.

"Wait just a moment, please, Jack," she said. "I have decided to start a bank account. Take this money, and give me an account book."

For a few seconds, Mrs. Wentworth stared at the girl with a perplexed look on her face. She did not want the town-folk to have the same opinion of her that Norma had, so consequently refrained from saying anything just then, and decided to wait until they went home. All through the afternoon, a silence fell between them, and Norma realized that a turning point in her life had come. How she wished for an ideal mother, one who was capable of self-sacrifice, who thought more of her children's enjoyment than of her own!

That evening, after the work in connection with the evening meal was finished, Mrs. Wentworth, still very angry, went to Norma's room, intending to get the girl under her thumb again.

"What did you mean by your action at the bank this afternoon, young lady? Who told you that you could have charge of your own money? Answer me," and she shook the girl violently.

"Because, in this state, a girl of eighteen is not compelled to submit to anyone's authority. If you had always been a good mother to me, I would be a dutiful daughter to you. As it is, I owe you absolutely nothing. I work harder around this place than you do, and should be getting part of your salary instead of giving you all of mine."

The words were uttered so fast that Mrs. Wentworth did not have time to interrupt the speaker, but when Norma stopped for breath, the older woman was furiously angry. Seizing the whip she had used when Norma was a child, Mrs. Wentworth administered hard, cruel blows to the young girl, who, deply humiliated by the act, did not have the strength to make any resistance. When finally Mrs. Wentworth's anger subsided a little, she put the whip where she had found it, and said sternly to the girl.

"So long as you remain under the same roof with me, you will be governed by my wishes. Do you understand?"

Norma arose from her chair and looking the older woman squarely in the eye, said:

"Yes, I understand. So long as I remain under the same roof with you, which will not be very long. I do not intend to sneak away in the night. It is not necessary, as I am of age, and can go when and where I please. I am going now to find Mr. Morgan, and acquaint him with certain characteristics of his housekeeper."

Before the surprised woman could reply, Norma hurried past her, and true to her word, went in search of Mr. Morgan. She found him at the front door, bidding goodbye to some guests. He turned around after closing the door, and would have passed on down the hall without noticing Norma, if she had not called his name. He turned around.

"What do you want?" he asked bluntly.

"I want you to know that my mother gave me a severe whipping a short while ago, for an unjust reason. Look at my wrists," and she extended her arm to show him the flesh that was still bleeding.

"That is not my affair," he said, mercilessly. "I have enough troubles of my own without worrying about the affairs of my servants," and he walked away, leaving the girl with one more wound of the spirit, and went to his writing desk, where he wrote a long letter to his idolized daughter, Beatrice.

Mrs. Wentworth had overheard the conversation and laughed to herself at the success of her little plan. For some time, she had wished that the girl would go away, as she did not like for the past to be continually looming up before her. An observant person might have noticed that the features of Norma Wentworth more strongly resembled the picture of the deceased Mrs. Morgan that those of the girl known as Beatrice Morgan.

Norma knew that a train left the village at ten o'clock that night, so she hastened to make the necessary preparations for her journey, which was very few, as she had only two dresses, old ones that Beatrice did not want, in addition to her maid uniforms. When Norma bade Mrs. Wentworth goodbye, she kissed the woman mechanically, as she felt it was necessary to do when taking leave of her mother. Although Mr. Morgan had heard that the girl was leaving, he did not even take the trouble to see that she reached the railroad safely. However, John, the chauffeur, had a liking for Norma, and when the cook told him that the girl was going away on the night train, he made a sudden decision. When Norma carrying a small bundle, wrapped in paper, and a little handbag containing a small amount of money, which she had managed to save unknown to Mrs. Wentworth, closed the door after her, she saw John's own car, a small roadster standing in front of the house. John, himself, was at the steering wheel, and the cheeriest voice she had heard that day, told her to "jump in," which she did.

After John started the car, she noticed that he had brought a traveling bag. Answering the unspoken question in her eyes, he said:

"Yes, I'm beatin' it, too. Tired workin' for that indecent bunch. Old Morgan acted mighty independent with you, but he'll have a heck of a time to get a chauffeur around here. Nobody wants to work for him."

They had reached the little village, where gossip was the principle occupation of the inhabitants. As John slowed down at a cross road, the sound of laughter reached their ears.

"It's Morgan's maid and chauffeur running away to get married," one cried out.

"And I bet they swiped the silver ware," another said loudly.

"Aw, dryup," John said as though provoked, when in reality he was amused. After he had started on he said to Norma:

"Cheer up, little girlie. We'll soon be out of this bum town."

REV. McFARLANE TO ACCEPT CALL

Pastor of Hillcrest Baptist Church for Five Years Will Resign Sunday.

Rev. Edward McFarlane will close his work at the Hillcrest Baptist church Sunday, Feb. 13. He has accepted an unanimous call to the pastorate of the El Dorado Baptist church of El Dorado, Kansas.

Rev. "Big Jim" Kramer, who had just finished a series of meetings at El Dorado in December recommended Mr. McFarlane to the El Dorado church. He received an invitation and preached there Jan. 9. Until that time he had no thought of making a change.

Mr. McFarlane has been at the Hillcrest Baptist church for the past five years. Last Sunday marked the beginning of his sixth year. Coming here from Franklin, Ohio, he has always been well liked and has gained great numbers of friends and built up the church membership from 120 to 450. During his first years at Hillcrest the church property was valued at $3000 but the rapid strides taken in the past few years has enabled the church to invest in the present building valued at $175,000. This building originally intended for a theatre, but was rebuilt into a church. These fine years of service will long be remembered by people of the Hilltop and vicinity who know Rev. and Mrs. McFarlane.

A statement from the El Dorado Times follows: "Mr. McFarlane was given an invitation to come to El Dorado last night at a congregational meeting. The membership of the church was well represented and not a single dissenting vote was cast."

The church he is going to has 540 members and a recent issue of the Chicago Baptist states that it is the largest church in the state of Kansas. Their new $150,000 church was dedicated last May.

Several conflicting statements have been previously published in the daily papers as to Mr. McFarlane's resignation which have all been false. He has not yet resigned, but will do so Sunday, Jan. 22.

WEST BROAD ST. SCHOOL NOTES

The program for assembly Friday morning follows: Bugle call, assembly, Janet Sword. Pupils march in to music by the orchestra. Prayer, school; music, school orchestra; song, "When the Banjo Plays," boys' glee club; presentation of 6-A's gifts to the school by Margaret Michel and Richard Hall; song, "Slumber Boat," school; announcements

Miss Hutt's 6-A's had 101 per cent in banking this week, the highest any school has had. All of the 6th grades made fine gains.

The 6th grade pupils who have made the greatest improvement in writing and those whose writing ranks highest will be granted certificates in penmanship next Wednesday morning by Mr. Arthur Skeates, supervisor of penmanship.

LIBRARY BENEFIT AT RIVOLI FRIDAY

House Peters as Blase Burke in "Combat," a special production picture in seven parts, will be shown next Friday, beginning at 3:30 and continuing until 11 o'clock, the showing to be given for the benefit of the Hilltop Library. On the program will be a comedy, "Pleasure Bound."

Manager Pekras has donated the use of the Rivoli theatre and the use of the film for this benefit and all proceeds will go to the library.

Dr. Myra Chafee, 2059 Floral Ave., returned to her home from Syracuse, N. Y., Saturday, Jan 15. She was accompanied by her mother, Mrs. W. B. Thewalt, of Milwaukee, Wis. Dr. Chafee is recovering from a serious illness with pneumonia. She was called to Syracuse, Dec. 9, by the sudden death of Mr. Chafee's father, Charles W. Chafee. Mr. C. L. Chafee, who has been in Florida since Jan. 4, is expected home this coming Sunday.

CLASS PLAY FRIDAY EVE.

Highland 9-A Dramatic Graduating Class Will Present "Miss Somebody Else."

"Miss Somebody Else" the Highland Jr. High 9-A graduating dramatic's class play will be given Friday, Jan. 21, at West Broad Street school, 7:30 p. m. The school orchestra will play before and between acts.

Under the instruction of Miss Moss, dramatics teacher, the pupils are putting on a real play. Both the pupils and Miss Moss have worked hard and by the way they have practised, it's about the best play yet.

The story is about a young society girl, Constance Darcy, the part taken by Miss Jean Randall, who by acting as an Irish maid, helps out Mrs. Ann Delevan, (Frances Herron) make her club house a success. The maid also catches a crook, Ralph Hastings (Ralph Tordiff). A thread of romance runs through the entire play. Mr. Beverly Dean, as Cruger Blainwood, plays a distinguished role opposite Miss Randall.

Freda Mason	Aileen Langthorne
Alice Bradly	Betty Cannon
Mrs. Herrick	Eilleen Langstaff
Fay Blainwood	Gertrude Alford
Celeste	Marjorie Simmons
Mildred Delevan	Martha Milliken
Bert Shaffer	Bill Coon
Sylvester Crane	Charles Wymer
John	Ralph Harper
Jasper Delevan	Harold McLaughlin
Mrs. Blainwood	Jessie Dodd
Susan Slater	Lois Biddle

The W. H. S. M. club met last week at the home of Miss Helen Douglas of N. Eureka Ave. After a business session refreshments were served to the following: Helen Hartley, Gertrude McCloud, Mary Logan, Mary Wiseman, Gertrude Corrigon, Marie Fisher and Minta Daughtery. The club will meet tonight at the home of Minta Daughtery of N. Eureka Ave.

300 ATTEND RECEPTION

For Rev. Hutchison and Family at Hoge Memorial Church Friday Night.

All doubts to their being welcome to Hoge Memorial Presbyterian church were dispelled from the minds of Rev. H. C. Hutchison and family last Friday night when members and friends of the congregation tendered them a reception at the church, which will long be remembered for the genuine good fellowship and friendliness which prevailed.

On the committee on arrangements for the reception, headed by Dr. R. P. Rauch as chairman, were: Mrs. F. P. Sperry, Mrs. O. V. Metzger, Mrs. S. McIntosh, Miss Hazel Linville, Miss Catherine Sperry, Mr. W. H. Orebaugh, Mr. M. K. Weber, Mr. R. O. Harrison, Mr. W. H. Jones, Mr. H. G. Deems.

At 6:30 a supper was served to the 300 guests present, the supper being followed by toasts from representatives of all departments of the church. H. G. Deems acted in the capacity of toastmaster and carried out a program of toasts that was indeed unique in its character. While Mr. Deems was making his speech preparatory to calling for the toasts, he was continually interrupted by a messenger boy—George Matson, jr.—with messages which proved to be from each person who was to respond to a toast and were from the following: Miss Hazel Linville, representing the Guild; Mrs. R. O. Harrison, the Endeavor society; Mrs. O. V. Metzger, the Woman's Missionary society; Mrs. Mary Sperry, the Ladies' Aid; W. H. Jones, the choir; Miss Catherine Sperry, the primary department of the Sunday school; George Matson, the adult department; S. E. Pool, the trustees; A. W. Jordan, the deacons; and Dr. R. P. Rauch, the elders.

At eight-thirty adjournment was taken to the church auditorium where a program of music was rendered by the choir members consisting of anthems, duets and solos.

Dr. George F. Barber of Glenwood M. E. church welcomed Rev. Hutchison and family to the Hilltop, not only as pastor of Glenwood church but as a representative of all the churches of the community. This address was responded to by Rev. Hutchison.

Memories of Hoge Memorial was given by W. H. Deems, superintendent of the Main Street Mission

The committee deserve much praise for the carrying out of a program which undoubtedly required much time and thought on their part.

St. Paul Revival

The revival meetings that are in progress at St. Paul's United Evangelical church, South Warren avenue are increasing in interest and attendance. Rev. Broadway, who is conducting these meetings will preach Thursday evening on "What Is Your Name," Friday evening, will be Sunday school night. The entire Sunday school has been urged to attend. A number of children's choruses will be sung this evening and the subject will be, "Lost, Strayed or Stolen." Sunday evening Rev. Broadway will preach on "A Dozen Ways to Hell." The following week he will preach on "The Man Who Tried to Get Away from God," "The Books Opened" and "Past Feeling."

Every afternoon, children's meetings are being held from 3:30 to 4:30. Black-board talks and object lessons are given. The public is cordially invited to any of these meetings.

KIDDIES FREE SHOW AT RIVOLI

Another one of the series of the Rivoli Theatre's popular free shows for the kiddies on Saturday morning will be shown next Saturday morning at 10:30. The film selected by Manager Pekras for this entertainment of Hilltop children is "The Council of National Defense." All Hilltop children are invited to this show.

The Woman's Missionary society of Hoge Memorial Presbyterian church will meet this afternoon at the home of Mrs. A. L. Wagner, 61 N. Burgess Ave., with Mrs. Beckett assisting hostess. The devotional period will be conducted by Mrs. Hutchison. The leaders for the meeting are Mrs. Jerman and Mrs. O. E. Jones. Mrs. Held will read a paper on China, and Mrs. C. C. Cook will sing.

WEST WINNER OVER AQUINAS

West High school landed its first victory in the high school basketball contest Friday night by taking home a score of 28-20 against Aquinas on the Central floor.

West led the first quarter 10-0 and continued to hold their lead although the second quarter was pepped up to an exciting point by the shooters from Aquinas. They kept gaining in the third quarter and in the last quarter outscored West by one point. The good start in the first quarter brought about by Walker's shooting put the West team in the winning light.

Knipfer, the diminutive captain of the Aquinas team, along with Beckwith and Durbin were the shining lights for Aquinas.

CHANGE IN HAUNTZ'S TELEPHONE NUMBER

After going to press we are advised of a change in the telephone number of Hauntz's grocery and meat market at Hague and Broad. The number being RAndolph 4450. This change in number is made necessary by a change of the telephone system in the store whereby there will be three different telephones all having the same number, RAndolph 4450.

The number at the Terrace Avenue store remains unchanged.

JAMES THEATRE FOR HILLTOP

September 1 will probably find another new theatre on the Hilltop. It was announced Friday that the plot of land at West Broad and the south east corner of Ogden avenue had been purchased by the James Theatre interests and that plans were being made now for a new $300,000 theatre building.

The property was purchased from Grace T. Webber, widow of the late Karl Webber by William M. James, president of the organization. The details were in the hands of the Pavey-Johnson' company.

The plans for the new building are being completed by C. Howard Crane. Mr. Crane designed the A. I. U. building and the James and James Eastern theatres. It will have a seating capacity of from 1500 to 1800 people. It will be but one story in height.

The plot extends 120 feet on W. Broad and 180 feet on Ogden avenue but will only partially be taken up by the building at present. A plot on the corner of 90x90 feet will not be used at present but will be beautified and later used for business purposes.

The auditorium will be 90 feet wide and 120 feet deep. It will have a 30 foot entrance on the eastern corner leading to a lobby 90 feet long running north and south. This places the seats facing Ogden avenue. There will be a mezzanine floor with lounging rooms for men and women but will have no balcony.

The James management states that motion pictures only will be shown at its completion but that facilities for vaudeville and community affairs will be installed for later use.

JOHN BURROUGHS SCHOOL NOTES

A creditable program, in charge of the 6-A boys at John Burroughs school was given at the assembly, Friday morning, Jan. 14, when Temperance Day was observed.

The exercises which followed closely the program sent out annually by the National W. C. T. U., consisted of patriotic songs, readings and quotations. "The Right Kind of an American Boy" was emphasized by seven boys from the 6-A grade.

These programs are arranged for both upper and lower grades and aim to develope the idea of achievement of national freedom from alcoholic beverages.

Children from grade 1 will have charge of the assembly program, next Friday, Jan. 21.

The 5-B's from Miss Smith's room were 100 per cent in the number of depositors in the school savings bank last week.

SCOUT TROOP 45 INVESTS

Eight Boys at Mound Street School—Other Troop Activities.

The Investiture Patrol invested 8 boys at Mound Street school Monday, Jan. 10. The patrol has now taken over forty boys into scouting.

An inter-patrol contest was held last week. The meet was won by the Beaver Patrol, under patrol-leader Robert Wolfe, with 28 points. The Eagles, led by James Matheny came in second with 18 points. The dart throwing event was won by Bob Wolfe of the Beaver Patrol. Cox, also a Beaver, won the equipment race. The Beaver's patrol team of Wolfe and Harper won the signaling. Bob Wolfe established a new troop record for fire by friction at 30 seconds formerly held by Charles Thurston. The barrel tilting honors went to James Matheny of the Eagle Patrol.

The meeting was in charge of Mr. John Smith, assistant-scoutmaster, Charles Thurston, junior assistant-scoutmaster, and John Wolfe, senior patrol leader. The troop contest which has been running for the past four months, is in charge of A. W. Elliott, scoutmaster. Points are given for presence at meetings, hikes, good turns, etc., with the Beaver Patrol leading, the Kangaroo second and the Eagles third. The patrol and individual standing is as follows: Patrol standing, Beavers, 317; Kangaroos, 272; Eagles, 260. Individual standing, Tallman, 91; R. Wolfe, 90; Matheny, 85; Harper, 62; Cox, 59; Markeson, 52; Gaib, 47; Koontz, 41; Miller, 36; Addison, 35; Marsch, 34; Cooper, 31; Foster, 30; Welch, 30; Walker, 29; Johnston, 27; Schenk, 19; Contillier, 19; Jones, 18; Baird, 12.

A troop newspaper is published monthly by J. Wolfe. Mr. George Cooper, father of Bob Cooper presented the troop with a fine portable phonograpt last Wednesday evening. The troop hopes to make good use of it at Ladder Lodge, patrol meetings, etc. Mr. V. E. Wolfe, father of two boys in the troop, is building a chariot for the troop's participation in the Scout Show.

Mrs. William Horn, dressed in a white robe and holding a lighted torch, read the opening scripture lesson. Mrs. Summers sang, and Mrs. Patton was at the piano. Over [illegible] program which followed: Prayer Praise and Thanksgiving for the seven years of Prohibition, Victory Day, Jan. 16, 1927, Mrs. Hale read a chapter on the 18th amendment and the progress since it went into effect. All enjoyed the social hour with Mrs. Combs. Dainty refreshments were served.

Mrs. Howard W. Steele of Newark, Ohio, was a guest of Mr. and Mrs. F. H. Donahue, 2040 Sullivant Ave., Tuesday.

HIGHLAND AVE. P.-T. A. MEET

Supt. Collicott Addresses Meeting—Many Attend Good-Fellowship Supper.

One hundered people were served at the pot-luck supper of the Highland Avenue Parent-Teachers' association and between 150 and 175 more came later to hear the program given in the basement of the Glenwood Methodist church on Tuesday evening, Jan. 11.

High school activities, the teachers of Junior High being the guests of the P.-T. A. together with superintendent and Mrs. Collicott and their daughter.

A short business meeting was held, followed by an interesting and instructive program, the first number of which was given by a mixed chorus from Junior High, under the direction of Miss Trump. Three numbers were sung, entirely different in character, showing excellent interpretation and training.

The 8-A dramatics class, under the supervision of Miss Moss, gave a most entertaining and amusing playlet entitled, "Susan's Finish," showing the splendid work being done.

Mrs. Benton, president of P.-T. A. made the announcements, stressing the work and sucess of Highland Avenue P.-T. A. and her happiness in the fine attendance and support given the organization.

Interest in the 9A play entitled "Miss Somebody Else," which will be given in the auditorium at West Broad street school on Friday evening, Jan. 21, was stimulated by the playing of parts of two of the sets.

Superintendent J. G. Collicott, was introduced by Cecil J. Randall, president of the school board, whom Highland Avenue P.-T. A members among her members. Mr. Collicott's talk on the Junior High school brought out many helpful, instructive and constructive points. He showed that the Junior High school grew out of the need for a stepping stone or bridge to gradually swing the students from the seventh and eighth grades into real high school work without a break and, without the temptation to leave school after the completion of eighth grade work, with its graduating exercises, etc., and not finish high school. He spoke of the necessity of fine building programs and their carrying out, with proper equipment for physical comfort, but stressed the need for provision for young people in the physical, mental ,moral training and the opportunities offered by the various lines of education, and the flexible course of study given in the Junior High and the chance to find the right line of endeavor for active life work.

Principle Keighley made a short talk, showing how the parents can assist the pupils, whose natural pride in their school is their incentive, by their cooperation in planning for better attendance, less tardiness.

Revival Meetings

Revival meetings are in progress at the Sullivant Avenue Friends church with Rev. Paul B. Lindley, former pastor of the church in charge. Meetings will be held each night this week and next, with the services beginning at 7:30 o'clock. Rev. Howard H. Green is pastor of the church.

Mr and Mrs. Oscie Steele, 91 N. Hague Ave., have as their guests Mr. and Mrs. Virgil Steele. Mr. Steele has just received his discharge from the navy, after three and a half years overseas service. Mrs. Steele is a native of France, her home town being Royan, France. They are at home to their friends at 91 N. Hague Ave. for the present.

HI-Y STUDENTS AT HOGE MEMORIAL

Hi-Y students, an organization of high school boys, had charge of the evening services last Sunday at Hoge Memorial Presbyterian church and rendered a program of addresses and songs.

Kenneth Kidd acted as chairman of these services. In a few words Mr. Baldwin explained that the Hi-Y was an organization of high school boys banded together for the purpose of living a Christian life, and were invited to membership on a basis of scholarship, clean living and Christianity.

"Some" addresses were given by members of the organization. James Williams speaking on "Clean Speech and Clean Scholarship"; Henry Turpett, "Clean Sports and Clean Living"; William Hoffman, "What the Church Owes the Youth"; and Roger Smedaker, "What the Youth Owes the Church."

At the close of the addresses, Rev. Hutchison summarized the talks.

NEW METHOD OF HANDLING COAL

Mechanical Method of Handling Coal Eliminates Breakage —Saves Time and Money.

Desiring to serve their customers with clean, dry coal at a minimum cost in time and labor the West Side Lumber Co. last summer installed five huge coal silos through which all the coal delivered from this yard must pass.

Through this method the coal is handled mechanically from the time it leaves the mine until it is loaded into the wagon or truck to be delivered to the customer, thus eliminating time in handling and a great amount of breakage, and reducing the fine coal often prevalent in handling coal by the old hand method, to the least possible amount.

When a car of coal is received at the West Side company's yards the coal is dumped onto a conveyor which elevates it to the top of the silos and placed in the bins preparatory to loading into the delivery truck. Before the coal enters the truck it passes over a mesh screen, letting any possible fine coal or dust drop out before reaching the truck, thus assuring the customer of clean lump coal.

An interesting description of this process will be found in the West Side company's ad on page five of this issue.

The Double Deception

By MRS. E. O. CARLSTON

Author of "Two Freedom."

For a while both sat in silence. Then John spoke up again:

"Norma, I wish what they said just now was true." John was a good one-hand driver. With his large right hand, he took hold of her small fingers.

"It's pretty hard for a girl like you to back up against a cruel world like the one we're livin' in. Let's go east, and buy a cute little bungalow."

Norma heartily wished that she could with all her heart says "yes" to John, as she dreaded the days immediately before her, but she had no intention of marrying herself out of the difficulty, so she told John the truth about her feelings.

"Thank you, John. You are the nicest boy I know, but I do not want to marry anyone yet. I—"

He did not allow her to finish her statement, and with both hands now tightly grasping the steering wheel said:

"I see. You want to shift for yourself, and have a half dozen at your heels. All right; up to you."

"Now, John, don't increase my trouble by getting mad at me, because I like you too well to marry you when I don't love you." Her voice was so pathetic, the tenderhearted John was won over immediately.

"It's all right, honey. I'll try to be satisfied with seeing you now and then, if you'll let me have your address. Where you goin'?"

Tears came to Norma's eyes.

"I don't know."

She did not inform him of the fact that she only had enough money to take her to the next state, where she intended to work for a while until able continue her journey eastward, as she wanted to go as far in possible from old scenes that were unpleasant to think about. They soon reached the railroad station where she boarded the train that was to take her into a different atmosphere. John intended to drive through, so he committed Norma into the conductor's care, who happened to be a friend of John's.

"My address, if I ever reach it, will be the Park Hotel, Syracuse, New York. Be sure to write to me, telling me where you are, as you will likely need a friend," was the parting injunction of the faithful John.

"Thank you, John, and I am glad to know that I have one like you," she replied.

CHAPTER V

This was the first time Norma had had an opportunity to travel by rail, and she really enjoyed the first part of her ride. Then she grew weary and fell asleep. The next morning, the conductor woke her from her slumber.

"Better wake-up; next stop is yours," he said.

Norma rubbed her eyes sleepily, and glanced through the window at the lovely autumn scenes before her eyes, which were continually changing as the train sped along. This day was the beginning of a new life to her, a turning point in her existance. She wondered if she would be able to obtain work; also thought of what would happen if she should fail in her undertaking. But Norma determined to succeed, to rise above every obstacle that might confront her. Her immediate cause for worry was the limited amount of money she carried with her, barely enough to pay for one night's lodging and two or three meagre meals. She intended to write a letter to Jack Holden, the cashier of the bank in Carlinville, asking him to send her the amount she had deposited with the bank, by mail.

Just before noon, the conductor came to her to tell her that the next stop was Belleville, which was the point of the young girl's destination. As Norma walked away from the depot and toward the heart of the big city, where she intended to at once begin her search for work of some kind, her head was in a whirl. She had never seen a city street car, and the unfamiliar noises caused by the hustle and bustle of a big city grated unpleasantly on her ears. Her eyes wandered continually to the tops of the tall buildings.

She walked down one of the main thoroughfares for several blocks, searching for an inexpensive place to eat. Finally, she caught sight of a sign: "Meals, fifty cents." She entered the restaurant, and ordered her lunch. After satisfying her hunger, she paid the cashier and once more joined the throng of shoppers and employment seekers. She bought an "extra" from a newsboy on the corner, and turned to the "Help wanted" columns. She carefully read the short list.

"Experienced girl for office work—General housework—girl for soda fountain—experienced waitress—etc." Nearly all of the advertisements contained the word, "experienced." General housework did not appeal to her, and she determined to accept it only as a last alternative. She went from place to place, sometimes to be turned down flatly, and others where she was asked to fill in application blanks. She interviewed the manager of a Five and Ten Cent Store, where she received more encouragement than anywhere else. The small salary she would receive would at least keep her from starvation.

"There may be an opening in a week or so," she was told. Norma left the store with a faint hope for her future welfare, and finally decided to answer the advertisement for someone to do general housework, which, if she should be accepted, would give her the temporary relief she needed before the time appointed by the manager of the store. With tired, aching feet, she walked slowly down the street intending to inquire of someone where Fernwood avenue was located. It was already growing dark, and Norma had no idea where she would sleep that night. She was worried about money matters. Then, she noticed that someone a short distance ahead of her had dropped something that looked like a purse. The lady who had lost it was evidently unaware of the fact, as she hurried on without stopping. Norma picked up the pocketbook, and opened it to examine the contents. There was a large roll of bills, and some small change, also a woman's handkerchief and an embossed card, bearing the name, "Mrs. Nellie Browning, with the address, 512 Portland Place, written in the lower left hand corner with black ink.

Norma looked longingly at the roll of bills, as she walked along, and remembering that it was not good policy to handle money when exposed to the view of strangers, she hastily closed the new found purse, which she carried carefully thereafter.

An Improved New Method

---To Help You Save!

Under the old system of unloading coal, still in use in so many yards, coal was not handled—it was manhandled. The coal cars, run onto the siding at the yard, were unloaded by hand and reloaded by hand for delivery. This 100 per cent handling resulted in great breakage as the coal was thrown to the ground and into the delivery truck. The coal, when delivered, was dirty, full of fine slack—stuff that went up in your furnace in a mere puff of smoke without giving heat in return. The method was slow because of the prolonged process of handling. The system was everything but satisfactory. It was an old-fashioned method, causing despair both for the coal dealer and coal consumer, that lingered long after other less important methods had been improved.

That system is now extinct at the yard of the West Side Lumber Co. Here coal is unloaded mechanically from the cars and kept in the huge bins illustrated on this page. One man controls the entire loading and unloading process. Coal cars which enter our yard are unloaded by gravity. The great hoppers and bucket lift that transport the coal to our bins do it so gently, so carefully, that breakage is reduced to a minimum. The coal is left in the large lumps that came from the mines. Because our system, instead of necessitating 100 per cent handling, is 100 per cent mechanical, this is possible.

By this improved method, which includes the passing of coal over a coarse screen just before it leaves our yards, coal comes to you absolutely clean. Our system rids your home of smudge and coal dirt. Coal which is loaded for delivery at our yard is placed in trucks entirely by gravity. There is no throwing of coal from the ground into the trucks, which, under the old method, resulted in great breakage and natural decrease of value to the buyer. A delivery truck is brought close to the storage bin, the gravity loading gate is opened and in less than a minute almost two tons of coal are loaded upon the truck. The great saving in time required for loading the coal as a result means rapid delivery in response to your order, a factor appreciated by every person who buys and uses coal. Under the old system of handling, loading of coal meant delay in delivery.

Hundreds of tons of coal are kept, without the usual cluttered appearance that accompanied the old method of handling. These storage bins save time—save coal—save money—not only for us but also for you. More than that, they save you much unnecessary dirt because of which so many housewives dread to see winter approach. Big lumps of coal mean very little dirt.

The bottom of each iron chute is made of coarse screen, through which all fine coal and slack drops into the waste bins beneath. This waste is sold to the large industries for developing steam power. Thus your home is rid of the smudge caused by slack.

A single order will convince you that our coal is better; that it is free from dust and will give you more heating units than any coal you can buy. Ton for ton, our coal will give you greater warmth power, far more satisfaction because it is clean, and not only that, it will save you money in the end.

MORRIS PLAN BANK SUCCESS

Loans Granted on Character and Earning Power of the Applicant.

The end of the 1926 calendar year brought to a close the first seven months' operation of the Columbus Morris Plan bank, 78 East Gay street, and the books of this industrial bank show that 3160 applications for loans were received.

Loans were granted on the character and earning power of the applicants and practically every walk of life is represented. Many women have taken over the responsibility of loans for debts closely allied with household management, it is pointed out.

The Morris plan has grown in 17 years from one small company to 100 institutions with more than $140,000,000 resources and a loan record of more than $700,000,000.

THREE BOYS DISAPPEAR

From Juvenile Research Bureau on West Broad Street Sunday Night.

Police this week were looking for 3 boys, inmates of the Bureau of Juvenile Research, who escaped last Sunday night. They are Albert Butterett, aged 14, Cleveland; Joseph Galdamfkaf, aged 16, of Cleveland, and George Cresante, aged 17, of Akron. They were wearing overalls and had no hats.

The boys are believed to have returned to the bureau Monday night, broke into the employes' quarters, and stole four rings, a wrist watch and a blanket.

HILLTOP GIRL SCOUTS ACTIVE

In the last two merit badge examinations held by the Franklin County Court of Awards, Troop 31, Girl Scouts of Hilltop Church of Christ, was represented by more entries than any other troop in the county, and in each case all entries were successful. This troop was among the many organizations to send a friendship doll to Japan for the National Doll Festival. The girls are especially indebted to Mrs. Dunlap, Mrs. Downs and Mrs. Hubbard, all mothers of scouts and the latter two members of the troop council, for their assistance in preparing the wardrobe for the little tourist's long journey.

Troop 31 promises to hang up a merit badge record during 1927.

REV. WILLIAM G. FAGAN RESIGNS

Glenwood Director Religious Education Accepts Call to the East.

Rev. William G. Fagan, director of religious education at Glenwood M. E. church, has resigned to accept a call to a church in the East. Mr. Fagan has been with Glenwood since September, coming here from Lansing, Mich., where he was director of a large community house.

Mr. Fagan, though a native of California, spent a large part of his life in Ontario, where he took college and seminary work previous to entering the ministry, and where he subsequently spent seven years in the pastorate. Leaving Ontario five years ago, he spent three years in the pastorate of a Congregational church at Middleboro, Mass. During his pastorate at Middleboro, Mr. Fagan studied at Boston university, from which institution he received the degree of Master of Arts and Master of Religious Education.

Since coming to Columbus Mr. Fagan has taken an active interest in the development of week-day religious education in the city, and especially on the Hilltop, being chairman of the Hilltop Week-day Religious Education committee, and also a member of the Franklin county committee on week-day religious education.

Mr. Fagan leaves this week to take up his new duties. Mrs. Fagan and son Billy leave Friday for a visit with her parents in Hamilton, Ontario, previous to joining Mr. Fagan in their new work.

An Effective Argument for Grade Crossing Elimination

The accompanying illustration shows the damage done to the rear end of a Columbus and Springfield bus after being hit by the Big Four Flyer last Thursday afternoon at the West Broad street crossing of the Big Four. Two people lost their lives and several were injured in the accident. City council Monday night passed emergency legislation to speed up the elimination of this crossing together with others in the city equally as dangerous.

HEAVY RAINS FILL CELLARS

Inadequate Sewers Cause Sullivant Avenue Residents Much Inconvenience.

Basements and cellars of residences and business houses near Sullivant avenue and between Clarendon and Burgess avenues were "all wet" Friday and Saturday.

Several feet of water backed up into the Ritz Theatre basement and completely drowned out the fire in the furnace. Goods and merchandise were also slightly damaged in some of the stores.

All this flooding is the result of an inadequate sewer system. A sewer system authorized by the county is being held up by the courts. The Supreme Court has ruled that the county can not assess the cost of the sewers on the property owners.

The Women's Foreign Missionary society of West Park M. E. church will meet Friday evening at 7:30 o'clock at the home of Mrs. Norman Pahl, 1780 Binns Blvd. A special program will be given and initiation of members will take place. All members are urged to be present.

NEW ORGAN FOR RITZ THEATRE

The Ritz Theatre, the new playhouse on Sullivant avenue, which gave its first showing of motion pictures early in the month when many people were turned from its doors because they could not be accommodated, has proven very popular with its patrons of this section.

Already added improvements are being made and will be in operation within a few days. Miss Jesse Sena, popular in local musical circles has charge of the musical settings.

The Bethany Bible class of the Hilltop W. C. T. U. met Friday afternoon at the home of Mrs O. H. Carter, 60 N. Hague Ave. This being the third anniversary of the founding of the class, Mrs. Welch, founder, gave a resume of the class history

CHURCH OF CHRIST YEARLY MEETING

The yearly meeting of the Hilltop Church of Christ will be held Tuesday evening, Feb. 1, at the church on South Burgess avenue. An interesting program has been arranged by the committee in charge, and it is hoped all members and their friends will attend.

Reports from the different organizations of the church will be given, and an interesting program has been arranged for the entertainment of those attending The Sword sisters will play.

After the business there will be a social hour and refreshments will be served.

Mr. R. F. Buscher, 2000 Fairmont Ave., returned to his home, Monday, Jan. 17 after undergoing an operation at University hospital. His condition is fine and his friends all wish him a speedy recovery. He is an employe of the Jeffry Mfg. Co.

TO RUSH GRADE CROSSING WORK

Council Passes Emergency Measures to Rush Work on Menace Elimination.

By council's action Monday night two emergency measures became effective at once, declaring the necessity of eliminating the Big Four grade crossing at Camp Chase, and the Pennsylvania crossings at Cleveland avenue, Eleventh avenue and Seventeenth avenue.

A bond issue was voted at the last November election to finance the city's share in the cost of the elimination of these grade crossings, and the ordinances demand that plans for this work be made within the next three months.

The fatal accident at Camp Chase last Thursday, when two were killed when a Big Four passenger train hit a Columbus and Springfiel bus, speeded up the actions of council in this elimination work.

MISSION DAY IN M. E. CHURCHES

District Superintendent Designates Next Sunday, January 30.

District Superintendent W. C. Hartinger has designated Sunday, Jan. 30, as home mission field day in M. E. churches of Columbus. Home mission speakers are being provided in cooperation with the board of home mission and church extension of the denomination.

It is expected that many aspects of the board's work will be presented. The work reaches from Porto Rico to Alaska and Hawaii, and includes extensive church building activities as well as support of missionaries in every conceivable type of field from the rural community to the city center.

Assisting hostesses for the monthly meeting of the Social club of Robert Morris Chapter, Order of Eastern Star to be held Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. John A. Moore, 57 S. Wheatland Ave., will be: Mrs. George James Drumm, Mrs. Rose Lauer, Mrs. Effie Brown, Mrs. Helen Ritchie, Mrs. Stanley Colburn, Mrs. William Jones and Mrs. E. J. Drye.

WEST BROAD ST. SCHOOL NOTES

On Friday, Jan. 21, the pupils of the 6-A's represented by Margaret Michel and Richard Hall, presented to the school a bird bath and the nucleus of a school library, consisting of thirty books. The money for these gifts was raised by a popcorn sale. Every one is proud of the gifts and the boys and girls who gave them. According to custom, the 6-A's choose the last assembly program, and are seated on the stage to witness it. They have chosen the following: Bugle call, Assembly. Janet Sword; pupils march in with flags to orchestra march; Song, "Star Spangled Banner," school; The Lord's prayer, entire school; Psalm 24, entire school; music, kindergarten orchestra; "Song of the Flag," school; announcements; signals and return to rooms.

Mr. A. G. Skeeles, supervisor of writing, presented certificates of improvement and excellence in writing to fifty-seven 6th grade pupils on Wednesday. The children have had Miss Olive Hicks as their teacher.

Father's Meeting

The next meeting of the Hilltop Child Conservation Circle will be a Father's Meeting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. G Guyer, 254 N. Burgess Ave., Thursday, Jan. 27, at 7:30 p. m.

The program consists of readings by Mrs. H. R. Lee, vocal numbers by Mr. F. P. Brown accompanied by Mrs. Alice Jones, instrumental numbers by Henry Shultz.

The speaker for the evening is Rev. William G. Fagan, Director of Religious Education at Glenwood M. E. church.

The social committee, Mrs. H. R. Lee, Mrs. R. H. Campbell and Mrs. C. W. Rucker will have charge of the social hour that follows.

Mrs. C. W. Daugherty, 97 S. Roys Ave., entertained the Keith Embroidery club at her home Friday, Jan. 21.

MILK TRUCK HITS SEDAN

It does no good to cry over spilled milk. That's why the Monroe and Ross Creamery Co. failed to weep Monday evening when many quarts of their product was thrown to the street and completely lost.

It was this way. The big Monroe and Ross milk truck was coming up North Ogden avenue about 4:30 when it sideswiped the Dodge sedan of L. W. Byerly which was sitting in front of his home at 38 N Ogden Ave. No one was in the car. The side of the sedan was dented and scarred very much had broken milk bottles and milk was strewn over the street.

Mr. Kermit J. Leach, son of Mr. and Mrs. D. B. Leach, 62 Westgate Ave., was married to Miss Bertha Denny, Jan. 15 in the Arch Street Methodist Episcopal church, Philadelphia, Pa., in the presence of a few friends. After spending a few days in New York, Mr. and Mrs. Leach are at home at 2828 S. Iseminger St., Philadelphia. Mr. Leach is a graduate of Ohio State University in the class of 1925 and is associated with the Navy and Aircraft Co., Philadelphia.

JOB'S DAUGHTERS WILL INSTALL

A public installation of the officers of Job's Daughters, Bethels No. 1, 3 and 5, jointly, will be held at York Temple, Saturday, Jan. 29 at 8 o'clock.

The DeMolay boys will be guests of honor at the installation after which a dance will be given.

Mrs. Marie Barnes Scott is guardian for Bethel No. 1, Mayor James J. Thomas, is associate Bethel guardian.

In Bethel No. 3, Mrs. Maxwell and Mr. Allan W. Williams are Bethel, and associate Bethel guardians, respectively, while Mrs. Emile Groeb is Bethel guardian for Bethel No. 5 and Mr. Emile Groeb is associate Bethel guardian.

"Community Church"

A new "Community Church" is being built on West Broad street at Garden Heights addition. For the present, services are being held in the fourth brick house on West Broad street. Rev. Dale Crites is the pastor.

Story Hour

The children's hour at the Holmes Hilltop Library, corner South Park and West Broad street, will have character building stories pertaining to truthfulness and honesty for Saturday, Jan. 29 from 1 to 2 p. m. Mrs. H. G. Guyer will conduct the "Hilltop Child Conservation Circle and story telling hour. Serving will be Mrs. W. C. Mettle and Mrs Harry Justus.

The W. H. S. M club met at the home of Miss Minta Daughtery last Thursday night. Those present were: Gertrude McCloud, Helen Hartley, Marie Fisher, Lillian Smoot, Martha Skipper and Minta Daughtery. The club will meet this Thursday with Miss Helen Hartley of 101 N. Eureka Ave.

GUILD WILL GIVE 2 PLAYS

"The Betrothal of Mai Tsung" and "Missionary Arithmetic" Friday Evening.

The Eureka Guild of Hoge Memorial Presbyterian church will present two missionary plays Friday evening, Jan. 28, in the gymnasium of the church. The plays are entitled "The Betrothal of Mai Tsung" and "Missionary Arithmetic."

The first play, "The Betrothal of Mai Tsung" is a play of China today, the scenes being laid in a Chinese home in Peking and a room in a girl's dormitory of an American college. Those appearing in the cast and the parts they take are as follows:

Those appearing in the play "Missionary Arithmetic" and the party they play are:

Doctor McWilliams, Bess Sperry; Nurse, Dorothy Jordan; Aunt Wilda, Hazel Linville; May, Mrs. Henry Jones; Estella, Mrs. Robert Gilliam; Tot, Kathryn Thompson; Gertrude, Mrs. Hadyn Jones; First Indian Woman, Margaret Renner; Second Indian Woman, Ruth Yates; Third Indian Woman, Flossie Gabriel.

Mrs. A. C. Markert, 310 S. Ogden Ave., is home from Mt. Carmel hospital where she has been for ten days. Her friends are glad she is convalescing so rapidly.

BUS HIT BY BIG FOUR TRAIN

Two Persons Lose Lives and Several Injured Last Thursday.

A Big Four train smashed into a D. & C. Transportation Co. bus at the West Broad street crossing and instantly killed two Columbus men and injured six others at 1 o'clock Thursday.

Those killed were Dr. Leonard Buffington, aged 45, of 845 Deniston Ave., and Daniel Davis, aged 32, of 215 S. Grubb St.

Those injured were Alfred Hannauer, aged 27, of Springfield, driver of the bus; Norris Dettra, 53, of Oakes Pa., shocks; Mrs. I. B. Vent, of Dayton, head bruises; William S. Castle, 35, Worthington, shocks; Walter Gallegher, 21, London, face cuts; Mrs. Ruth Murry, 30, West Jefferson, face cut. They were taken to Mt. Carmel hospital.

The bus driver claims that a heavy fog obstructed his view and he did not see the approaching fast train. He got out of the car and looked up and down the tracks but when he proceeded to drive across the flying train caught the rear end of the bus and killed the two men who were sitting in the rear seat.

The watchman, James A. Stropes of 59 N. Princeton Ave., claims that he was on duty and that the bus driver did not take heed to his warning whistle but only slowed down then drove forward onto the tracks.

The train was travelling so fast that it was not brought to a stop until a mile down the track. W W. Keefer of Columbus was the engineer. He states he did not see the bus before they hit.

Passengers of the bus confirmed Hannauer's statement that the bus was stopped before crossing was attempted. He says he did not see a watchman at the crossing.

Dr. Buffington was returning from a business trip to London. Davis was employed by the Buckeye Blower Co. He had been married but a month ago. He was returning from a job at Dayton.

This crossing is one of those to be eliminated soon at the request of the voters in the November election. Bonds were approved for its elimination at that time. Work will probably begin on the crossing in the fall.

Rev. and Mrs. Hensles entertained with a noon day luncheon Monday, Jan. 17, at their home, 1482 Sullivant Ave. The following guests were there: Evangelist F. L. Koopenhoffner, Rev. and Mrs. Dominic Catanese, Mrs. Thomas Payne and Miss Louise Ogan of Circleville, Ohio.

Revival Closes Sunday

Sunday evening will mark the close of the three weeks' special service that have been in progress at the St. Paul's United Evangelical church, South Warren avenue. These meetings have been well attended, full of interest and many decisions were made.

The subects for Thursday, Friday and Sunday are as follows: Thursday, "The Judgement"; Friday, "Past Feeling"; Sunday, "So Near and Yet So Far"; Sunday evening, "Heaven."

New members will be received into church fellowship Sunday morning.

Miss Beatrice Boggs, 225 Guernsey Ave., has been entertaining at her home, Miss Dora Pennington of Linton, Ohio, who was her class mate at Oxford college.

GAY TO SING AT HILLCREST

The well-known sweet-voice tenor, Lewis H. Gay, will sing two numbers at the Hillcrest Baptist church next Sunday night; "Gloria," Buzzi-Peccl; and "Jesus Lover of My Soul," McDougal

Mr. Gay has always been a great supporter of Mr Knox in all his musical activities—for years with the First Baptist choir and all through the oratorio society's long existence and other choruses.

Mr. Knox and his church choir are appreciative of his help on past occasions and are jubilant over the opportunity of hearing him again as will all his many friends on the Hilltop.

Play a Success

"Miss Somebody Else" presented by the 9-A class of the Highland Avenue Junior High school on Friday night, Jan. 21, at the West Broad Street school auditorium proved to be quite a success in the way of a school production.

The auditorium was filled to capacity, there being many present who stood against the walls.

The play was a comedy in four acts, written by Marion Short.

The Double Deception

By MRS. E. O. CARLSTON
Author of "For Freedom."

"Why should I return it to the owner?" she asked herself. "Quite likely I need it worse than she does."

For a while she struggled with her conscience; then throwing her head back proudly, she decided not to add a guilty conscience to her list of troubles, and immediately set about trying to locate the owner of the lost money. She asked a policeman who seemed to be waiting for a street car about the location of Portland Place.

"I'm waiting for a car that passes there, myself. Just follow me, and you'll find your party all right," he said.

Norma was glad to have his protection, as finding her way about in a strange city was undesirable to a girl brought up in a country home many miles distant from even the smallest city. After a half hour's ride Norma reached her destination. She searched for the number written on the card, and was soon ringing the doorbell at a house that would make even the Morgan mansion look rather plain, if the two buildings had been side by side.

A servant admitted her, and she was immediately shown to Mrs. Browning's private sitting room, at the lady's request. Norma timidly ascended the marble stairs, preceded by a servant, and was soon in the presence of the mistress of the home.

"Mrs. Browning, I presume?" Norma inquired courteously.

Mrs. Browning was a tall, well built, exquisitely dressed elderly woman of about seventy-five, and contrary to the young girl's expectations, appeared to be a lovable woman, rather than the haughty proud creature Norma had expected to see.

"Be seated, dear," she said kindly. "What do you wish to say to me?"

"Did you lose anything this evening, Mrs. Browning?" Norma questioned. The woman looked surprised.

"Why, no; I don't think so. Wait a moment."

She disappeared from the room, and returned in a few minutes with an anxious look on her face.

"I have lost my purse," she announced, "although I did not know it until just now. Have you found something belonging to me?"

Norma did not reply, but handed the lost article to the owner, who felt grateful to the girl for returning it, as it contained over a hundred dollars. Mrs. Browning noticed by Norma's appearance that the girl needed money badly. After a few seconds thought the woman made a decision.

"I feel very grateful to you for your honesty, and since you have been so good, I want you to accept a favor from me."

She gave the pocketbook with the full amount of its contents to Norma, who half reluctantly accepted, as she was badly in need of money, and felt that she would seize this unusual opportunity. Yielding to an impulse, she asked Mrs. Browning to recommend a hotel or boarding house of good repute, where the rates were reasonable.

"Are you a stranger here?" Mrs. Browning questioned.

"Yes," Norma replied. "This is the first day I ever spent in a big city."

"Where do you lived all the time?" Mrs. Browning questioned, becoming interested in Norma's personal affairs. "Tell me about yourself."

Norma, being of a frank disposition, gave Mrs. Browning an account of her life as she remembered it.

"It is hard for me to believe that your own mother would be so cruel to you, but you have proved to me that you are honest, and I cannot doubt your word."

Norma had given Mrs. Browning the exact location of her old home, and, although she did not tell Norma, she decided at once to write to a friend of hers who happened to live in the neighborhood of Mr. Morgan's home. Aloud she said to the girl:

"If you have no place to stay tonight, I will be glad for you to remain here with me. Tomorrow, we will see what arrangements can be made for your future."

Norma felt very thankful for the offer, which she accepted graciously. Shortly after partaking of her evening meal, she retired to the room Mrs. Browning had designated for her use that night. The girl found it necessary to fight against the little pang of homesickness that possessed her. Being unaccustomed to city noises, it was very late when she finally went to sleep.

The next morning she opened her eyes, expecting to hear Mrs. Wentworth's stern voice telling her to "march right to the kitchen." Instead, the door of the room opened, and a servant entered with her breakfast neatly arranged on a silver tray. To Norma, who was used to waiting upon others, this little kindness of her benefactress filled her with unutterable gratitude. At Mrs. Browning's request, Norma remained with her for a week, after which, she again began her search for employment. She secured a room at a modest boarding house, where the fare, though plain, was well prepared. Her room was very plain, quite different from the one she had used in Mrs. Browning's home.

The tenth day of Norma's life in the city found her back of the hardware counter in the Ten Cent Store, where she continued to work for several weeks. One day, as she was wrapping a package, a pleasant voice called her name, and looking up, she saw Mrs. Browning.

"How are you getting along, my dear?" the lady asked kindly.

"Very well, thank you," Norma replied.

"Would you like to come out to my house for dinner this evening?"

"I should like to very much."

"Then I shall send the car for you at five-thirty," Mrs. Browning promised.

That evening, Mrs. Browning made a proposition to Norma.

"How would you like to live here with me always?" she asked.

"Oh, it would be delightful, but—"

"No 'buts' about it. I need a companion. My husband died ten years ago, I have no children, and only a few relatives. If you would like to have a better education, I will see that you have all the desired advantages in that line. In return for this, all I ask is that you obey my wishes, which I trust will not be hard for you to do. I, also, want you to read to me occasionally, as my eyesight is very poor, and I am very much interested in literature. Are you satisfied to make this bargain?"

"But it seems like an imposition on my part. You are giving all and receiving nothing."

"Your companionship will repay me for all that I can do for you."

CHAPTER VI

Beatrice Morgan, due to her unpleasant disposition, was not a favorite with the other girls who attended Wayland's Select School for Girls, which was located in one of the New England States, in the city of Eastfield. The ground on which the school was built was bordered on one side by the state highway, and on the other by a river, which was used to afford amusement to the students, both in warm and cold weather. In summer, it was a place to swim; in winter, an excellent skating rink.

About a mile down the river from the girl's school, was a college where most of the students were young men, most of the girls in that section preferring to attend Wayland's school. Although Beatrice Morgan could not boast of many friends of her own sex, she delighted in the fact that the other girls envied her when it came to popularity with the young men from the neighboring institution. Beatrice was careful to conceal her real nature from the boys, and as flirtations were as necessary to her as food and water, she made every effort to increase her popularity among the students of Clinton University.

One afternoon in mid-winter, when the ice formed a solid surface on the river, Beatrice and some of the other girls went skating.

"Remember to return before four-thirty," they were cautioned by the matron, as they hurried away from the building.

"Yes, we'll be back at about five-fifteen," Beatrice said, when they were out of hearing distance.

"There is Warren Allison and George Wyman," announced one of the girls, pointing toward the river.

"Hello, Warren!" Beatrice called out. "How did you get away without being noticed. I thought you little boys weren't allowed to come this way on your skating trips."

"Bother about what we're allowed to do," declared Warren. "Come on, let's see who beats in the place where Yellow Creek joins this river. One; Two! Three! Go!"

The party, consisting of some half dozen girls and the two young men started off swiftly, taking the opposite direction from Clinton College. The desired point was about one mile up the river. Beatrice was an expert skater and usually when in a race, started out a little behind the others, catching up with and passing everybody when nearing the goal. This time, she did the same as usual, and being unable to stop at the exact spot, she skated several yards past the desired point, where the ice was rough. She made a faulty step, and her ankle turned and she fell. Warren, who was not back of her, helped her to her feet.

"Hurt yourself?" he asked.

"I can't bear my weight on my left foot," she told him. "Don't see how I can get back to the school."

"You have sprained your ankle, and there is only one way for you to return, and that is in my arms. I'll have to carry you back."

Beatrice did not particularly enjoy being carried, even by Warren, as her foot pained severely. In less than half an hour Beatrice and one or two of the other girls returned to the dormitory. It was several weeks before Beatrice was able to resume the sport she loved so well. By that time the coldest part of the winter had passed, and skating season was almost gone. Then came the Easter vacation. Most of the girls were wildly enthusiastic over the prospect of going to their respective homes; but Beatrice did not share their delight.

"I should die of 'ennui' out there in that section of the country where my home is, at this time of the year," she told herself. "Believe I will stay here during vacation. Warren is not going home either. Funny how I make all of my plans to correspond with Warren's."

She looked at her pretty spoiled face in the mirror.

"Beatrice Morgan, don't you fall in love with him, now. Have a good time with all of 'em; make them fall for you, don't tumble, yourself."

Beatrice loved slang phrases.

She heard footsteps coming toward her door. As she turned from her dressing table, Helen Cail entered the room. She shared the other girls' opinion of Beatrice, but knowing that Warren Allison and George Wyman were good friends, having a desire to become better acquainted with George she had decided to invite Beatrice to spend the week's vacation at her home, which was located near both schools.

"Going home for Easter?" she asked.

"No, I have decided not to."

"Have you made other arrangements?"

"Not yet."

"Would you like to come home with me?"

Bright Velvet Hats Gayly Top the Midwinter Costume

A velvet hat this season is either very stylish or it isn't—it all depends. To win the mode's approval this season the velvet hat must possess chic in the truest sense of the word. Ordinary, commonplace velvet headwear plays no part in this season's fashions—but the velvet chapeau of commanding smartness, that is a different story.

Because the bright velvet hat so enlivens somber furs, and because the velvet hat is flattering to its owner, it remains the choice of women of fashion who are weary of the little felt shapes, and who take no interest in the glittering gold and silver hats such as are so "popular" this season.

Each of the velvet hats here interpret some one or more inimitable style touches: that is why they were so carefully selected for illustration. There is that perky little velvet toque shown second at the top. It requires the skill of the "milliner born" to produce anything so effective and of such artful simplicity as this model.

Two of the velvet toques, as here shown, bespeak the unusual in that they are embroidered in white pearls. That is, the very attractive model at the right center is pearl embroidered. The little toque shown centered to the left prefers to wear its pearls in the form of wing-shaped effects posed to one side.

The compose velvet hat in one of the style items featured this season. For it the milliner employs two or three colored velvets. An ombre effect is attained in this way, by the velvet model below to the left in that it employs three velvets, pale green, reseda green and deep jungle green.

For th shirred velvet model illustrated to the right, at the top, the designer chooses nasturtium colored velvet, alternating this with beige.

USE OF WATER ON INCREASE

Columbus used 9,996,000,000 gallons of water during 1926, an increase of 3.2 per cent over the 9,505,000,000 gallons used in 1925, the annual Waterworks Department report shows.

Average daily water consumption was 27,400,000 gallons, against 26,000,000 in 1925, the per capita per day consumption jumping from 92.8 gallons to 96.1 gallons based on a population of 285,000.

A total of $1,173,696.50 was paid in for water rent against $1,126,586.76 in 1925. Cash received by the department from all sources totaled $1,367,052.85.

Columbus had the softest water since 1915 during the year, according to the report, the hardness being 7.2 per cent below the average for the past 18 years and 2.2 per cent below the 1925 average.

The department laid 105,823 feet of cast iron mains against 100,562 feet in 1925. Number of feet of small mains laid, however, dropped from 46,310 to 24,424.

McKinley Banquet

The Republican Glee Club of Columbus will hold its thirtieth annual McKinley day banquet and reunion on the evening of Feb. 1, in the Elks' home on East Broad street. James T. Begg, member of congress from the Thirteenth Ohio district, will be the principal speaker.

The club will celebrate in the customary manner with favorite songs. Former President William McKinley will be recalled to memory by the singing of "Lead, Kindly Light," his favorite song, as one of the features of the evening.

William E. Kershner, a personal friend of Mr. Begg and a member of the glee club will preside as toastmaster.

Recipes

Salmon, Cucumber Appetizer

This is a modification of an afternoon tea sandwich. Allow one-quarter of a cup of salmon meat, either fresh, boiled or canned, and one-half a cucumber with one-half tablespoon of tartar sauce, for making these dinner sandwiches. The bread should be cut in very tiny shapes, either round or any other shape desired. The fish and cucumbers are chopped and mixed with the sauce and the sandwiches made as usual. When these tiny bits of sandwiches are used as dinner appetizers they should literally not have more than two or three mouthfuls in each. Little cutters shaped like clovers, hearts and so on make very pretty dinner sandwiches.

Little Fruit Puddings

Prepare a slice of bread for each one to be served. Have ready three eggs, one-half cup each of chopped raisins and chopped citron, one-quarter teaspoon of salt, one quart of milk, three eggs and a cup of sugar.

Beat the eggs well and combine with the sugar, salt, milk and fruit.

Have ready small buttered custard cups and pour in part of the mixture, filling only about two-thirds full.

Trim each slice of bread round or shape with a cookie cutter and place one of the bread circles on top of each custard cup.

Sprinkle with sugar and place the cups in a pan of hot water. The puddings should be baked for about 40 minutes in a rather slow oven. They are served with any desired pudding sauce.

Fruit Compote.

Two oranges, one-quarter pound grapes, one apple, one banana, one-quarter cup powdered sugar, 12 maraschino cherries. Prepare the fruit and cut it all in tiny pieces, being careful to remove seeds and pulp. The fruit is then mixed with the sugar and placed in a glass serving dish. Decorate with the cherries and place in the ice box to chill thoroughly before serving.

Pineapple Layer Cake.

An inexpensive but delicious and festive looking dessert, is pineapple layer cake. Make it with ordinary cake layers, or, if you choose, with sponge cake layers. Only a half pint of cream is necessary, since the crushed pineapple is moist. Spread the pineapple and a little cream between the lower layers and save most of the cream to spread over the top with the pineapple. One can of pineapple will do for the ordinary size cake.

Banana Filling.

1 large banana, 1 cup granulated sugar, 1 egg white, mash banana, add sugar and egg white. Beat all together about twenty minutes or until the mixture slides off spoon easily. Use filling on any cake foundation.

Wire egg beater is best to whip mix-

COMMUNITY FUND OFFICERS NAMED

Directors of the Community Fund and Council of Social Agencies, in annual session, Friday night reelected their officers, chose members of the budget and finance committees and named five directors of the Community Fund to serve for one year.

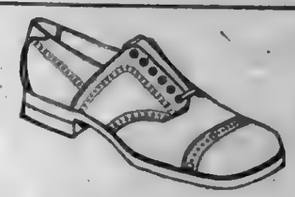
The shouting beetle, which is doing extensive damage in South Africa, is to be attacked by airplanes, since other methods of extermination have proved unsuccessful. The planes will be used for the distribution of an arsenical powder or dust over the trees. The pest is spreading rapidly over South Africa, and thousands of eucalyptus trees are in danger. It is also hoped to introduce some Australian parasites, which destroy the shouting beetles and thus save the plantations.

MISS KEEFER IN RECITAL

On Monday, Jan. 31, Miss Edith I. Robbins will present Miss Edna Keefer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Keefer, in a public recital at Glenwood M. E. church. Miss Keefer has completed a course in elocution at the Hilltop School of Music on Midland avenue, and will receive a certificate at this time. Last spring she won the oratorical contest conducted by the Franco-American Goodwill association and was rewarded with a trip to the historical northwest.

The program follows: Trio for Violin, Cornet, Piano, intermezzo from "Cavalleria Rusticana," Mascagni; Helen, Muriel and Gwendolyn Blair. Impersonations, (a) Italian, (b) Irish, Miss Keefer. Violin duet, Charles Johnston and Paul Zellers. Musical reading, "A Spanish Duel," Waller, Miss Keefer, accompanied by Miss Greiser. Piano solo—"Herald of Spring," Frimi. Ralph Hill. Reading, "Mr. Brown Has Had His Hair Cut," Miss Keefer. Piano Concert in D, Mozart, Gwendolyn Blair, second piano, Miss Greiser. Readings, (a) "The Old Fashioned Girl," (b) "Gois' to Mary Jim," Miss Keefer. Violin solo, "Rosary," Nevin, Walter Reinhard. Reading, "The Weaver," Edgar Guest, Miss Keefer. Presentation of Certificate, Dr. George F. Barber, D. D.



Horseshoes are now to be equipped with rubber heels, with suction cups to prevent slipping on slippery streets. The heels are adjusted so that most of the animal's weight is thrown on the heel, thereby reducing the wear on the shoe calk and lessening the danger of injuring the horse's foot. When the shoe is worn too much to be effective on slippery streets, it is still good for several weeks' wear in the summer.

The accompanying illustration shows the angle at which the Big Four railroad tracks cross West Broad street at Camp Chase, where two persons lost their lives last Thursday afternoon when the Big Four Flyer hit a Columbus and Springfield bus entering Columbus from Springfield, tearing away the rear end of the bus and injuring several other passengers. This crossing is one of the worst grade crossings in Columbus, a number of other accidents having happened at this point. This is one of the menaces to be eliminated by the bond issue passed by the voters at the last November election.

We have to live with ourself, and Always to look ourself straight in the eye;

We don't want to stand with the setting sun,
And hate ourself for the things we have done.

The first book ever printed from movable type was Gutenberg's Bible, which was issued in 1456. The edition consists of about three hundred copies, of which no less than forty-five are still in existence. Only five of the forty-five are in private hands. The rest are in museums and libraries, and can never come upon the market. The first copy to come to the United States was brought by James Lenox in 1847. The copy is now in the New York Public Library.

First Newspaper in America Was Published in Boston, Sept. 25, 1690

Succeeding generations are given to quarreling over priority achievement honors of preceding generations. A retail trade publication recently devoted many columns in many issues to determine who first evolved the ice cream soda idea. Many descendants fought to defend the creative genius of their ancestry.

So those engaged in newspapers are always trying to agree on the man who deserves credit for thinking out a spread-the-news idea which gradually developed into the newspaper of today. There seems to be no disputing the fact that the credit belongs to a Chinese, unnamed, who about 750 A. D., produced some sort of a medium of news dissemination. It was called Tchingpao (meaning news of the Capital). How it was written or printed, and circulated, history does not disclose. A few centuries later some enterprising Roman gentleman produced a scroll or something akin to it for the purpose of giving the people news of the elections and doings of the army. They called it the Acto Diurna.

In Europe single sheets were issued at irregular intervals. A number of them, dated from 1498 to 1530, are now in certain German libraries. In some of them is told the story of the discovery of America.

There is no disputing the record which shows that the first English newspaper, called the "Weekly News," was established in the year 1621, in London. The "London Gazette," now publishing, followed in 1625. One Benjamin Harrison, of Boston, put the U. S. on the publication map in 1690 by establishing "Publick Utterances." For some reason, not recorded, it was quickly suppressed. The "Boston Newsletter," a weekly, got under way in 1704, and continued for several years. The oldest existing publication is the "New Hampshire Gazette," which was started in 1756.

First daily newspaper of which we can boast was the "Pennsylvania Packet," afterwards called the "Daily Advertiser," launched in 1784. The daily idea was evidently accepted, because in 1800 there were several daily papers printed in the various cities of the United States, New York supporting three of them.

Since 1800 the newspaper has grown in popularity and power until today it is credited with being the greatest of our educational factors. The rapid spread of intelligence could never have reached the proportions it has had if not been for the country's newspapers.

At the present time there are published in the United States 2753 weekly newspapers, and 1540 daily newspapers. The average daily circulation of morning and evening papers is approximately 33,000,000 copies, excluding Sunday issues. The modern daily newspaper does more than merely print the news; it expresses opinions that guide the thinking of many millions of our people; it has much to do with the election of presidents, the making of war and the establishment of peace; it is a silent member of practically every American home, welcome because it brings the world—its people and their achievements—to the fireside.

Publishing a newspaper carries with it a responsibility, an obligation to serve; a privilege that comes to but few.

HUGE AMOUNT TO RUN NATION

Nearly Half of Huge Total Required Between Years 1917 and 1926

The American people have laid out approximately $120,000,000,000 since 1791 to pay for the operation of their federal government.

Figures compiled by the treasury disclose that about half of this or $62,000,000,000 was expended between 1917 and 1926, resulting from the war and the vast increase in living costs since that period.

The all-time record for annual operating costs came in the fiscal year ending June 30, 1919, when war time expenditures were at the peak with $18,952,141,000, a figure practically equivalent to the total public debt today.

In one other year only in government history did expenditures exceed $10,000,000,000, that having been in 1917-1918 with a cost of $13,791,000,000.

Figures show that the first "billion dollar" year ocurred in 1865, at the close of the Civil war when the government spent $1,297,555,000.

After the Civil war governmental costs gradually declined, reaching a minimum of $241,334,000 in 1877. Operating expenses began to rise in the following year, reaching $605,072,000 in 1890 as a result of the Spanish war and the Philippine troubles.

The first year of government in 1791 cost the people $4,269,027, compared to a daily expenditure of $132,000,000 on Jan. 3, 1927.

That was the cheapest year of government America ever experienced. In 1800 the country had its first $10,000,000 government, and while records do not disclose, it was probable that the taxpayers put up a strong wail at alleged official extravagance at that expenditure which today would hardly take care of pencils.

Throughout the history of the government, interest on the public debt was the chief single source of expense. In 1791, $2,340,000, over half the cost went to interest.

Immediately after the Civil war interest costs passed the $100,000,000 mark. In 1920 the interest expense was $1,024,000,000, in 1923 slightly over $1,000,000,000, while in 1926 it had fallen to $831,489,000.

In 136 years the government has gone in the hole 63 times, that is, expenditures exceeded the receipts, accounting for the public debt of approximately $19,000,000,000.

The largest deficit occurred in the fiscal year 1919 with $1,059,000,000, while the largest surplus was recorded with $798,955,000, in 1921.

These receipts and expenditures do not include operations of the postal system which since 1920 have amounted to over $400,000,000 annually.

NEW TRUSTEES FOR Y. W. C. A.

At the annual meeting of the Y. W. C. A. at the central building last Thursday, the names of the twelve new members elected to the board of trustees was announced. The election was held Wednesday.

The board is made up of 36 members, each serving for a term of three years. One member of the board of three fiscal trustees was also chosen at the annual meeting, which was presided over by Mrs. William Sexton Brown, president of the association.

A playlet showing the work of the Y. W. C. A. in Columbus was given by a cast of 40 persons. Miss Olive Dubbie, formerly president of the industrial federation, took the leading part.

The American Red Cross building at Washington, D. C., is dedicated to the "memory of the heroic women of the Civil War." Congress has given the site and an appropriation toward a sister structure that is planned to commemorate the "sacrifices and services of the American women of the World War." It is expected that the structure will cost about $500,000. The new building will shelter the growing activities of the Red Cross. In it the organization will have a laboratory, a demostration station, and a training school. The Red Cross now numbers 3000 chapters.

Dog Catchers Nabbed 10,000 During 1926.

Ten thousand dogs were victims of the dog catchers in Franklin county during 1926, and 8000 of that number were destroyed, according to the annual report of Dr. Harry H. Snively, health commissioner.

Previously, only untagged dogs were captured, but with the county health board's ruling that dogs must be muzzled, on leash or kept on the owner's premises, the dog catchers' business increased.

Although 280 persons were treated during 1926 for rabies, the treatments, most of them free, cost the county only $2875, compared to approximately $20,000 for the previous year, Dr. Snively reported. Because of the free treatments, the county was saved about $8500, he said.

PLANS OF NEW WEST HIGH SCHOOL EXPLAINED BEFORE HILLTOP BUSINESS MEN'S ASS'N

Howard Dwight Smith, School Architect; Paul Wood, Chief Draftsman, and Cecil J. Randall, President of Board of Education, Guests at Meeting—Twelve Rooms to Be Added to John Burroughs School to Relieve Congestion on Hilltop.

Plans and specifications for the new West High school were shown and explained before the Hilltop Business Men's Association at their regular monthly meeting held Tuesday evening at Watts' restaurant.

C. J. Randall, president of the board of education, and a Hilltop resident, was introduced by F. L. Sulsberger. He in turn introduced Howard Dwight Smith, school architect, and Paul Wood, chief draftsman of the city school system.

Mr. Wood explained the plans for the new high school located on Powell avenue, south of West Broad street. He explained that the day of education had come and no longer did we content ourselves with the little red school house on the hill. Herein lie the difference in size of the modern school being erected here as compared with the one-room affair of yesterday. The new West High school is to accommodate 1600 pupils easily and 2000 if necessary.

The plans show the school to be divided into three sections. On the left facing Powell avenue is the auditorium and main entrance to the building. In the center is an academic court surrounded by classrooms, and on the right is the gym.

On the basement floor there will be physics and chemistry laboratories, metal shops, manual training, cooking and sewing laboratories.

On the first floor will be located the mechanical drawing rooms and print shop with possibilities for a school paper and journalism class.

The gym will be made into two parts, separated by a partition which can be removed in event of inter-school games where a larger floor is needed. The two separate compartments will enable both boys and girls to take gym on the same days. Adequate bleachers are provided in the gym.

There will be a well planned cafeteria and kitchen so arranged as to be used as a study hall when not in use after the lunch hour. It will accommodate near 125 at the study tables.

The auditorium and gym are so arranged and have the exits so placed that each may be used without allowing entrance to other parts of the building.

The auditorium can accommodate in the vicinity of 1450 persons. It can be used as a study room at other times. In rear of the stage is a large class room opening into the stage, to be used for dramatic classes. Dressing rooms are provided on the sides.

Administration offices are located on the first floor in the north section. Showers and locker rooms are to be on the first floor.

The second floor will house the art department, music room, library and two study halls. Teachers' rest rooms are provided on every floor.

To the south and west of the building there will be a quarter-mile running track, football and baseball field and tennis and basketball courts for girls only.

Mr. Smith stated that this building was to benefit in three ways from experience in the other high school buildings, namely: auditorium is not isolated, sounds and noises of shops is away from academic classrooms and economic use is being made of the combination study hall and cafeteria.

The building has the architectural style akin to the old New England colonial building of face brick. It is styled after the old New England town hall.

The new building may be summed up as practical, economical and not ungraceful to look at.

Mr. Randall, in reply to an inquiry as to a remedy for the overcrowded condition of the West Broad Street school, stated that 12 rooms were to be added to the John Burroughs school, making it the largest elementary school in the city. And since the new West High building is to house the Junior High at present also, Highland school will be relieved of about 600 pupils and the districts will be laid out again and a sufficient number of West Broad pupils will go to Highland and John Burroughs.

The new building will be valued at near one million dollars. The foundation is now being finished. Contract for the super structure will be let in the spring. It is hoped to have the building completed by the fall of 1928.

Trackman Injured

Thomas Totman, aged 63, of 741 Macon St., is in the Mt. Carmel hospital as the result of injuries sustained early Monday morning when he was hit by an auto driven by D. L. Hensel of 205 N. Park Ave. The accident occurred at Lechner avenue and Broad street.

Totman was employed as a trackman of the Rail and Light Co. He was oiling the tracks at this intersection and Hensel did not see him because of the dim mistiness of the early morning.

His skull was fractured and hopes for his recovery is doubtful.

Mr. Leo F. Isaacs and Miss Mary Green were married by Rev. J. N. Johnston, at his residence, 90 Elden Ave., Tuesday evening, Feb. 1. They were attended by Mrs Isaacs of Linden, mother of the groom, Miss Royce, Mrs. Marvin Green and Robert Green.

Group No. 5, Ladies Aid society of Glenwood church, Mrs. E. E. Hooper chairman, will meet Thursday, Feb. 10, at the home of Mrs. A. V. Allen, 129 Ogden Ave. Mrs. F. E. Rudolph will be assisting hostess.

EXCELSIOR SOCIETY

Holds Banquet, Welcomes New Members and Elects Officers.

Excelsior, the honorary scholarship society of Highland Avenue school, held a banquet Jan. 26 in the school building. Miss Helen King, member of the first class elected to Excelsior welcomed the new members and Marjorie Simmons responded with a short, well-worded speech. Tradition was carried out when each alumnus introduced himself, named his class and gave his present occupation; music, impromptu speeches and a short business meeting followed. Both graduate and recently elected members enjoyed making new acquaintances and renewing old ones. Mr. and Mrs. E. N. Littleton and several teachers chaperoned the affair.

Excelsior members are chosen for their good scholarship, good conduct, good school spirit, willingness to cooperate and other qualities that make good students. Present officers are: president, Frank Himebrook; vice president, David Ballard; secretary, Elmer Smith and treasure, Ralph Hill.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry Schultz entertained with a birthday dinner at their home, 66 S. Wheatland Ave., Sunday, Jan. 30, in honor of Eleanor Wehrle and Mrs. Sophia Schultz. A very pleasant day was enjoyed by all. Those present were: Mrs. Sophia Schultz, Mr. Edward Schultz, Mrs. Anna Renner and family of Galloway, Mr. and Mrs. Faye Martin and family of Plain City, Mr. and Mrs. George Geyer, Mr. and Mrs. Forest Wilson and family, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Wehrle and family, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Schultz and family. All departed late in the evening wishing Eleanor and Mrs. Schultz many more happy birthdays.

FINLEY HELD UP AND ROBBED

C. W. Finley, 253 Whitethorne Ave., attendant at the Central Ohio Oil Co. station at 120 Jefferson Ave., was held up by negro robber last Sunday night at the company's station and robbed of $40.50.

The robber had asked permission to use the telephone, and when granted the courtesy compelled Finley at the point of a gun to turn over the keys to the cash register.

This was one of a series of three robberies Sunday night of filling stations.

To Exchange Pulpits

The Columbus Conference of Ohio Synod Lutheran pastors has arranged for an exchange of pulpits by 12 of the clergymen in charge in this city. A committee chose a topic for each pastor with the understanding that he deliver his sermon on that topic in each of the 12 local churches of the conference.

The topic assigned Dr. G. W. Lose, pastor of St. John's church, is "Are You Saved?" This sermon is to be given in St. John's church next Sunday morning.

On the evening of Feb. 13, Rev. E. C. Mechling will deliver in St. John's the sermon on the topic assigned him, "Born Again of the Spirit." The public is cordially invited to attend these services.

Social Club Officers

At the January meeting of Robert Morris Social club of the Eastern Star the following officers were elected for the year: Mrs. Pearl Lowrie, president; Mrs. Bertha Elliott, vice president; Mrs. Gaynelle Hughes, secretary, and Mrs. Lissie Goulding, treasurer.

The official board of Glenwood M. E. church will meet in the church parlors at 7:30 this evening.

L. W. Sherman and Walter Mahan of Canfield, Ohio, are visiting at the home of H. C. Blair and family, 81 S. Ogden Ave., and attending Farmers' Week at O. S. U. Mr. Sherman, a graduate of O. S. U., is superintendent of the Mahoning county state experiment farm and has charge of the apple display of the Horticultural society of that county. Mr. Mahan also attended Ohio State and March 1st will become superintendent of the Belmont county experiment farm. Mrs. Sherman is a sister of Mrs. Blair.

RETIRES FROM FIRE DEPARTMENT

After a service of 31 years in the city fire department, J. B. Swain, 60 S. Park Ave., retired from service Monday. Mr. Swain was with No. 4 truck [illegible]. He will receive a pension.

Conservation Meeting

When Rev. William G. Fagan addressed the Hilltop Child Conservation Circle last Thursday evening at the Fathers' meeting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Geyer, 254 E. Burgess Ave., on "Understanding the Child," he told them the need today is for sympathetic understanding parents, as the plastic material that lays in the parents' hands can be moulded as God intended it to be and all the potentialities brought to full fruition. The child is the supreme thing in the world and congratulated the circle on the organization, as it was the center of their interest.

Mrs. F. P. Brown, president, read the aims and purposes of the league. Mrs. H. E. Lee gave readings, Mr. F. P. Brown, two groups of sons, and Mrs. Alice Jones a group of instrumental numbers.

In attendance were: Mrs. C. C. Goss, Ohio federation president; Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Lee, Mr. and Mrs. F. P. Brown, Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Englehard, Mr. and Mrs. John Rings, Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Warner, Mr. and Mrs. H. D. Shults, Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Geyer, Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Rucker, Mr. and Mrs. R. H. Campbell, Mrs. E. B. Ward, Mrs. Ida Gell, Mrs. Alice Jones, Mr. and Mrs. Herman Leach, Mr. and Mrs. D. L. Cready and Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Cruea.

Mrs. G. H. Tharp will entertain the members of the J. R. B. class of Glenwood Sunday school Tuesday evening, Feb. 11, at her home, 2827 Steele Ave.

ARMS ARE AMPUTATED

Walter Ballard Is in Mercy Hospital as Result of Burns Suffered Saturday.

Walter Ballard, 50, 222 Midland Ave., Rail-Light lineman, is in a serious condition with burns suffered when he accidentally came in contact with a high-tension wire while at work at the Groveport sub-station Saturday. He is at Mercy hospital, where it was found necessary Monday to amputate both arms at the elbows.

Further amputation of the arms may be made later, it was said last night.

MEN'S DAY AT HOGE MEMORIAL

Next Sunday will be known as Men's Day at Hoge Memorial Sunday school when the men will have charge of every feature of the Sunday school work. This is but one of the special features which the church school has inaugurated and is carrying out.

The men will be in full charge of the Sunday school hour. A program of interest to all is being planned and carried out by the men. All classes will be taught by the men. Special music by the men and other interesting features. The largest attendance in the history of the Sunday school is expected.

Mrs. John B. Milosch, 554 Nashoba Ave., entertained Wednesday afternoon with a bridge and euchre party. Those present were: Mrs. J. E. Werner, Mrs. S. A. Ergler, Mrs. M. Acker, Mrs. F. Hill, Mrs. C. L. Smith, Mrs. M. C. Kinney, Mrs. D. Dubiel, Mrs. F. Mock, Mrs. B. McMillan, Mrs. E. Marshall, Mrs. R. Roberts and Mrs. R. Langley.

FATHER AND SON MEETING

Highland P.-T. A. Meeting Next Tuesday in Charge of Fathers and Sons.

The next meeting of the Highland P.-T. A. will be held Tuesday evening, Feb. 8, at the school, the special feature of which will be the program which will be entirely in charge of the "fathers and sons" of the association.

Cecil J. Randall, president of the board of education and a member of the association, will conduct the program, which is as follows:

Music by "Fathers' Quartet."
Talk on "What My Children Mean to Me," Mr. Robert Day.
Music by Boys' Harmonica Band.
Paper, "What Dad Means to Me," by a Son.
Address by Rev. Hutchison on "Fathers I have Known."
Discussion, "Leisure Hours of Our Children," by Fathers.
Examination, "What Father Knows About His Children," by a pupil.
"A Parent's Prayer," Mr. Reighley.

It is the wish of the officers of the association that all parents and especially the fathers of children attending Highland school, attend this meeting, meet the teachers and officers of the association and enjoy the fellowship.

Refreshments will be served following the program.

West Hi Basketball

West High school took fifth place in the City High School Basketball league Wednesday night when they were trounced upon by North by a score of 29-13.

West held a good game in their hands until the third quarter when they lost control and went down under the swift attack of the northsiders.

Walker, West forward and leader of the league scoring was held to one point on a foul shot. Gill, Trabue and Kline of West each scored 4 points.

Mrs. Lowell T. Sullivan (Laura Young), 2221 W. Broad St., entertained Thursday evening at 6:30 o'clock with a dinner and shower at the Pearl Garden, in honor of Mrs. Marion Cordell (Miss Bauermeister). Other guests were: Mrs. Florence Coler, Miss Mildred Cline, Miss Helen Donahue, Mrs. Iva Linman, Mrs. Gertrude Kinkead, Mrs. Lucille Busick, Miss Ruth Heasel, Miss Pearl Yoxthimer, Mrs. Pauline Gleadell, Miss Helen Hilsher, Miss Louise Schenerman, and Miss Sarah Meyers.

Large Enrollment for New Semester

It is estimated by school officials that 2000 pupils were enrolled in the 1B grade of Columbus schools Monday, the beginning of the second semester of the school year. Approximately 1800 pupils passed from the elementary schools to junior high schools at the same time.

Mrs. L. M. Seiller, Fairfax Road, entertained the Hilltop Embroidery club at the Matsonia at a 1 o'clock luncheon. Guests were Mrs. T. S. Fox, Mrs. Denny Wells, Mrs. John Evans, Mrs. C. J. Randall, Mrs. W. K. Merriman, Mrs. C. O. Irvin, Mrs. G. A. Payne, Mrs. P. G. Ganta, Mrs. G. W. Matson, Mrs. E. Shaffer and Mrs. R. A. Millikin.

ENTERTAIN FOR JAMES FIPPIN

Mrs. Mary H. Sperry and daughters, Misses Bess and Catherine, entertained members of Hilltop Lodge of the I. O. O. F., Monday evening, Jan. 31, in commemoration of Mr. James Fippin's 94th birthday.

In addition to the Odd Fellows and their wives, a large majority of his children and grandchildren were present, also Rev. Mr. Hutchison and wife, and a few of their immediate neighbors.

Mr. Fippin has living at this time, twenty-four children, two grandchildren and twenty-seven great-grandchildren.

Missionary Meeting

The Women's Missionary society of Burgess Avenue United Brethren church will hold their annual thank-offering meeting at the home of Mrs. John Kinsell, 163 S. Ogden Ave., Tuesday afternoon at 2 o'clock. The following thank-offering program will be given:

Devotional period, Bible study and song of thanksgiving.
Poem—"Let Us Give Thanks."
Rapid survey—Two minute talks. 1. What is a Thank-offering. 2. Some special causes for Thanksgiving this year. 3. What should be the measure of our Thank-offering.
Exercise—"As Unto the Lord."

Chicago Avenue P.-T. A. will meet Wednesday night, Feb. 9, at Chicago Avenue school. Chaplain T. O. Reed of the Ohio penitentiary will speak. Music and a pleasant social hour are [illegible].

Good Times

Hello Mary!
Hello Jane!
Jane—"Where were you last Friday?"
Mary—"Last Friday? What was going on?"
Jane—"The Ladies' Aid of Burgess Avenue U. B. church had a pot luck dinner at the home of the president, Mrs. Ed Thomas, 2724 Vita Pl.
Mary—"Oh yes, but it was such a terrible day, I didn't go. I suppose I missed a good time."
Jane—"I'll say you did. And we had scrumptious eats, too. Had a fine surprise.
Mary—"Surprise? What?"
Jane—"Well, about 1:30 p. m. a man knocked at the door and the hostess admitted him, of course, we supposed we would have to listen to some spiel about candy or furniture polish, magic cleanser, soap or something to sell. But not so! Our hostess introduced him as Mr. Copeland, from the "Wynter's School of Expression.' He entertained us with some very fine readings. When he finished, he asked if he might give us a regular program sometime. The ladies made arrangements for a program at the church, Thursday, Feb. 10th. Be sure to come, because he's fine. Good looking, too."
Mary—"I'll be there! Say, doesn't the Aid meet this week?"
Jane—"You bet! At the home of Miss Rice, 467 S. Warren Ave., and you're to bring a valentine for some one you know is going to be there."
Mary—"That will be fun, won't it?" So long, until Thursday."
Jane—"So long."

ENTERTAINMENT BIG SUCCESS

Musical Selections, Kindergarten Band and Drill Features of Program.

A large and enthusiastic audience of parents and friends witnessed the entertainment given by John Burroughs school on the afternoon and evening of Jan. 27.

The first part of the program was given by the kindergarten under the direction of Mrs. Edna Watts and consisted of several musical selections by the kindergarten band and some very clever rhythmic drills which demonstrated the skill and training of the little folks.

This was followed by an inspiring and patriotic play, called, "Jack's Visitors" or "The Schoolboy's Dream." Jack, the schoolboy, was well portrayed by Richard Montgomery, who in the course of his dreams, not only acquired a greater reverence and love for the history of his country, but in his interviews with the makers of history, who appeared in his dream, succeeded in thrilling his audience with the same appreciation.

The historic character, interpreted by the boys and girls of the 6-A grade under the direction of Miss Mary Phelan, sixth grade teacher, were as follows:

Jack Owen	Richard Montgomery
Mrs. Owen	Edith Foster
Spirits of the Dream
Columbus	Bernard Bridgefoot
Sir Walter Raleigh	Donald Schall
Pocahontas	Marie Cutchins
William Penn	Paul Loggar
Priscilla	Eileen Schmid
George Washington	John Eckard
Martha Washington	Frances Clover
Betsy Ross	Dorothy Dale
Captain Molly Pitcher	Vera Grosh
Abraham Lincoln	John Hipple
Lieutenant Hobson	Vernon Fairchild
A Red Cross Nurse	Dorothy Johnson
Teddy Roosevelt	Robert Maxwell
Color Bearer	Edd Jones
Columbia	Gladys Banker

Story Hour

The Story Hour at the Holmes Hilltop library, corner of South Park and West Broad street, Saturday, Feb. 5, from 1 to 2 p. m. will have Mrs. H. J. Schultz conducting for Hilltop Child Conservation Circle.

The story subject will be "Helpfulness." Story Tellers, Mrs. Paul Nicholson and Miss Mildred Sandoe from the Story Tellers' League.

Overheated Stove Causes Small Fire

Children and grown-ups of Hilltop got their common thrill of seeing the fire wagons speed by and hearing the clang of their bells Saturday afternoon near 5 o'clock.

An overheated stove caused by an open draft in the Millard home at 466 S. Ogden Ave. caused the alarm to be sent in. No one was home at the time of the alarm. The fire was soon checked and no damage of any degree [illegible].

Mr. and Mrs. Max W. Smothers and daughter, Ruth Eva visited Mr. and Mrs. Knox L. Brandon and family of Royal Oak, Mich. over the week-end. Mrs. Brandon formerly was Miss Lilling Feuster and sister of Mrs. [illegible].

James Houdashelt, 201 S. Warren Ave., entertained Dorothy and Donald Houdashelt and Maxine Brooks at a 5 o'clock dinner last Sunday, the occasion being his ninth birthday.

Mr. and Mrs. Arthur E. Meesmen of Grove City, announce the birth of a son at Grant hospital, Jan. 30.

Valentine Party

Group No. 3 of the Ladies' Aid society of Hoge Memorial Presbyterian church, Mrs. W. H. Riley chairman, is sponsoring a "Valentine Party" at the church house on South Eureka avenue Wednesday evening, Feb. 9, at 8 o'clock. A mock wedding is to be given as part of the evening's fun. Refreshments will be served.

The John Burroughs P.-T. A. will hold their regular monthly meeting Friday, Feb. 4, at 2:30 in the school auditorium. Miss Catherine Herbert is to be the speaker for the afternoon. Mrs. W. V. Eckart will offer piano solos and a reading by Miss Margaret Miller. All parents and friends are always welcome.

The Woman's Missionary society of the Hilltop Lutheran church will meet at the church next Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Mrs. J. W. Miles presents the program. Mrs. A. C. Baughman will be the hostess.

NEXT SUNDAY AT GLENWOOD

The month of February will be "Church Loyalty" month at Glenwood.

New Members' Day will be observed at Glenwood on next Sunday. In the last two and one-half years 400 members have been received into the fellowship of the church. These members are invited to attend the service as special guests of honor on next Sunday morning. The pastor, Dr. G. F. Barber, will use as the sermon topic, "The Source."

In the evening Mrs. Edith Sherman Gustason will read "King Robert of Sicily." Mrs. Gustason has visited Glenwood several times and is always heard with pleasure. This will be followed with a sermon by the pastor on "When Isaiah Saw the Lord."

Music at both services will be given by the senior choir.

Woman's Foreign Missionary society of Glenwood church will meet in the church parlors at 2 p. m. today. Don't miss, hearing the study of "Modern Women." A demonstration, "The Conversion of the Thursday Afternoon club will be given. Special music. All women of the church are asked to attend.

The church Sunday school board of Glenwood church will meet in the social rooms of the church at 6:30 Friday, Feb. 4, for a pot luck supper and business meeting.

Club Dinner

The Hilltop Child Conservation Circle members, husbands and children will be served dinner by club Alumnum at the home of their president, Mrs. F. P. Brown, 94 N. Powell Ave., on Thursday evening, Feb. 3, at 6:30 p. m.

Following the dinner, the president will conduct a special business session to finish up all business for the year. This is important so all are urged to attend.

Next study meeting, Feb 10, at 7:30 p. m., with Mrs. H. E. Lee, 280 N. Harris Ave.

Day Devoted to Tender Thought

An old idea is that observed February 14 because of an ancient belief that birds began to mate on that date, hence the practice of sending missives of an amatory or satirical nature.

Today's satirists assert that if this is true, the birds that started the habit must have been cuckoos.

Other doubts prevail as to the origin of the name, Saint Valentine.

It is a corruption of the word "galantin," meaning a lover, a gallant, or a dangler, reference books state when consulted about the venerable old saint, whose name sprang into being about 475 B. C.

Miss Modernity, 1927 sport model, alleges that dangler is the correct word. She, it seems, keeps "dangling on a string," to quote modern slang. Whether or not she lands them is problematical, shieks and asphalt rambo declare.

Be that as it may, this same reference book sets forth that the name Saint Valentine was selected for the sweethearts' saint, merely because of the euphonious qualities of his name. This is another source of humorous remarks.

Trace the name from the word "galantin" to "Saint Valentine" and you have almost all of the various expressions in use today, to denote varying degrees and terms applicable to that symptom of heart infection called by mortals "love."

Latin gives us "valens," meaning valiant. Modern folk jestingly remark that a man to be married must be valiant. Write the old geometrical term, "Q.E.D.," meaning "Quod Erat Demonstrandum"—which was to be proved.

Welsh tongues give us the word "gwan" as one of the by-products of "valens," to which the modern flippant flapper prefixes "aw," and the present day term, "aw-gwan," seems to have been said several hundred years before this era of store-bought faces and rolled socks.

"Gwan," in Welsh, meant guard, ward or vain. Consequently, one's valentine could be considered any or all three of these.

She is also a guard, if Monsieur Hen Peck or any of his 567,890,017,838 colleagues are to be heard.

This settles the origin of the date and the origin of the name, since it has been traced backward through the musty pages of some dozens of reference books.

Saint Valentine's observance is an easier thing to ascertain. Chaucer wrote in his "Complaint to My Mortal Foe":

"Seint Valentyne! To you I renovele
My woful lyf, as I can, compleynynge:

Which means, when translated, that he wished to renew his woeful life as he could, complaining however; and added for the edification of other chaps its mate."

Shakespeare, in "Hamlet," refers also to Saint Valentine's day. He must have been in these good old days that we hear about so often, judging from the tone of his words, which would indicate that pretty maid hung about desirable bachelors' win. down upon this day.

The exact words used by the Bard of Avon are:

"Tomorrow is Saint Valentine's day
All in the morning betime,
And I a maid at your window—
To be your Valentine."

"Hot dawg," quoth the office sheik who happened to see this, "them's the days I woulda like to lived. Wouldna hadda crank Ol' Liz up and go get her. She'd have been on hand just after dawn."

The custom of observing the day, however, has fallen into disuse in England, while in France, where it once prevailed on the first Sunday in Lent, the sending of valentines almost has disappeared from folktraits.

But in America Kid Kupid is making a heavy fight. Today is the day when the pink and white creations, bought with carefully hoarded pennies by little Jimmy, will find their way to Betty.

And the day when the older folk also will dream of other days, when they, too, eagerly watched the village mail man, waiting for the tender missives that spelled in capital letters—"L-O-V-E"

LINCOLN AND MEMENTOS

A collection of relics of Abraham Lincoln, Civil war President, are exhibited by the Chicago Historical society on the birthday of the martyr President, February 12. Among them are the high hat and umbrella so familiar in Lincoln pictures. There is also shown a photograph of the log cabin which he helped his father to build on Goose Nest prairie in Coles county, Illinois.

joker or wit—used all sides of a proposition. He recognizes instinctively its defects of proportion, its incongruities. It is the great humorists who have drawn the truest pictures of human life, because their humor was a constant corrective against one-sidedness. Lincoln's mind had the impartiality, the freedom from prejudice, the flexibility of sympathy which belongs to the humorist alone.

Always Purpose in Stories.

It has sometimes been argued that his fondness for story-telling showed a deficient command of language; that, knowing his inability to express his ideas directly, he conveyed them indirectly by an anecdote. It would probably be nearer the truth to say that the stories were a proof of his understanding of the limitations of language. He divided the boundaries of expression through formal speech and knew when a picture, a parable would best serve his turn.

As great responsibilities came to rest upon him, as the harrassing problems of our national life pressed closer and closer, the lonely President grew more clear-eyed and certain of his course. The politician was lost in the statesman. His whole life, indeed, was a process of enfranchisement from selfish and narrow views. He stood at last on a serener height than other men of his epoch, breathing an nobler air, perceiving more truly the eternal realities. And his style changed as the man changed. What he saw and felt at his solitary final post he has in part made known through a slowly perfected instrument of expression. So transparent is the language of the Gettysburg address and of the second inaugural that one may read through them, as through a window, Lincoln's wise and gentle and unselfish heart. Other praise is needless.—Bliss Perry, in Christian Science Monitor.

ACKNOWLEDGED AS MASTER OF PROSE

English Critic's Tribute to Abraham Lincoln Well Deserved.

"It is not too much to say of him (Lincoln) that he is among the greatest masters of prose ever produced by the English race."—The (London) Spectator.

It is said that Nathaniel Hawthorne was once asked the secret of his style. That consummate writer replied—no doubt with one of his inscrutable smiles—"It is the result of a great deal of practice. It comes from the desire to tell the simple truth as honestly and vividly as I can." The flawless perfection of Lincoln's style in his noblest utterances eludes a final analysis as completely as the exquisite pages of our great romancer, yet in striving to understand some of the causes of that perfection we may use the hint which Hawthorne has given us.

Lincoln had "a great deal of practice" in the art of speech long before his debates against Douglas made him known to the nation; endless talks in country stores, endless jests in frontier taverns, twenty years of pleading in the Circuit courts, twenty-five years of constant political discussion. His law partner had noted his incessant interest in the precise meaning of words. His reputation for clear statement to a jury was the result of his passion for putting ideas into language "plain enough for any boy to comprehend." Lincoln's mind worked slowly, and he was long in finding the words that exactly expressed his thoughts, but when he had once hit upon the word or phrase he never forgot it. "He read less and thought more than any man in the country," says Herndon with a sort of pride, and it should be remembered that throughout his gradual developement as a master of his mother tongue he was preoccupied, not with words for their own sake, but solely with words as the garb of ideas.

Told Truth Simply.

Furthermore, Lincoln's mental characteristics illustrate with singular force the remark of Hawthorne that style is the result of a desire to tell the simple truth as honestly and vividly as one can. He was "Honest Abe"; not, indeed, so innocent and frank and unsophisticated as many people believed; not a man who told all he knew, by any means; but yet a man essentially fair-minded. He looked into the nature of things. He read human nature dispassionately. A man of intense feeling, he was nevertheless, in mature life, at least, without sentimentality. He was not fooled by phrases. As a debater he made no attempt to mislead his audience; as President, when he found frank conversation impossible, he told a humorous story of more or less remote bearing upon the subject in hand. He kept inviolate his mental integrity. And without integrity of mind the would-be master of speech becomes a mere juggler with words. In the letter to Thurlow Weed concerning the second inaugural address, Lincoln described that memorable utterance as "a truth which I thought needed to be told." No description could be more noble.

That Lincoln's gift of humor added much to the vividness and homely naturalness of his style will not be questioned. But the connection between fair-mindedness and humor is not always remembered. The man of true humor—not, of course, the mere

By MRS. E. O. CARLSTON
Author of "For Freedom."

"Beatrice hesitated for a moment before replying ,then she said:

"Yes, I believe I should like to. When are you going?"

"My father is coming after me in the car at four o'clock. Try to be ready if you can. He doesn't like to wait."

Helen was well acquainted with Beatrice's faults, and knew that lack of promptness was one of them.

"If he won't wait for me, he can go home without me. I can find plenty of people and a good many places for amusement during vacation," Beatrice replied sullenly.

Helen felt inclined to tell Beatrice to make other arrangements, but having her own interests at heart, insisted that they spend the coming week together. To show her independence, Beatrice kept Mr. Call and his daughter wating for about ten minutes. Then she walked slowly down the stairs, and the three were soon on their way to Helen's home. The following day was Saturday, and Beatrice spent the greater part of it shopping for new clothes. For that purpose, Mr. Morgan had sent her a special allowance, at her request, which she had sent in a letter she had written to him a short time before.

As the Call family were only in moderate circumstances, Helen could not afford to make purchases to correspond with those Beatrice made, a fact which embarrassed Helen and greatly pleased Beatrice, as she delighted in being an object of envy. As they went from one store to the other, Beatrice continualy reminded her companion of their different financial circumstances. In one instance, Beatrice led the way into an exclusive shop where it would have been impossible for Helen to have made a purchase. Beatrice greatly taxed the saleslady's patience by finding fault with every dress the woman showed her, saying it looked "too cheap," or making some similar remark. She finally found one to her taste, but after trying it on, decided that the color did not suit her complexion. She jerked it off angrily, and handed it to Helen.

"That color would be all right for you. Put it on. The price is reasonable enough, only $150.00"

"You know I can't afford to go that high for a dress, Beatrice Morgan. Stop poking fun at me," she said in an undertone, which the clerk could not hear. "Mother made me a lovely dress last week, and I am not going to buy anything in that line today. Just came down town to help you. You will have to decide on one pretty soon, as it is only a half an hour until time for the store to close."

"To be sure, we must have our usual week-end shower. All it does is rain, rain, rain." The girl's expression was as dark as the cloudy overhead.

"Straighten up your face, and look pretty," Helen said shortly. "Here comes Warren Allison."

She nodded toward the entrance of a cigar store, where the young man had been standing under an awning. He advanced toward them.

"Looks as though it were going to rain," he said pleasantly.

Helen's eyes twinkled merrily at the reply Beatrice made to the remark about weather conditions.

"As I was just saying to Helen, we need rain badly; but let us talk of something else besides the weather.'

"Love, for instance," Helen teased. She felt justified in tormenting Beatrice, when she remembered the unpleasantness Beatrice had caused her many times that day.

"You were not asked to suggest a subject, Miss Call," Beatrice said, in a playful tone, but Helen knew that the remark was in earnest.

"My machine is parked down here around the corner. I'll take you girls home," he promised.

When the car stopped in front of Helen's home, Warren said to Beatrice:

Want to take a nice long ride into the country tomorrow?" Then remembering Helen, he added, "I'll bring George along. What say, Helen?"

"All right with me," Helen replied.

The next day, to Beatrice Morgan's delight ,was a typical spring day. The clouds of the previous evening had vanished, giving place to a blue sky and warm sunshine. Beatrice, conscious of her attractive appearance, and Helen, who had a few misgivings as to the becomingness of her own "home-made" attire were waiting when Warren's car stopped in front of the house.

When, a half hour later Warren again started the engine of his car, Mr. Call said to his daughter:

"I want you to be back here by six o'clock, young lady. If you're not, I'll never allow you to go again." Helen made the asked for promise, much to the other girl's disgust, as Mr. Morgan had always been very lenient with her and she could not imagine herself submitting to authority as Helen did. As it was already late in the afternoon, the young people went only a short distance.

"Too bad we couldn't have started sooner," Warren remarked, as he turned the car back toward the city.

"Say Allison, I've got an idea. Let's throw a party next Saturday night. I'll send invitations tomorrow, and we'll have a merry time. What say, Helen?" George rattled on in his slangy way.

"I would like to go," the girl replied, briefly.

"Providing papa will let her," sneered Beatrice.

"I'll arrange that part," George volunteered.

"I think you are a very brave man," Beatrice said mockingly.

"Oh, Mr. Call isn't so bad. It's a good idea to be strict these days, and I am sure no one thinks less of Helen for being obedient," George said warmly, which Helen felt amply paid her for living up to her parents' ideals. home, it only lacked three minutes of being six o'clock. Mr. Call opened the door to admit them.

"I'm surprised that you fellows managed to bring my girls home at the time you was told to. Expected you at about seven-thirty with a tale about engine and tire trouble."

"Now, Henry," Mrs. Call said. "Just because you tried such stunts in your young days is no reason bor being suspicious of these boys. In our time, it wasn't 'engine and tire trouble.' Something always happened to the harness; the buggy got stuck in the mud; or—"

"Let's eat supper, Mary," Mr. Call suggested, in order to change the subject, "or we will be late for church. What's the matter ,Beatrice? Don't they even have churches where you was raised? Glad I wasn't born in such a heathenish part of the land."

"Oh, certainly, we had churches, Mr. Call."

"It's evident you never attended often. Better come along with mother and me, tonight."

"Not tonight, Mr. Call, some other time, perhaps," Beatrice promised.

Mr. Call, I am giving a party next Saturday evening, and as I want you people to meet my mother and father, I will be glad if you can come."

The invitation was accepted, and Beatrice, who had looked forward eagerly to the event, felt disappointed at the prospect of going with the Call family, but promised Warren that she would be there.

CHAPTER VII

Before the end of the following week, invitations had been circulated to more than fifty young people, which included some of the students from Clinton University and the Wayland School for Girls. Out of all the people who had been invited to attend the party, it is doubtful whether anyone looked forward to it more eagerly than did Mr. and Mrs. Call. It was considered quite an honor to be on intimate terms with the Wymans, and it was no seldom that anything occurred to break the monotony at the Call Home, that the prospect of an evening with a crowd of gay, laughing young people, was a delightful one indeed.

The evening for the party arrived. The rooms of George Wymans home were profusely decorated with flowers. Entrancing music from the orchestra floated out into the night air, which was balmy with the breezes of springtime. The guests were beginning to arrive. Beatrice, dazzling in her dinner gown, arrived at the last moment, accompanied by Warren. Although many of the young men present sought her society, she followed Warren around all evening, regardless of the rules of etiquette she had so strongly adhered to heretofore. The state of things grew embarrassing to Warren during the course of the evening, but knowing that Beatrice was a very popular young lady, he felt rather flattered by her preference. They danced every dance together, with the exception of one, when Warren and George exchanged partners. But as Helen had been George's partner, Beatrice did not care, as in her mind, Helen was too common to be the object of envy. It was well that all the young men present did not share George's opinion of the matter, or Beatrice would have had little enjoyment that evening.

It was quite obvious to George that Helen felt sadly out of place in her unaccustomed surroundings, so he made every possible effort to divert her attention from herself. Before the evening was over, she was as gay as anyone present. When the party came to a close, Beatrice Morgan and Warren Allison rode to the Call home in Warren's roadster.

"This has been a delightful evening to me," Warren acknowledged.

"And to me, also," admitted Beatrice.

She was beginning to wonder if she could be in love with Warren Allison. She was too conceited to doubt his feeling for her. So many young men had tried to win her regard, she was under the impression that he would be like the others. The thought that he could prefer someone else, did not occur to her. Her egotism was given a little jolt, however, when Warren quickly turned the subject of conversation to general matters, and carefully avoided personal remarks.

"I'll get him yet," she determined that night, when she lay awake long hours, thinking of nothing but Warren. The object of her thoughts, himself, lost no sleep over the matter. He did not think of himself as a man in love, or of Beatrice Morgan as his ideal girl.

"If she so delights in humiliating Helen by her sneering remarks made in the presence of a third person, what wouldn't she be capable of saying to her husband?" was the substance of his thoughts, as he continued his ride homeward after taking leave of Beatrice.

"To be sure, she is a pretty girl, and rich as a Jew, I guess; but not exactly my type. If she wants a harmless flirtation, I'm game, but I'm not a candidate for husband."

With that, Warren dismissed the matter. The next day being Sunday, and also the day when Beatrice had intended to return to her room in the large building on the college grounds, Warren drove over to the Call residence.

"Are you going back to school today?" he questioned.

"I suppose I must, Warren. I have a class tomorrow morning at nine o'clock."

"When you get ready, I'll take you over," he promised.

"That's nice of you," she said pleasantly.

"Not at all," he answered. "Haven't another thing in the world to do."

"What time do you want to start from here?"

"Any time will do."

"If you are in no particular hurry to reach the school, we can take a ride first. Where is Helen. She probably would like to go along."

Beatrice's face clouded disappointedly.

"I don't believe she can go. Mrs. Call went away while ago leaving the dinner dishes for Helen to wash. By the time she finishes and cleans the kitchen it will be too late for us to go."

Why don't you help her? It wouldn't take both of you very long, would it?"

Beatrice was both embarrassed and offended by this suggestion. The very idea of her, Beatrice Morgan, who was accustomed to being waited upon by servants, flinging a dish cloth in someone's kitchen, was unimaginable. Warren saw his mistake.

"Oh, pardon me. I didn't know I was in the presence of royalty," he remarked sarcastically. "I should have known better than to expect you to condescend to such a plebian task."

Just then, Helen entered the room, wearing a becoming house dress. Warren went on:

"I do not pretend to be a distinguished character myself, so perhaps I can be of assistance in the kitchen. Got an extra apron, Helen? My aunt will have a fit if this shirt is to be laundered when I have only worn it once."

"All kinds, if you really want one," Helen said, and the two hurried toward the kitchen, as though Beatrice were entirely forgotten, much to that young lady's chagrin and disappointment.

"Here, Warren, better let me wash the dishes. You'll get your cuffs soaked with dish water, and your aunt will blame me," Helen warned.

"Don't worry about that. I can turn them back." The action was suited to the word, and Warren stepped to the door leading to the adjoining room where Beatrice sat idly turning the pages of a magazine.

"Don't I look pretty in my blue and white apron, with my sleeves rolled up?" Warren asked in an affected feminine voice.

Beatrice pretended not to hear. To think that Warren was willing to sacrifice the pleasure of her society, even for a few minutes, preferring to be in the kitchen with Helen Call! If she expected Warren Allison to cajole her into a more amiable mood, she was mistaken. When she offered no reply to his remark, he went back to the kitchen sink, and for several minutes, dishes and pans rattled loudly, and the two in the kitchen talked as fast as they worked, as though Beatrice were forgotten by both of them. When a half-hour later, the kitchen chores were all completed, Warren fastened his cuffs, and sauntered into the living room, as though in no particular hurry to rejoin Miss Morgan. Helen soon came downstairs wearing her coat and hat, ready for the promised ride.

"Better get your coat, Bea" she said pleasantly.

"Are you trying to hurry me away?" Beatrice asked in a pouting tone.

"Not at all. If you don't want to go, we can stay at home. I supposed you were the one who suggested going."

Beatrice took her belongings from the coat rack. Warren politely offered to assist her with her coat, but she jerked away, angrily.

"Very well," he said indifferently. When they reached the machine, Helen seated herself in th back seat, and Allison rode to the Call home in Warren's roadster.

"No, Beatrice, I don't mind sitting alone. You like to ride in the front seat, go ahead."

"Yes, I want you with me," Warren said in answer to her inquiring look.

As they drove through an adjoining suburb of the city, Helen leaned forward.

"If you will drive to No. 80 Forest st., I believe I will go to see a friend of mine who lives at that address. You can go on without me."

"We like to have you with us, Helen," Warren said.

"I don't doubt that you do, but I really should stop here."

"You say the number is 80?" Beatrice asked. It was the first time she had spoken since they left the house. "There it is," she continued, pointing to a large white house.

"We will stop for you as we come back," Warren promised.

"All right," Helen replied over her shoulder. Warren started the car again and for the first time in her life, Beatrice wanted to talk and did not know what to say.

"I suppose you think I have a very disagreeable disposition," she finally said to break the ice.

"What I think probably does not concern you," Warren replied stonily.

"Oh but it does," Beatrice found herself saying, and could have bitten off her tongue a second later.

"Really?" he questioned half anxiously. "I like you Bea, but I wish you wouldn't place yourself on a pedestal above others. Others do not take into consideration your opinion of yourself. They value your friendship from a standpoint of their own. And let me tell you as a friend: the girl who has domestic talent, even though it may be thought common, is admired more by the majority of men, than is the davenport, magazine, and dime novel variety, who do nothing but recline on a couch or occupy an easy chair, reading and eating chocolate candy. I never expect to marry a girl who shuns a kitchen apron. Neither do I want one of the slovenly type who can see dirt everywhere else but on their own clothes. From your present position, you can reach a happy medium. Are you game to try it for my sake?"

Savings Bank Idea First Took Form a Hundred Years Ago

Long live the savings banks! It took more than one hundred years—more than two hundred, according to one authority—for the idea of the modern system of saving to evolve in the slowly progressive human consciousness. One authority says that a Frenchman by the name of Hughs Delestre first thought of massing small amounts of money for investment. Another gives credit to an Englishman by the name of Daniel Defoe. History is clear in the statement that savings institutions were established in Brunswick, Germany, in 1765, and in Hamburg in 1778. It is also clear that Defoe's idea was revived in 1797 by Jeremy Bentham and a group of "Defoe's Frugality Banks" established.

In 1820 a good Scotch minister, Rev. Henry Duncan, of Ruthwell Village, organized the first savings bank that can be considered as a foundation for the modern institution. Credit for a less practicle idea is given to Rev. Joseph Smith, another Scotchman. He, with the aid of one or two of his rich parishioners, agreed to accept small sums of money—a twopence and up—and return it at Christmas time with one-third added.

Like all good ideas, the savings bank grew—and grew—and grew. In 1825 there were fifteen savings banks in the United States. These banks boasted of 16,081 depositors and $2,587,062 on deposit. Both figures more than doubled in the next five years, and again in the following ten years. A healthy growth continued—and still continues. In 1892 the Comptroller of the Currency reported more than 1600 savings banks, 12,238,907 depositors and $7,181,248,000 on deposit. The deposits in 8249 national banks as reported at the same time, amounted to only $16,320,564,000—but slightly over double the savings total.

During the past ten years practically all the banks throughout the United States have joined in the thrift movement and put in savings departments.

Just as people have to be reminded to insure their lives, their homes, their personal effects, so do they have to be reminded that it is their duty to save regularly. And to the organized persistency of the banks is due the credit of forcing, through the pressure of publicity and personal contact, the habit of savings into the lives of approximately one-tenth of our country's population.

Just how great are the savings resources of our people we will never know, but we do know that the recent great war was largely financed by the small buyers of Liberty Bonds—on the installment-savings plan.

There are in the United States 1985 mutual and stock savings banks, 18,252 state banks, 1550 trust companies, 8249 national banks, 672 private banks.

COST OF LIVING

The cost of the living dollar has been growing fatter during the past five months at The Pine-Hill Store, Sullivant avenue at Whitethorne, handling groceries, fruits and meats and for your convenience they remain open each evening until 8:00 o'clock. This is thought to be a chain store by a great number of people due to the low prices. However, it is an independent and not like a chain store—the owner lives and has his store in the community in which he is interested.

It is amazing the number of machines that stop at the store each night. People from all parts of the city, out driving, see the nice oranges, apples, bannnas and vegetables displayed in the window. They also carry a line of the very best meat; steaks, loin and porterhouse; lunch meat, pressed, minced and boiled ham, bologna and meat loaf; pork chops, sausage, and fresh side; smoked meats, bacon, cottage butts, ham, wieners and smoked frying sausage.

The Pine-Hill Store is classed as one of the best arranged and cleanest stores of the Hilltop. Everything is handy and service is easily obtained. A clean and sanitary ice box and meat block keep their meats in good shape at all times. An expert meat cutter is ready at all times to give service. Everyday new customers are being added to this quality grocery.

Bonds for Viaduct

City council last week authorized $175,000 worth of bonds issued to rebuild the High St. viaduct. Work will start probably in the fall.

Council also reserved $50,000 for furniture for the new City Hall; $50,000 for Boulevard lights in Broad St., $30,000 for new police and fire telegraph building site, $155,700 for sewers in Kenmore Park, $64,000 for sewers in district adjacent to Grandview and $128,000 for street paving.

NEW POLICE GO ON DUTY FEB. 1

Twenty-two additional patrolmen recently appointed, went on duty Feb. 1. Among the list are six West Side and Hilltop men as follows: Chalmer Alkire, 205 Dakota Ave.; Paul Burk, 11 Jones Ave.; A. A. Simpson, 151 S. Wheatland Ave.; W. E. Miller, 61 N Ogden Ave.; R. C Murray, 300 West Park Ave.; H. F .Frank, 2194 Sullivant Ave.

City Cancels Contract

The Columbus fire department will not answer calls to Upper Arlington Safety Director J. P. McCune informed Mayor John Kelley of the village Tuesday, following passage by the city council last week of an ordinance canceling the contract between Columbus and Upper Arlington. The cancellation was made at the request of the village.

Seventy-four years ago Earu Meeker with his young bride followed the old Oregon Trail from Ohio all the way to Washington Territory. Two years ago he flew east from Washington State to Ohio in an airplane and now in his ninety-sixth year he is planning to cross the same Oregon Trail, this time in a motor-camping outfit with the purpose of selling memorial coins for a fund to mark the Trail with suitable monuments and tablets.

PARCHMENT TORCHERES

Among other unique devices for softening electric lights are the fashionable parchment torcheres which may be bought ready for painting. They may be tinted with soft yellows and reds blended together, or decorated with floral or other decorations. One who is not clever at painting can get beautiful effects by cutting out designs from crepe paper, pasting them on the torchere and then painting over the entire surface with thin, transparent, amber sealing wax paint

A WORD OF COMFORT

The dismal wilderness you have been traversing has become almost unendurable and the heavy laden pilgrim is ready to faint. That which you see is not a mirage. The Paradise of larger love and deeper understanding and abiding peace is just ahead and it is sure. Keep on struggling: the goal is but a few steps farther on.—Frederick G. Budlong.

BOY SCOUT ACTIVITIES

Advancement Tests This Week —Annual Scout Show to Be Held April 22.

The Columbus Council, Boy Scouts of America, will give the third annual dinner to the volunteer scout leaders, on the anniversary of Lincoln's birthday.

The dinner is complimentary to deputy commissioners, scoutmasters and their wives, and assistant scoutmasters.

Scout headquarters announces the following dates for advancement tests: Second class board, Thursday, Feb. 3, 1 p. m.; first class board, Thursday, Feb. 3, 7:30 p .m.; merit badge board, Saturday, Feb. 5, 7:30 p. m. All boards of review will meet at Boy Scout headquarters, 78 W. Broad St.

The Sixth Annual Boy Scout show will be held at the Ohio State Coliseum, Friday, April 22.

No protests will be allowed, the judges' decision being final.

Each deputy commissioner, assisted by one from another district will inspect his own troops at their respective headquarters. No demerits will be given.

The grand entry will be shortened, will be through the east gate in a column of four, the march being straight through to the west gate.

Both semaphore and Morse signaling will be limited to the five best teams. Preliminaries are to be run off at the same time for the barrel tilting. Time—7 p. m. Every troop is invited to demonstrate signaling from a human tower. Directions for building the tower will be made available at headquarters.

Only the barrel tilting finals are to contest at the show. Contestants are to be selected at the following preliminary schedule: Troops in districts of Deputy Commissioners J. M. Vail, L. R. Wilson and A. P. Kuhn will meet April 4 at Mound Street Junior high scool; troops in districts of Deputies L. W. Goben, S. B. Garwood and O. E. Warner will meet April 5 at Starling Junior high school troops in districts of Deputies E. Metz, B. A. Eisenlohr, W. E. Whipple and G. W. Davidson will meet April 6 at the Ohio State university gym, and troops in districts of Deputies J. E. McDowell, H. V. Miles, C. Ziegfeld and R. M. Geist will meet at the Columbus academy.

Fire by friction will be the same as last year, but in addition fire by flint will be demonstrated by as many troops as will participate.

Wall scaling will be limited to the 10 best teams as detremined by preliminaries through the following schedule of April 4, after school at 3:45 p. m.

Troops in districts of Wilson, Kuhn and Vail will meet at board in vacant lot at Thurman and Parsons avenues; troops in districts of Goben, Garwood and Warner meet at McKinley avenue playground; troops of districts of Davidson, Whipple, Metz and Eisenlohr meet on the Creatview school grounds; troops of districts of McDowell, Geist, Miles and Ziegfeld meet in the Mayflower Congregational church.

The summer-school courses offered by the various colleges and universities of the country have become extremely popular within the last ten years. The attendance has increased on an average of over a hundred per cent. In the summer of 1915, for instance, Harvard had an enrollment of 916 students, while in 1925 there were 2470. The opportunity of study during vacation months is widely made use of by school-teachers—teachers of grade schools and high-school teachers, principles and college instructors working for higher degrees.

K. OF P. TO CHECK OLD MEMBERS

Will Endeavor to Restore to Rolls Those Suspended for Non-Payment of Dues.

February and March are designated as "restoration months" by the Supreme Lodge, Knights of Pythias, and activities set in motion have as an object the restoration of a half million members who have been suspended in the last few years for non-payment of dues.

The effort will not be confined to reaching the members of any lodge who still live in the city where they became members, but will through a clearing house established in each state and province, make an effort to reclaim those who have lost contact with the order by moving to other states and cities.

The program is being directed by Supreme Chancellor Richard S. Witte, Milwaukee, Wis., and every lodge in the United States and Canada is expected to make a concerted effort by establishing personal contact with all former members. Franklin Lodge, No. 5, Knights of Pythias, has appointed the following restoration committee: H. J. Kline, G. C. Stewart, J. H. McKinley, D. P. McArter and I. R. Snyder.

EXTEND VETERANS INSURANCE TIME

Because of the fact that a great many veterans of the World war have allowed their war risk insurance to lapse, through lack of knowledge that it might be converted into one of seven forms of life insurance specified by the government, the time during which conversions may be made has been extended to July 2, 1927, according to an announcement by President Coolidge.

The insurance may be converted by payment of two premiums, or, in the case of veterans who are not now insurable by ordinary companies, by payment of all premiums that came due while the policy was lapsed. Payment may be temporarily waived for those whose finances do not permit them to make all the payments at once.

FOR SPORTSWEAR FASHION DECREES THE BLOUSE OF STRIPED FLANNEL

Sentenced to wear stripes! It is the verdict of the mode. The decree issues from the highest style courts. So it's the wearin' o' stripes for women of fashion for coming term of spring and summer.

The newer materials, silks, cottons and woolens, all exploit stripes—stripes colorful and of exceptional novelty. It is well, therefore, when choosing the fabric for your spring frock or blouse, to keep in mind that stripes are "it" especially those that run in a horizontal way.

The subject of stripes, as interpreted in the spring fabric showings, is an inexhaustible one. They include narrow and wide versions, definite and indefinite types, pastel or vivid tones, and the very latest is ombre coloring.

Effectiveness of the new striping is largely due to the artful blending of contrasting of color. Exquisite combinations such as rose, brown, tan, and cream or perhaps Madonna blue, beige and old rose complete with brilliant Roman stripes and the last word in startling effect is for bright yellows, greens, blues and reds variously striped on a white background.

For spring the blouse of striped flannel will pose over a skirt of the same material in solid coloring. The picture shows the result of the compose of a striped and plain fabric. Tan, brown and red striped flannel for the blouse with plain tan flannel makes this smart sports frock. Notice that the stripes run horizontally, which is the fashionable thing for them to do. The new materials lend themselves to this horizontal design, in that the stripes are woven across the width of this season's piece goods.

Of outstanding interest are stripes placed in groups of three on cashmere ground in pure silk interweavings.

Striped taffetas subscribe to the new mode, and the latest ginghams are also striped—which all goes to show the prominent role stripes are playing in the season's fashions.

Ohio's Construction Totals $407,142,300

Building and engineering contracts awarded in the state of Ohio during the year 1926 amounted to $407,142,300, according to F. W. Dodge Corporation. This was 10 per cent decline from the total amount ($451,380,300) for the year 1925.

The total volume of construction contracts let in the state during December amounted to $27,289,000. The above figure exceeded November of last year by 13 per cent and December, 1925, by 4 per cent.

Ohio's building record for December included the following items of note: $10,521,700 or 39 per cent of all construction, for residential buildings; $5,284,000, or 19 per cent, for commercial buildings; $4,040, 900, or 15 per cent, for public works and utilities; $3,275,000, or 12 per cent, for religious and memorial buildings; $1,695,200, or 6 per cent, for industrial buildings; $1,073,900, or 4 per cent, for hospitals and institutions, and $701,000, or 3 per cent, for educational buildings.

USEFUL SILKEN LADIES

Everywhere in the shops this year there are dainty and fascinating bisque ladies with dignified coiffures and pretty faces, waiting to be dressed in spreading silk skirts. These doll torsos are made in several sizes and are used as shades over electric lights or posed over telephones, bonbon or work baskets and pincushions. Wide taffeta ribbon clothes the blond beauty pictured and the tiniest ribbon flowers adorn her bodice. She is posed over a small wicker basket.

WEST BROAD CHEVROLET CO. IN NEW BLDG.

Formal Opening of New Sales and Service Plant Open to Public Friday Evening.

One of the most modern automobile sales and service stations in the city will be thrown open to the public Friday evening, Feb. 11, when the West Broad Chevrolet Co. will formally open their new plant at 2506 West Broad St.

Dancing on the Sales floor will be featured Friday evening from 8 to 11:30 o'clock. Souvenirs will be given to both ladies and gentlemen. At the same time the entire plant will be thrown open to the public for inspection.

Saturday will be open house day when the plant will be open to the public for inspection from 8 a. m. until 9 p. m. Sunday afternoon the public is invited to visit the plant from 1 until 5 p. m. No cars will be sold during the opening.

Mr. J. R. Moore is manager of the company, which was organized in September and were temporarily located at 1248 West Broad St. until they moved to the new building in January before the new building was fully completed.

The new building contains over 5000 square feet of floor space for service and repairs. All modern equipment has been installed for the efficient and quick service. The sales and executive rooms occupy the front part of the first floor, in the rear of which is the storage room. The repair department is located on the second floor, a large elevator being used to transfer cars to this department from the ground floor.

The company will handle a complete line of Chevrolet cars and parts.

Valentine Tea

West Broad Street Parent-Teacher's association will entertain with a valentine tea, Friday afternoon, Feb. 11, 2 to 5, at the home of Mrs. T. S. Fox, 2646 W. Broad. Honor guests will be Mrs. C. M. Valentine, Mrs. Charles W. Barrell, Mrs. Paul Benton, Mrs. S. J. Tedrick, Miss Harriett Judd and the teachers of West Broad Street school. Presiding at the tea table will be Mrs. Eugene Dupuis, Mrs. R. P. Rauch, Mrs. Phillip Johnston, Mrs. C. E. Williams, Mrs. G. R. Schmidtt, Mrs. T. J. Frasure. All members of the association and mothers interested are cordially invited to attend. Arrangements are in charge of Mrs. Ray Hauntz and the social committee.

APPROPRIATELY NAMED

At the banquet of the League of Ohio Sportsman a couple of weeks ago when H. W. Hutchison of Cincinnati was toastmaster he told a story of a colored man who had brought his son to his place of work to try out as an errand boy. When asked the boy's name he said it was "Weatherstrip." The employer thinking this a strange name asked why he was named "Weatherstrip." "Well, I'll tell you, boss," the colored man replied. "This boy was born during the war and kept me out of the draft."

Mrs. C. C. Dickerson, of Clifford, Mich., who has been visiting at the home of her daughter, Mrs. E. H. McFarlane, was guest of honor at a meeting of the Fidelis class which was held last Thursday evening at the home of Mrs. J. T. Miller, 2619 W. Broad St. Twenty-two members were present and after a short business meeting all enjoyed a musical program given by Mrs. O. H. Craft and Mrs. W. S. Uhl. Refreshments were served.

W. H. Orebaugh, 57 Eldon Ave., returned Friday, Feb. 4, from a five weeks' business trip to Sarasota, Fla.

Logs have been used to form a bridge spanning a deep ravine in an Oregon lumbering district, that heavy trains carrying timber may pass over it to and from the sawmill. It is estimated that it represents 500,000 feet of fir and 250,000 feet of hemlock. After the available timber is cut from that area those logs now used for the bridge will be converted into lumber.

OBITUARY

WILLIAM GABBART

Funeral services for William Gabbart, 2, son of Mr. and Mrs. William H. Gabbart, 2166 Sullivant Ave., who died Thursday at his home, were held at 2 p. m. Saturday at the residence Burial was made in Green Lawn cemetery by C. J. Kohn. A sister, Lucille, also survives.

CONTEST AT ST. PAUL'S CLOSES

Jan. 30, closed a friendly contest for new members between the Key-Stone class of young ladies and the Young Men's Bible class of St. Paul's United Evangelical Sunday school. It was evident from the number of young people who came into the church the last Sunday of the contest, that each class was putting forth every effort to win. When the final score was totaled it was found that the girls had 1221 points and the young men 1183 points. A splendid fellowship existed throughout the contest, and the young men congratulated the girls and sang their class song, "My Anchor Holds." Each class has been a winner in the contest in that a number of splendid young people have been added to the Sunday school.

There will be a banquet given by the young men to honor the winning class.

SCOUT DINNER FRIDAY EVE.

Troop No. 21 Will Entertain Parents—Motion Pictures Follow Dinner.

Friday evening, Feb. 11, scouts of Troop 21 will entertain their parents with their fifth annual Parent-Son dinner in the banquet hall of Hoge Memorial church. As an honored guest and one of the speakers, they will have Mr. Edwin J. Bath, the new Scout Executive of Columbus Scout Council. After the dinner period, there will be a couple of reels of motion pictures, called "America's Heritage," the activity of a Boy Scout troop on a camping trip to the Eastern coast. Scouts of other Hilltop troops, and boys of scout age are invited to see these pictures, free of charge, at 8:00 p. m.

There are six Hilltop troops at the present time, and with the weather as we have been having the first of this week, it is hard to make these scouts believe it is not camping season.

All leaders in scouting are voluntary workers, and these men will be given the third annual complimentary dinner at the Neil House, Saturday evening, Feb. 12.

Convalescing From Mastoid Operation

Billy Heimbrecht, small son of Mr. and Mrs. C. Heimbrecht, 2725 Steele Ave., was taken to Grant hospital last week, where he underwent a mastoid operation. Billy convalesced nicely and was able to be removed to his home Wednesday.

Miss Fairy Fraley of Gallipolis is visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Bostic, 140 N. Eureka Ave.

Will Appear in "The Wild Rose" Operetta Friday Evening, Feb. 11

LE-FLO SHOPPE OPENS SATURDAY

Under the management of Florence McDaniel, the Le-Flo Shoppe, 2215 W. Broad St., will be opened to the public Saturday, Feb. 12. The shoppe will make a specialty of confectionery and delicatessen goods and will serve luncheon.

Free demonstrations will feature the opening Saturday.

Mrs. McDaniel was formerly connected with the Betty Shoppe in Grandview which was recently purchased by Mr. and Mrs. Earl Ruhl of the Hilltop.

Royal Neighbors of America, Glenwood camp, will meet Friday night at their hall, 2354½ W. Broad. Members of other camps are invited.

King's Heralds and Home Guards of Glenwood church will have a valentine party Monday at the church. Each member bring a valentine for the valentine box.

ISSUE WARNING AGAINST "FLU"

Capatin Mason Gives Timely Hints as to Precautionary Measures.

In an address over radio station WAIU last week, Captain Paul Mason of the states department of health, urged residents to "Remember 1918" when "flu" was rampant in this state, and advised every precaution being taken against it.

He pointed out that "flu" has never entirely died down in Ohio, that it is increasing rapidly in Chicago and that "Europe is fairly saturated with the disease."

"Let everyone be reminded to keep up his personal vigilance against the disease, and be warned to go to his physician promptly at the first indication of a cold, or fever, or general let-down in physical condition," asserted Captain Mason.

"If you feel a sudden chill, followed by muscular pain, headache, backache, unusual tiredness and fever, go to bed at once," was the advice. While waiting for the doctor to come, it was suggested that the individual keep warm in bed, open all windows unless rain is falling, take medicine to open the bowels freely, cough or sneeze into handkerchiefs, and stay in bed until the doctor says it is safe to get up.

BURNS FATAL TO WALTER BALLARD

Amputation of Both Arms Fails to Save Life of Electrical Worker.

Walter Ballard, aged 51, of 222 Midland Ave., succumbed Saturday morning to burns sustained a week before while at work at the Marion road power plant of the Columbus Railway, Power and Light Co.

Mr. Ballard was employed by the Rail-Light company as a tester and was severely burned about the arms while at work in the power plant, Jan. 29. In an effort to save his life surgeons amputated both arms last week.

Surviving him, besides his wife, Mrs. Roxabelle Ballard, are two brothers, Henry S. Ballard, a member of the law firm of Ballard, Jones & Price, and George D. Ballard, who is employed in the Baltimore & Ohio railroad offices, and a sister, Mrs. Rose L. Hensel, who is mother of Eugene Hensel, police prosecutor.

Mr. Ballard was a member of the Hillcrest Baptist church and of the Odd Fellows and the Eagles lodges.

Funeral services were held Monday afternoon at Hillcrest Baptist church in charge of Rev. E. H. McFarlane, pastor of the church. Interment was made in Memorial Park cemetery.

The Hilltop Branch of the W. C. T. U. will meet at the home of Mrs. Russel Gregg, 215 Whitethorne Ave., Friday, Feb. 11, at 2 o'clock. Mrs. Hattie Compton will have charge of the devotionals. Rev. Matheny will give a talk on "Conditions Abroad." Special music by Mrs. Prescott Gilliland.

MITHOFF BUYS ARTCRAFT STORE

Through arrangements completed Monday O. H. Mithoff became proprietor of the Artcraft Stove Store at 2378 West Broad St., which was opened last September by the Artcraft Appliance Co., with Mr. Carl Weiffenbach as manager.

Mr. Mithoff is well-known in business circles in Columbus, having for years been connected with the Mithoff Hardware Co., at High and Main streets. Mr. Mithoff will conduct the business along the same lines as heretofore handling Artcraft ranges, gas, vapor and oil stoves.

Mr. Weiffenbach will still be connected with the store.

OBSERVE FATHER AND SON WEEK

Churches, Luncheon Clubs and Schools of City Celebrate Movement.

This week is being observed as Father and Son Week by the various bodies affiliated with the Council of Religious Education and the Columbus Y. M. C. A.

The National program of Father and Son week will be observed during the same period, having become generally observed in the years that have followed since 1907, when the first father and son banquet was conceived by B. M. Russell, the boys' work secretary of the Providence R. I., Y. M. C. A.

The Providence experiment was rapidly developed by churches and other organizations, and in 1917 Richard Flynn of the Kansas City Y. M. C. A. suggested to the international "Y" committee that the father and son banquet idea should be extended to Father and Son week. The first national observance came in 1918. Many nations have followed in the wake of the United States in this idea.

Kiddies Free Show Saturday Morning

Saturday morning, Feb. 12, again is kiddies day at the Rivoli theatre, when Manager Pekras hopes to have every kiddie of the Hilltop as his guest at the free show he has arranged for their especial amusement.

He has selected for this show the film "Black Paradise," in which Madge Bellamy will take the leading roll. The showing of the film will begin at 10 A. M.

NEW COURSES AT OHIO STATE

Two new courses will be offered by the Department of Commerce Extension of Ohio State University for the spring term, Dr. Thomas L. Kibler, director, announced Saturday.

These courses are: Income tax accounting and salesmanship and sales management. Courses in the first semester's work in corporation finance, advanced principles of accounting and merchandise planning are nearing completion.

The income tax accounting course will open at 7 p. m. Monday, Feb. 14. The salesmanship and sales management course will begin at 7 p. m. Thursday, Feb. 17.

Both classes will be held in the Chamber of Commerce offices. Information regarding the courses can be obtained at that place.

A joint birthday dinner was held Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Krauss, 116 Clarendon Ave., celebrating Mr. Krauss' birthday, and that of Mrs. Walter Gilliland, 285 N. Harris Ave. The guests were Mr. and Mrs. Ed Jenkins, Mr. and Mrs. Perry Schockley, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Gilliland and daughters Virginia and Joan, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Gilliland, Mr. Harry Schockley, Miss Betty Schockley and the host and hostess. An enjoyable time was had and all departed late, wishing them many more happy birthdays.

The last meeting of the Needle Art club was turned into a noonday luncheon and held at the home of Mrs. William Mann, 3012 Ellis Place. Those present were: Mrs. A. V. Allen, Mrs. B. J. Dildine, Mrs. C. Fleming, Mrs. J. Jones, Mrs. McLaughlin, Mrs. Fred Rudolph, Mrs. H. Timms, Mrs. H. W. Large, and the hostess, Mrs. Mann. The next meeting will also be a luncheon held Feb. 14, at the home of Mrs. B. J. Dildine, 61 N. Warren Ave.

BOWLING ALLEYS OPEN FEB. 17th

Exhibition Bowling Will Feature Opening—Men and Women's Headpin Tournament.

Something new in the way of clean recreation is being brought to the Hilltop with the opening of Distelhorst's Hilltop Bowling Alleys at 2419 West Broad St., Feb. 17, 18, 19, and 20.

The alleys are located in the new Staunch building just nearing completion. Eight new alleys have been installed, which perhaps have no equal in the city, and are equipped with the very latest bowling equipment. The room is well lighted and ventilated.

A feature of the new alleys will be the provision made for lady bowlers, who will be welcome at all times.

The grand ceremonies of the opening will start at 7:30 p. m., Feb. 17, followed by exhibition bowling by some of Columbus' best men and women bowlers. Five ladies who have won the headpin championship for the last five years in Columbus will be present.

A feature of the opening week will be a headpin tournament in which anyone may roll. Two lists of prizes have been arranged—one for the ladies and one list for the men. The prizes to be awarded appear on page 5.

761 PUPILS IN HIGHLAND JR. HI

A new term of school opened at Highland school on Monday, Jan. 31, 1927. The enrollment for the new term includes 761 pupils in the Junior high and 216 in the elementary. The schedules were handed out and were followed all day with full periods. The schedules were written by the teachers before school opened and scarcely any changes had to be made. The school has sold books for the past week in order not to delay the beginning of classes. During this sale 669 new books were bought by the pupils at the same prices as charged at the downtown book stores. Two hundred and seventy-five second-hand books were handled by the school.

Catherine Postle

The Hilltop Child Conservation Circle's next study meeting is Thursday, Feb. 10, at 7:30 p. m., at the home of Mrs. H. R. Lee, 260 N. Harris Ave. Program subjects, money and honesty, from Volumes I and II. Leader, Mrs. F. P. Brown nominating committee will report at this meeting. At the Story Hour at Holmes Hilltop Library, Saturday, Mrs. H. R. Lee will be in charge.

Of what use is an empty pocketbook? The question has been solved. When the pocketbook is empty sell it or pawn it.

This may sound absurd but such a thing as an empty pocketbook came in handy last week to a Hilltop resident. Out of gas three and one half miles from home and the necessary cash for more gas, not being present a relief to the situation must be offered up. This particular person left his empty pocketbook as a security for gas.

Two thousand years ago Aesop might have said, "An empty pocketbook is better than no pocketbook."

Transportation by airplane has assumed an important role in Australia. Six regular air routes have been established, and one hundred and twenty-eight landing fields have been prepared for civil aviation service. Each airplane flying over a definite route is required to carry a hundred pounds of mail, surcharged at threepence an ounce. During the year five thousand passengers were carried by these planes, without a single fatality and with only one minor accident. "For-hire" airplanes are available for doctors and others who are called on emergency trips into the "out-back country." Many owners of cattle and sheep ranches have landing fields on their property.

A VALENTINE

In musty time, in quiet place,
I found a quaint, old valentine,
A thing of gilt and paper lace,
And lovers' vows in faltering rhyme,
And on the margin faintly trace
The sender's name in faded line.

How easily we smile and sigh
At love and fashions long outgrown,
And yet perchance her heart beat high,
His hopes were valiant as your own—
The girl who laid it carefully by,
The boy whose fate must be unknown.

ABOUT THE PELICAN

"I call lots of things parties," said young Peter Pelican. "I even call it a party to be a pelican! Now some birds are so ordinary but not a pelican.

"A pelican is unusual. Perhaps some creatures are glad that there are not more queer ones like ourselves about. But if they are I do not agree with them.

"We are different looking. We have such long, long golden brown bills or beaks—one apiece of course you understand.

"Then we have beautiful white feathers and we're dressy and important looking.

"Our long, long bills are so unusual. Now some animals and some people look so much alike. You can't tell them apart very well. But there is no mistaking a pelican.

"You might see two little birds belonging to quite different families and you would not be able to tell which one belonged to which family.

"We Have Such Long, Golden Brown Bills or Beaks."

"You might forget the family name or you might forget which family of birds it was which looked that way, but pelican is a family name not easily forgotten and pelican looks are full of distinction and difference.

"The pelican is unmistakably a pelican. But I began to talk about parties. Well, it is true, as I said, I call lots of things parties.

"When I was but a little pelican and found my fish meals in my mother's bill I thought that was a party. I called it a party then and were I a small pelican today I would still call it a party.

"Of course I still am young, but I am not as young as all that.

"I call it a party to think that while I was brown when I was first hatched I am white now. Of course the brown pelicans are brown still! That is why they have that family name. They're handsome birds, too.

"Maybe you will think it is conceited of me to say that they are handsome birds, too, but I cannot help but think I'm handsome. And I'm really not conceited about it as I give credit to the pelican family in general, and not to myself in particular, for my beauty.

"They, too, have good appetites. Now I call mealtime a party. I think all pelicans do. We enjoy our food.

"That is the way I think stomachs should be. I think it would be very sad to look at food one wanted to eat and not be able to eat it because one's stomach could not hold any more.

"I wouldn't call it a party if such a thing happend to me. I can eat all I want t oeat.

"Then I call it a party when I swim. Swimming is such fun. I swim so easily for my nice, generous-sized webbed feet can help get me through the water mighty quickly.

"I'm like a person who hurries out to the market before everything gets snapped up and I am even superior to such a person for I would hurry along so fast that my market couldn't get away from me! I call mealtime a splendid party.

"Then when we have a nice island home I call it a party home for so many of us make a home together. We live in big colonies, you may know or you may not know. And in case you do not know I am telling you. If you do know I hope you won't mind hearing this again.

"I call it a party when we decide we'll like to travel and settle for awhile somewhere else. We aren't so full of local pride that we won't see the whole world if we wish it.

"At least we will go a-traveling and lots of us will suddenly decide upon it and we will be off, going toward what we have decided will be our new home. But at the present moment I am sleepy and every good pelican sleeps after eating. I've had a good meal just recently. Yes, I must sleep for all the other pelicans are now asleep. I call an after-meal sleep a pelican party, too!"

Recipes

COMBINATION OMELET

Five eggs, 1 cup diced cold boiled potatoes, 1 scant teaspoon onion juice, 3 tablespoons butter, 2 teaspoons minced parsley, ½ cup sliced leeks, 3 tablespoons grated cheese, ½ cup milk, ½ teaspoon salt, ½ teaspoon pepper.

The white part of the leeks is used. Cut in thin slices and cook in boiling water until tender. Drain. Melt in tablespoon butter in hot frying pan, add potatoes and cook, stirring constantly until potatoes are browned. Remove potatoes and put remaining butter into spider. Beat eggs slightly with salt, pepper and milk. Pour into hot spider and as the mixture cooks prick and lift with a fork. When half cooked add potatoes, leeks and parsley. Finish cooking and sprinkle with grated cheese. Fold and turn onto a hot platter.

CASSEROLE OF MEAT AND MACARONI

One cup macaroni broken into inch pieces, 4 eggs, 1 cup cream, ½ teaspoon salt, ½ teaspoon pepper, 1½ cups cold diced chicken, 4 tablespoons finely chopped ham, 4 tablespoons finely grated cheese, 4 tablespoons buttered bread crumbs.

Cook macaroni in 2 quarts boiling water to which 2 teaspoons salt have been added, for 20 minutes or until tender. Drain and blanch. Beat yolks of eggs until thick and lemon colored. Add cream and whites of two eggs beaten until stiff and dry. Fold in prepared macaroni and season with salt and pepper. Add chicken, ham and cheese and turn into a well buttred baking dish. Sprinkle with buttered crumbs and bake 30 minutes in a moderate oven. Serve at once.

RICE AND NUT LOAF

One cup boiled rice, 1 cup broken nut meats, 1 cup cracker crumbs, 1 cup milk, 2 eggs, 1 teaspoon salt, ¼ teaspoon pepper, 1 tablespoon melted butter, 1 tablespoon minced parsley, few drops onion juice.

English walnuts, pecans or hickorynuts make the best loaf.

Combine rice, nuts and cracker crumbs. Add one or two drops onion juice, parsley, salt and peper with milk and eggs slightly beaten. Mix well and turn into a well buttered brick-shaped pan. Spread evenly and smooth over the top. Pour over the melted butter and bake one hour in a moderate oven.

Turn out on a hot platter and pour around creamed carrots to serve.

KITCHEN HELP

A roll of absorbent paper toweling in the kitchen will take the place of the unsightly hand towel and will save staining linen towels with fruit juices, etc. It can be used also for draining foods cooked in deep fat, vegetables, and to remove grease from pots and pans before putting in the dish water.

Paris Shows Enthusiasm for the Short Jacket Ensemble

Nearly every couturier in Paris is exploiting the short jacket theme for midseason and early spring. For immediate wear the velvet jacket with wool checks or plaid for the skirt is the outstanding idea. So interesting have compose costumes of skirt and jacket become, Paris predicts a tremendous vogue for them with the arrival of spring.

Molyneux carries out the jacket costume in velveteen posed over woolen in matching color for the skirt, adding to this a jumper of rich brocade, thus creating an afternoon costume rich of fabric, and adaptable to varied occasions. Thus again does the short jacket mode involve a new style movement, namely, that of the blouse. All signs point to a coming season wherein the blouse will be of outstanding importance.

As for the short jacket, not only is it the personification of youth, but its possibilities are endless.

The Double Deception

By MRS. E. O. CARLSTON
Author of "For Freedom."

Beatrice was surprised at the change in her ideas the last few minutes had brought. Only a week before, if anyone had dared to reprove her as Warren Allison had just done, that person would forever have forfeited her friendship. As she listened to Warren's opinions of what his ideal girl would be, she fell into his way of reasoning, and was convinced that he was right. He had said, "Try it for my sake." Was he really learning to care a little? Just a little, she felt, would make her happy. After all of this had passed quickly through her mind, she replied:

"I will make the attempt, Warren."

"We shall probably eat our evening meal at the Calls tonight, as it will be dinner time when we reach the city," he said, consulting his watch.

"If we do will you promise me that you will offer your assistance, after the meal is finished?"

"All right, but I imagine they will wonder what has changed me so, as I have certainly aired my views about housework during the last week."

"If they are as good at guessing as I am, they will know what has happened to alter your opinion." He stopped the car along the side of the infrequently travelled road, and now looked her squarely in the eye.

"Wh-what do you mean? Just what do you think caused me to form new opinions on this subject?" she asked, not looking directly at him.

"It is merely a conjecture, not a settled fact." She waited for him to go on. "I think you have fallen in love."

Beatrice had no intention of confirming his statement, she had had too much experience for that. Men did not value affection that was offered to them, unsought. She determined to make him seek her love, seek it desperately.

"With whom?" she asked, innocently.

"With me, of course."

"I wouldn't be too sure about that."

"Why not? You are beginning to show the symptoms."

"How do you know?"

"Partly from experience."

"Has there been someone else?" she asked, unable to resist the strong desire to know.

"Many of them—just 'puppy love' of course, that lasted anywhere from two weeks to five months."

"You must have a changeable nature."

"Probably I have. We're all got our peculiar faults, and I own to possessing my share of them. I suppose I'll have a dozen other love affairs before the right girl appears on the scene."

"How very independent he is!" thought Beatrice. "I'll have to show him he isn't the only friend I have."

Aloud she said: "Let us go home; it is almost five o'clock, and I have to pack my clothes yet."

"And help Helen wash dishes," he added in an amused tone.

"Yes, I'll try anything once."

"With sufficient motive," he added.

"Don't allow my motive to trouble you."

"It doesn't trouble me, honey; but it certainly does give me a thrill."

His arm was resting on the back of the seat, and his hand slipped to her shoulder. His face was close to hers, and coming closer. She dodged.

"What's the matter, Bea? I wasn't going to kiss you. Just wanted to see if you would let me."

"And suppose I had allowed you to?"

"Well, I don't know. I didn't intend to, though."

She smiled to herself. Warren's company was enjoyable, even if he was a little different from the others. They heard another machine coming back of them, and Beatrice, who gave the occupants a hurried look, saw that it was a group of students from Clinton University. She was acquainted with most of them and one in particular, she knew very well. He was known to his friends as Bill Harvey, and was the son of a comparatively poor man who worked daily for the money used to educate his son.

At the beginning of the last year's school term, Beatrice had made every effort to win young Bill's affection, and like the toys she had cast aside in childhood, so had she shattered the hopes of this college boy, after the affair had progressed for some months. As the other machine passed Warren's car, Beatrice failed to notice the sly wink Bill Harvey had passed to the man beside her. In a few minutes, Warren started his machine, and headed it back toward the city. They stopped, as they had promised, for Helen, and reached the Call home just as Mrs. Call announced to her husband that "supper was ready," as Mr. Call often said, "The evening meal is 'supper' to me, not dinner, as the high-ups call it." Mrs. Call immediately placed an extra plate on the table for Warren. After the meal was finished, Mr. Call was the first to excuse himself, after which he sat down in his favorite easy chair, and with both feet resting on a book stand, lit his cigar, and began to glance over the Sunday paper.

When the others left the table, Warren made a suggestion.

"Mrs. Call, you will be excused now. Beatrice and I are going to wash the dishes, if Helen will be good enough to supervise the enormous task. Get both of us an apron, Helen. Yes," when Helen did not move from the spot, "Beatrice wants to know something about domestic duties."

"Well, I never!" exclaimed Mrs. Call. "Are you gonna get married, Miss Morgan? Just t'other day you was saying you'd never touch a dish towel or apron." The good woman was thoroughly amazed.

"We all change our minds, you know Mrs. Call," Beatrice said, as she donned a pretty creation made from yellow muslin, trimmed in pink and blue embroidery.

"Yes, but nobody changes like you did, without a reason," Mrs. Call said, nodding wisely.

Beatrice not yet thoroughly tamed felt that she would be glad when the trying ordeal was over. Helen began to clear the table.

"Now, young lady, you're taking orders from me tonight," Warren said with authority. "Sit down in this chair, and lose the job, but keep your hands out."

"All right, p'fessor," Helen said.

"No, Beatrice, don't throw away that slice of bread. Take it out to the kitchen along with these other leftovers."

Beatrice did as she was told, and Warren followed with a stack of dirty dishes. After no small amount of laughing and joking, the table was cleared, and a vase of flowers, only, remained. Warren washed the dishes, and Beatrice found a cloth in the pantry to dry them with, and proceeded with her irksome task.

"Here, child, wait a minute. What th' Heck? That's a dust cloth. Here's your dish towel. Run some scalding water over them first. It's in that tea kettle."

Beatrice looked blank. Helen threatened to explode with laughter, so Werren sent her from the room, telling her they could manage without her. Warren closed the door after Helen made her exit.

"I know you think I'm dumb," Beatrice said, soberly.

"Not at all, honey; but you've got a lot to learn."

"I'll handle this myself," he said. "You would be sure to scald those little fingers." He gave her hand a warm pressure.

After many a blunder on Beatrice's part, and humorous criticism by Warren, the work was finished, and the couple joined the circle in the living room.

"What's the big idea, Beatrice?" Mr. Call asked, looking at her from over the top of his glasses. "Thought you wouldn't do housework for anything or anybody."

"Now, pa, don't ask her so many questions. I reckon she knows what she's about," Mrs. Call interrupted.

"I believe it is time for me to travel," Beatrice said, ignoring Mr. Call's remark. "They lock the doors at the hall shortly after ten, and I want to get there before that time. I've had a very enjoyable visit, and would like for Helen to come home with me for the summer if she can."

Warren was waiting, hat in hand, when Beatrice came down again, carrying her bag of clothing, which she handed to him.

"I'll have to step on the gas," Warren said. "It only lacks fifteen minutes of being ten p. m. now, and we have every foot of eleven miles to travel. Onward they sped through the night. When they reached the grounds surrounding the school, Warren slowed down, and stopped at the entrance to the grounds, which was as far as he was allowed to go, according to the rules of the institution.

Beatrice bade him a hasty goodnight, and hurried to the building. Warren headed his car back toward the city, chuckling to himself as he drove along. When he reached George Wyman's home, he found Bill Harvey waiting for him.

"What luck?" Bill inquired.

"Oh, I don't know, Bill. We mustn't carry the thing too far. Of course, she was absolutely heartless in her affair with you, but you got over it all right."

"Don't be too sure about that."

"You don't mean to tell me you are still in love with her?" Warren questioned in a surprised tone.

"You've guessed it. It's a hopeless case, though. She told me, when it was too late for me to give her up easily, that she would never marry a poor boy like me."

"But you have brilliant prospects ahead of you. I believe you will make the best attorney in the state." Warren said, warmly.

"She wouldn't want me, anyway," Bill said gloomily. "Her pride will have to receive a severe shock before she would even consider making terms with me."

"I'll take her down a few notches, Bill. Then you can have her. It seems to me that it is a mean trick, but I have started it, and if you still want me to, I'll finish it," Warren promised.

"It's my only chance," Bill said. "Do the best you can."

CHAPTER VII

The next month passed uneventfully at the Wayland's Select school, except that Beatrice found herself growing more fond of Warren every time they met. The early spring months passed by, and preparations were being made by the girls for the summer vacation. Beatrice and Helen were discussing plans, when another girl entered the room.

"Letter for Miss Beatrice Morgan," she sang out.

Letters from home are usually stale," she said to Helen, placing it between the pages of one of her books for future perusal. "Let's have a game of tennis," she suggested. "I'm tired of being indoors."

It was several hours before she returned to read the letter from Mr. Morgan. It was more interesting than she had supposed.

"My dear Daughter," it ran. "Why haven't you answered the last letter I wrote you? Because nothing I had to say was of interest to you? I hope this one will receive a more prompt reply, as I have some good news for you. My business takes me to California this summer, and I would like for you to go along with me. If you wish, you may bring one of your girl friends along. Remember, I must start July first, and see that you do not cause a delay."

"I have neglected to tell you that your maid, Norma Wentworth, left my employ early last winter. She is now living with a Mrs. Browning in Belleville. As you pass through that city on your way home, it would be a good idea to urge her to come back with you, as she is trustworthy and can be depended upon. Come home as soon as possible, as my business cannot be postponed. In the meantime, I am your loving father, J. P. Morgan."

"Oh, good!" she exclaimed. "I was wondering how I could endure a summer at home. I'll have to tell Helen the news. She will be good company for me, if I can persuade her dad to allow her to accompany us."

Helen, it proved, was as enthusiastic about the news as Beatrice, so she invited her friend to spend the week-end at the Call home, when they would try to obtain Mr. Call's consent to the proposed trip. Later in the day, Helen hurried toward Beatrice's room.

"What now?" Beatrice inquired.

"I saw George a few minutes ago, and he said that Warren and himself would drive around after us at four this afternoon."

"Where did you see him?" Beatrice inquired.

"Old Professor Martin sent him up here to deliver a note to Miss Burke. I think they are arranging some kind of a get-together party for the two schools. Wouldn't that be nice?"

"Lovely," Beatrice answered. "And I suppose George just accidently stumbled on you in the hall or some place."

"We met on the lawn, and as Miss Burke was looking rather cross in our direction, we made the conversation brief."

"I imagine so," Beatrice said, understandingly. The dark-eyed, sharp-featured Miss Burke, was the only person so far who was able to keep Beatrice under authority, with the exception of Warren Allison, who Beatrice recognized as master of the situation between himself and her.

"It is almost four o'clock, 'now,'" Helen said, glancing at her wrist watch. "We will have to hurry."

FAIRY'S VALENTINE

I saw a little elf
Who was sitting by himself
In a hollow that was warm and stuffy.
He had made a little pen
Of a feather of a wren
And he dipped it into golden honey.

And he wrote with all his might:
"Oh, my darling little sprite,
You are sweeter than the clover
That the bee is buzzing over.
And I love you, I adore you.
And I'm always longing for you,
And you're always growing dearer.
And I wish that you were nearer,
I can think of nothing clever,
But I'm yours, and yours forever
If you want it so or not!"
And he ended with a blot.

Then I copied out his letter
(Since I couldn't write a better),
And I'm signing it and send it to you,
For it's true.

Minwool Agency On the Hilltop

Success of a warm air furnace system depends upon its efficiency in getting the warm air from the point of origin to the point of application, according to the Minwool Heat Insulating Co., 872 North High street.

In the average furnace much heat is lost in the basement, radiating from the furnace itself. This loss can be eliminated, the air circulation speeded up, the fire risk reduced and the house supplied with clean instead of dust-laden air by the application of Minwool insulation.

Many basements are unnecessarily warm—so warm that vegetables and bulbs will not keep during the winter for any length of time—due to radiation from the furnace. This heat, conveyed to the upper floors, would result in a saving of fuel with an increase of comfort. The Minwool Heat Insulating Co. cites instances in which the fuel saving has run as high as 50 per cent. A saving of from 15 to 40 per cent is claimed.

Minwool has been used for years for industrial and commercial purposes, but only when a process was devised for felting it could it be applied to the outside surface of heating equipment and be made available for residential use. It has an insulating range from 40 degrees below zero to 1800 degrees above.

As a protective overcoat for hot water tanks Minwool has the same efficiency as with furnaces, effecting a saving of fuel as high as 50 to 75 per cent, the company declares.

A Minwool overcoat makes the tank like a Thermos bottle and not only keeps hot water hot, but allows it to get hot in half the time.

Besides the convenience and comfort, the saving in gas pays for the overcoat in a short time, the company says.

C. A. Shott of 85 N. Warren Ave is the Hilltop representative for Minwool.

WAGE RATES DISCUSSED

Builders See no Reason to Fear Shortage of Mechanics for 1927.

At the opening session of the annual convention of the Ohio Association of Builders Exchanges, in session in Columbus last week, contractors and builders were told that they may expect numerous demands for increased wages, by L. J. Collins, secretary of the Dayton Exchange.

His address, which dealt with "Wage Rates and the Supply of Building Mechanics," Collins asserted, "there need not be any fear of a shortage of mechanics, because Ohio in 1926 went through a successful year, and so far as we have been able to learn, there is every indication that contractors and builders may expect similar conditions for the coming year."

The first toothbrush used, it is said, was the chew stick, a twig about the size of a carpenter's pencil, with one end beaten to a soft, fibrous condition. This not only cleaned the teeth, but gave the gums a gentle massage. Once used, the stick was thrown away, and a new one was made for the next occasion. A seventeenth-century implement to keep the teeth clean was a strip of fine linen cloth. About this time, too, several kinds of tooth powder came into use. One of the simplest of these was a burnt-cork preparation which was rubbed on the teeth.

Strangely enough, when the black cork was applied, it whitened the teeth. To-day the modern bristle brushes are used. The brush itself is made of hog bristles of which the finest grades come from the half-wild animals of the cold, bleak regions of Russia, Siberia, and China. Good bristles are essential to a good brush and manufacturers test and use only the best grades available. It is said that there are more than five hundred types of toothbrushes on the market throughout the world.

Intellectuals of Russia, desiring to stimulate a desire for greater knowledge in their fellow countrymen, held a book carnival in Moscow. At a time when streets were crowded with people they featured a parade in which lines of marchers carried placards and banners advertising the glories of books and their aid toward higher culture. The message for education was spread throughout the city and it is thought that better school facilities will be the result.

2nd SEMESTER OF "Y" SCHOOL

Opening Monday Shows Lately Increased Enrollment in All Departments.

The opening of the spring semester of the Y. M. C. A. college of law, school of commerce, evening high school and engineering school Monday evening saw a greatly increased enrollment over the last semester.

Enrollment in the College of Law during the past semester was the largest in the history of the school with many new enrollments in addition to all of the old students. Introduction of the collegiate rule by the Supreme court to Dean McLeskey has strengthened the interest of students of law and men of better educational qualifications are seeking admission.

About 40 per cent of the students this year are men with college training, while the larger percentage of the balance have met the educational requirements of the supreme court. After October 15, 1927 it will be impossible to enroll students who do not have two years of college credit it was pointed out by Dean McLeskey.

ANOTHER JURIST FOR FRANKLIN CO.

No Added Expense to County as Extra Judge's Salary Will Care for Additional Judge.

Approval of the Herbert bill providing a court of domestic relations for Franklin county was given by the Ohio senate, last week, when it reconvened after the week-end recess. No opposing votes were cast.

The bill, which was the fourth to be introduced during the present session of the upper house, authorizes the election of an additional judge for the common pleas court in Franklin county, for a term of six years. This judge would handle all alimony, divorce, juvenile and other cases of a domestic nature.

Herbert declared the common pleas dockets were from 10 to 12 months behind schedule at the present time, and that an additional judge had to be assigned by the supreme court to take care of the cases.

"This would not mean any additional expense to the county," he continued, "as the additional judge assigned by the supreme court would no longer be necessary, and his salary could pay the domestic relations judge."

INFORMAL FAREWELL

For Rev. and Mrs. E. E. McFarlane Who Go to El Dorado, Kans.

A farewell, in the form of an informal gathering in the basement of the Hillcrest Baptist church, on Wednesday, Feb. 9, was given for Rev. and Mrs. McFarlane, who have accepted a call to El Dorado, Kansas.

Over 200 members of the church and friends were present at this gathering.

Mr. Harry Wilson in behalf of the church presented a beautiful wrist watch to Mrs. McFarlane and an Illinois watch to Rev. McFarlane. In accepting the gift Rev. McFarlane stated that to show their real love for them, the people would stand by the church.

Dr. Rittenhouse of the First Baptist church outlined the progress of the church during the five years which Rev. McFarlane has been here at Hilltop.

Announcement was made by Mr. N. W. Kent, chairman of the pulpit committee that Rev. J. H. Hughes of the Temple Baptist church of Chicago would preach a trial sermon Sunday, March 13, at the morning and evening services.

A duet was given by Ray Evans and C. A. Young. The Robbins-Greiser String Quartet furnished music for the evening. Refreshments were served by ladies of the church.

Rev. McFarlane preached his farewell sermon Sunday and left for El Dorado on Tuesday. Rev. Moon of the Hillcrest church will preach here this Sunday. Mrs. Crawford an Indian missionary will speak Sunday evening.

BANDITS ROB HILLTOP STORE

Ira Ball, Manager of Kroger Store at 3117 W. Broad Held Up Last Saturday.

Bandits who have had such a popular part in the past week's affairs did not fail to visit the Hilltop.

On Saturday morning, early, three armed men traveling in auto, entered the Kroger store at 3117 W. Broad St. and at the point of guns demanded that the store cash be turned over. $25.30 was obtained.

"A shabby looking man entered the store about 7:15 and asked for a 5c can of milk. He handed me a dime and I rang up the sale and was handing him his change when he pulled a gun on me and told me to 'stick 'em up.' I backed away but didn't raise my hands. About this time two other fellows entered the store and hid behind the counter. One started to ring the cash register and I told him to ring up 'No Sale' so it wouldn't show on the books. He rang up one cent. One started to search me but I protested, saying all the money was in the register and the empty money bag was on the floor. They took the $25.30 and got in an old touring car a few steps away and drove out Broad street."

Ball said they missed $36 in bills by failing to search him.

This is the seventh holdup in Kroger stores in the past two weeks.

FINE RECORD OF SCHOLARSHIP AT HIGHLAND

Elementary Graduates Make Good—Winners in 8A Citizenship Contest.

A survey of the marks made by pupils at Highland Junior High school during the term closing Jan. 28 shows that 25 per cent were E's, 30.2 per cent were G's, 36 per cent were F's and 10.6 per cent were P's.

Their marks were made in majors only, i. e., English, History, Mathematics, Science, Latin, French and Commercial subjects.

The distribution of marks, from data taken the country over is as follows: 12.5 per cent E's, 31.9 per cent G's, 37.5 per cent F's and 12.5 per cent P's.

From these figures it can to seen that the record of scholarship being maintained at the Highland Junior High school is a very fine one. Fewer pupils there are failing and almost twice as many E's or Excellents are being made by pupils as is normally expected.

The first of last September a group of 19 boys and girls were promoted from the Highland sixth grade to the Junior High school. Of this group 50 per cent have been on the scholarship honor roll in the junior high school during the whole term just closed, and, of the 76 marks made in major subjects by the entire group of 19 pupils, but one mark was a failing mark. This is a very high standard of scholarship and these boys and girls are to be congratulated on their industry and training.

An inspection of the reports of the 21 pupils promoted from the Highland sixth grade a year ago show that they have maintained an equally good record in the junior high school for two terms past.

The Sons of the American Revolution society in Columbus awards each term to one boy and one girl in the 8A class of each junior high school in the city a medal for good citizenship.

The qualities to be considered in making this award are as follows: 1, Dependability; 2, Co-operation; 3, Leadership; 4, Cleanliness in speech and in personal habits; 5, Patriotism as determined by the ability to write the best essay on one of the parts of the preamble of the Constitution of the United States.

The winners of this contest this term at the Highland Junior High school are Theodore Dougherty, son of Mr. and Mrs. C. R. Dougherty of 426 S. Eureka Ave. and Mary Lois Mider, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. T. Mider of 186 S. Warren Ave.

Mrs. Margaret De Zurick entertained with a valentine party Monday night at her home, 51 Whitethorne Ave. The following were present: Misses Thelma Wymer, Mabel Adair, Lucile Elliott, Mary Kost, Mattie Tope, Teresa, Midge and Mildred Wolfe, Esther Ward, Rena Styles, Goldie Evans, Thelma Stalter, Helen Meddles; Messrs. R. Lucas, M. Campbell, C. Smith, C. Bradford, B. Paul, T. Hill, J. Sullivant, J. Powers, J. Adair and Arthur Day. Those assisting the hostess were Harry Mock and Mr. and Mrs. William Mock.

VALENTINE PARTY FOR W. H. O.'s

On the evening of Feb. 16, Mrs. Helen White entertained the members of the W. H. O. club at her home, 136 N. Powell Ave., with a valentine party. The evening was spent in games and stunts, the prize being awarded to Mrs. Ethel Nicely.

It was also election of officers and those chosen were as follows: Mrs. Mary Dial, president; Elizabeth Van Harken, vice president; Nola Tharp, secretary and treasurer; Helen White, press reporter.

Committee for relief work, Mrs. Helen White, Grace DeLong, Delpha Hall. Ways and means committee, Mrs. Anna Work, Elizabeth Van Harken, Ruth Gill, Fern Gill. Flowers and sick committee, Mrs. Ethel Nicely and Luella Butin.

At the close of the evening favors were given and a lovely luncheon was served by the hostess and her assistants, Mrs. Anna Work, Mrs. Elizabeth Van Harken and Mrs. Grace DeLong. Those present were: Mrs. Luella Butin, Nola Tharp, Elizabeth Van Harken, Ethel Nicely, Grace DeLong, Anna Work, Ruth Gill, Mary Dial, Fern Gill, Delpha Hall, Helen White and Mrs. Ruth Grandstaff of Lancaster.

SELECT AUTO TAG DESIGN FOR 1928

Twelve Hundred Tons of Steel and 150 Barrels of Paint Will Be Used in Manufacture

Samples of the new automobile license plates for 1928, selected by Secretary of State Clarence J. Brown, have been submitted to that official and given the stamp of approval.

The plate is a dark blue background with white letters and figures and will harmonize with the colors of any machine. The design might be pronounced unique and the ingenuity of the artist has been commended by those who have seen and examined the new plates.

There will be approximately 1,700,000 delivered to the bureau of motor vehicles, according to a statement made by the commissioner of that department, Col. Chalmers R. Wilson.

Twelve hundred tons of 24 U. S. gauge steel will be used in the manufacture of the plates and 150 barrels of paint will be required for the two colors. They will be encased in 1,700,000 paper envelopes costing one-half cent each; distribution will be made over the state in wooden boxes used as shipping crates at a cost of fifty cents each.

These plates are distributed by 850 deputy commissioners and 88 county auditors and they will be ready to send out on or about November first of this year. It might be added that there is enough steel used in the making of the auto license plates each year to manufacture 18 grain binders for every county in the state.

Ohio license plates find their way into every state of the union and many foreign climes. The prediction is made by Secretary of State Clarence J. Brown that these plates will attract more than ordinary attention and thus become a valuable asset in advertising the Buckeye state.

Washington Great Military Genius

In Soundness of Judgment No Other Commander His Equal

Nothing new can be said on Washington's character, statesmanship or patriotism. Nothing old can be said on these subjects with much chance of being better phrased than Byron's summary of him:

The first, the last, the best,
The Cincinnatus of the West,
Whom envy dared not hate;

or Kipling's more detailed presentment in "If." But in spite of all that has been written on the man, few students have taken Washington's full measure as a soldier, and fewer still realize how far he prefigured the scientific and industrial age in which we are living today.

The average person thinks of a great general as one who commands a great army. It would be possible to get farther from the truth than that, but not without prolonged effort. There is a point at which the mere size of an army taxes the genius of its commander; but that point was not reached until the Twentieth century. Judged by the real test, that of achievement in proportion to means and obstacles, Washington is one of the four or five greatest commanders produced by the English-speaking race; probably the greatest.

GREATLY HANDICAPPED.

Consider his difficulties. To begin with he was serving a revolutionary committee, not a real government; and was not backed by any of the governmental powers which supported European commanders. The congress of that day could not levy taxes, could not enforce conscription, could not pay its men or provide supplies. The men were enlisted for varying terms, almost always for short terms. The officers had little training. The different colonies were unaccustomed to act together. There was only the beginning of a national feeling and national consciousness, and the British, whatever their weakness, had splendidly disciplined troops and held the sea.

Yet, in the face of obstacles like these, Washington kept an army together and made headway against the enemy until he could deal the finishing blow at Yorktown. His Trenton campaign maneuvers were almost equally so. The skill with which he nailed Clinton to New York while the Continental army was making its 400-mile march to catch Cornwallis at Yorktown is fully equal to that by which Napoleon caught General Mack asleep at Ulm.

NO ERRORS MAR RECORD.

On one point of military genius, indeed, Washington is superior even to the Cordean Caesar, who in all things else ranks at the head of the martial world. No man can put his fingers on any point in Washington's campaigns and say: "Here this man made a serious mistake." The soundness of his judgment was almost uncanny.

Perhaps this judgment was due in some measure to the scientific quality of his mind. His approach to science was more practical than that of Franklin, but equally zealous. Washington conducted experiment after experiment in drainage, crop rotation, different methods of fertilizing. His notes on these matters are worthy of attention from agricultural colleges today. He berated Virginia's dependence on tobacco as bitterly as, more than a century later, Seaman Knapp lashed the dependence of the gulf states on cotton.

Always seeking better and more economical methods of production, always trying to utilize by-products, always ready for a "flyer" in land, which was the Eighteenth century substitute for industrial promotion, Washington was startlingly modern in many aspects of his mind. Where this modernism fails, it might pay us to get closer to the Washington viewpoint, even at the cost of being somewhat old fashioned.

RANKS WITH NOBLEST

Thoroughly human, absolutely fearless, conqueror of himself, we may put George Washington's record under the microscope of criticism and yet say, with the English historian: "No nobler figure ever stood in the forefront of a nation's history."

Mount Vernon illustrates clearly the self-dependent life of a South-before-the-war Virginia plantation.

There are, besides the mansion, about thirty buildings on the estate, including the kitchen, the office, the gardener's house, the carpenter shop, the butler's house, the smokehouse, the spring-house, the milkhouse, the corn-house, two houses for servants' quarters, the shelter house in the deer park, two lodgehouses at the north gate, one pavilion at the wharf, seven cabins, two lodgehouses at the west gate, a coach-house and a barn.

The mark of a dominant individualism is all over the place, as assertive and distinctive today as when Washington took over the premises on the death of his half brother, Lawrence Washington, in 1752, and began to tinker with the premises, up to his death 47 years afterward. Washington was more than a country gentleman.

He was the head of a household of about 150 negroes—all of whom he set free at his death—trained in the various occupations so necessary to the self dependent estates of those days.

Washington loved trees with a devoted appreciation. He planted and cared for them. He laid out his grounds with expert judgment; those about the house were made in the form of a shield, the center of the shield being a smooth, treeless lawn. About this level greensward a background of trees and shrubbery was planted.

Everything is as he left it—the open, grassy lawn at the front of the house and the furniture in the mansion.

Two courteous gentlemen of the old school have the task of keeping green this important Washington memory for the future inspection of all who love the cause of liberty and revere the name of Washington.

GREATNESS FAR ABOVE ANY HUMAN FRAILTIES

The great meaning of Washington is his noble and unselfish patriotism. The philosophy of Bacon is not vitiated by the fact that he was "the meanest of mankind." Daniel Webster's oratory and Edgar Poe's poetry are far more important than the fact that the orator and the poet occasionally became inebriated. Abraham Lincoln's funny stories—and sometimes silly stories and perhaps even questionable stories—are not the essential points of the emancipator's life. Shakespeare's deer stealing is of no weight in our estimate of him as the world's greatest man of letters. Carlyle's sourness of temper and meanness to his wife does not detract from his merit as essayist and historian. Even the frivolities and frailties of "Bobbie" Burns fail to lessen posterity's respect for the genius of the peasant poet.

So it is with George Washington. Only small faults which were common to all gentlemen of his day are alleged against him; whether or not the allegations are true is a matter of supreme unimportance. What is important is that George Washington was gifted by nature to be the leader in one of the most significant movements in the world history. These are the things that Americans should remember on the twenty-second day of February.—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

FOR YOUNG AMERICA

The figure of Washington remains vividly real and human in the minds of the American people. He is not a mere tradition. His peculiarities of character are intimately known. His words are currently quoted. His personal appearance is familiar. He is, indeed, living "in the hearts of his countrymen." And that is why on this annual occasion the country pauses to pay him the tribute of gratitude and respect and devotion.

LONG TIME LOANS ON REAL ESTATE

McFadden Bill Would Permit National Banks to Loan on Five-Year Term.

Permission for national banks to make five-year loans on real estate is included in the present draft of the McFadden bill, which has passed the house and was expected to come to a vote in the senate this week. The provision would open a considerable new source of financing for real estate developement, it is believed.

The present law permits national banks to make only one-year loans on real estate. In view of the fact that few real estate loans are made on a one-year basis or can advantageously be so made, the present provision has been practically inoperative, it is pointed out.

New properties have been found in the long-known but little-used metal, tantalum. Professor James R. Withrow, head of the Department of Chemical Engineering in Ohi State University, reports that this metal lasts sixteen hundred times as long as platinum, and is one twentieth cheaper. The demand for tantalum for use in Jewelry has kept up the price. Since investigations of its contributions to chemical-engineering materials have resulted so favorably, it is hoped by scientists that this element may be used exclusively in this field.

Absence of Trimming Features the Better Georgette Frocks

Amazingly clever manipulation with dependence placed upon striking color for individualism rather than the presence of applied trimming—this is the fashionist's conception of a perfect gown for dinner, dance or formal afternoon wear.

For the dress which relies entirely upon fabric manipulation, georgette has proven itself an ideal medium. The Paris vogue for black has given an exceptional style prestige to the all-black georgette frock for evening wear, void of trimming but abounding in the intricacies of floating panels and draperies, myriads of tiers.

Two of the most recent items in fabric treatments are the inset belt and the large bow of self-material. Bows similar to that which enhances the dress in the picture are being featured more than ever on dresses of soft sheer goods.

As to belt effects, the smartest are worked in as part of the making of the dress, and in a measure, answer to the call for intricate seaming, which dressmakers say is part of the styling program for the coming season. Panels suspended from the shoulder also give unique and graceful touch to this model aptly demonstrating the beautiful effects achieved in the handling of the material, which mark the more exclusive styling.

Color plays a most spectacular part in the late winter style program. It is a flame color georgette which was chosen for the development of the frock here shown, this brilliant shade distinguishing it from the ordinary at any social gathering. Reds of every hue are very fashionable for evening wear.

Captivating tone-on-tone effects are employed for many a georgette party dress. For instance, a tiered skirt used a deep shade for the lower tier, graduating the color to lighter as the flat tiers approach the waistline.

Recipes

DATE BARS

One pound dates (stoned and cut fine), ½ cup chopped nuts, 1 cup flour, 1½ teaspoonful baking powder, 1 cup sugar, 1 tablespoon butter, 1 tablespoon hot water, 2 eggs.

Cream the butter, add the sugar and mix thoroughly. Add the egg yolks beaten until creamy and the hot water. Then add the egg whites beaten until stiff. Sift the flour with the baking powder and add alternately with the dates and nuts. Spread in a well-greased shallow pan, 1-8 inch thick. Bake 10 to 12 minutes. Cool, cut in strips 3 inches long and ¾ inch wide. Roll in powdered sugar and serve with afternoon tea or hot chocolate.

HOT WATER SPONGE CAKE

In this recipe sift your flour and sugar several times. Add ¼ teaspoon of salt to 6 egg yolks and beat with a Dover egg-beater until very light. Add 1 cup of sugar gradually, beating all the time. Add ⅓ cup of boiling water and stir constanly. Add 1 teaspoon of lemon extract. Sift in 1½ cups of cake flour and 2 teaspoons of baking powder. Stir well and turn at once into two greased layer-cake pans. Bake slowly for one-half hour. May be put together with lemon custard. If one cake is desired put in single cake pan with hole in the center. Bring fire up gradually and hold an even heat.

CHOCOLATE RICE PUDDING

One-fourth cup rice, 2 cups milk, 1 square chocolate, 5 tablespoons sugar, 1 tablespoon butter, ⅛ teaspoon salt, 1 egg, ½ teaspoon vanilla.

Wash rice. Put chocolate in top of double boiler over hot water and melt. Add milk slowly, stirring constantly. Stir in rice and sugar and salt. Cook over hot water, stirring frequently with a fork until the rice is tender and the mixture is of the consistency of thick cream. Stir in egg well beaten and cook five minutes longer. Let cool and stir in vanilla. Pour into individual glasses, chill and serve garnished with whipped cream.

Try McDaniel's Fresh Rolls. 2890 W. Broad St.

"Scissor Painted" Vase

"Scissor painting" is an easy new method of decorating pottery, lamp shades and other things so that they look as if they were hand painted. Here is a pretty vase decorated with designs cut from crepe paper and pasted to it, and glazed with thin, transparent amber sealing wax paint. The pattern is cut out carefully and the paste applied with the grain of the paper, being sure to cover the edges. It is then put in position and pressed down securely. Paint over the entire surface with the thin sealing wax paint, and after it has dried paint in a background with thicker paint, about as thick as cream, in one color or in shaded effects.

A new source of sugar has been found. The juice extracted from a common weed, known as Jerusalem artichoke and growing wild in many barren places from Mexico to Labrador, is said to be sweeter and cheaper than that produced by either the sugar cane or sugar beet. Two pounds of sugar from this weed correspond in sweetness to three pound of the other varieties. When it is cultivated sixteen tons or more of sugar can be obtained from one acre.

ABOUT MONKEYS

"Now, perhaps I shouldn't say it, as I suppose it is slangy and not the best word of all to choose and yet it is the only word which describes how I feel," said Larry, the monkey.

"You haven't used the word as yet," said another monkey whose name was Snookums.

"I will tell you," said Larry. "The word I want to use is 'peeved.'

"It is the word which describes just how I feel."

"I don't believe I know what peeved means," said Snookums.

"You know when a person is angry and a bit mad at some one and just feels like a cat when he has his back up—"

But Snookums interrupted Larry.

"How do I know what a cat feels like when he has his back up? I'm not a cat. I haven't a cat's feelings."

"Oh, well," said Larry, "You know what I mean."

"Yes," said Snookums, "I understand."

"Now that you know what the word

"Isn't It a Descriptive Word, Now, Snookums?"

means and now that you understand it," began Larry, but once more Snookums interrupted him by saying:

"So peeved means all of that you were telling me a moment or so ago?

"I interrupted you and you didn't get a chance to tell me peeved really meant that. Nor did you get a chance to tell me that all those things meant peeved. It was my fault. But now I know.

"Isn't it a descriptive word, now, Snookums? Doesn't it just describe certain people and certain moods and the way almost everyone, once in a great while at any rate, feels? Why you take right hold of it yourself."

"That's so," agreed Snookums. "But if it is a good dictionary word and it works so well why do you say it is slangy and that perhaps you shouldn't use it?"

"Well," said Larry, "of course I use slang when I'm playing, but when I'm trying to tell a story I try to use my best words and slang words are second best words, or play words. I don't use slang very often because very little of it expresses what I feel.

"Most of it is somewhat stupid, but the word peevish always sounds nice and slangy. It sounds like a slang word with some sense, perhaps because it isn't a slang word after all."

"And I haven't yet heard why you were peevish," said Snookums, "of are peevish."

"Our master," said Larry, "is what is known as a scientist. He is also known as a naturalist. That means that he knows all about natural history and animals and plants and science and in short that he is a very wise man.

"He has studied monkeys until he has become an authority on monkeys which means that he knows all about us. People who are interested in us are fascinated to hear him talk. People grow to know us well through him.

"Well, the other night he went to a dinner—it was a dinner of some of his oldtime school friends. Many of them he hadn't seen for years. And his feelings were dreadfully hurt and he was angry and he felt insulted.

"It seems that all the men began to talk about what they were doing. Some were bankers, some were railway men, some were salesmen, some were in wholesale houses.

"And when they asked our master what he did and he said he was in the monkey business they all burst out laughing.

"The monkey business they tittered.

"Now, wasn't that ignorance? They looked down upon our master, and what had they done with their lives? Why, there's no science to selling a pair of pants or in handing a person's money in return for a check through the paying teller's window of a bank, but to know about monkeys—well, that is something like."

"Something like," agreed Snookums, "and I don't wonder you're peeved that such a thing should have happened and that there should be such ignorance."

The Double Deception

By MRS. E. O. CARLSTON

For once, Beatrice agreed to this, as Warren must not be kept waiting. In a short time, she packed her bag, and made her other preparations. When the girls reached the big entrance gates, they saw a brand new car waiting on the road. George Wyman was at the steering wheel.

"Did you buy a new car, George?" Beatrice asked.

"No, I stole an old wreck from the ditch, and threw a can of blue enamel at it," George answered sarcastically.

"Don't pretend to be less brilliant than you really are," Beatrice retorted.

"Climb in, and quit talking so much, before your friend Miss Burke sees us," Warren said.

The pretty little blue car was soon spinning almost noiselessly along the road toward the city.

"Didn't I tell you we'd have a nice little car all our own?" George asked Helen in a low voice.

But I didn't expect you to buy it so soon."

"No? Well, I did. How do you like it?"

"Magnificently!" Helen exclaimed.

"I suppose they will start saving for a cute little bungalow the next thing on the program," Warren teased.

"I won't have to 'save,' thank you, Mr. Allison," George replied.

"Did a rich uncle die?" Warren questioned.

"Naw, I invested a few hundred in oil wells just to try my luck, and the checks are rolling in now."

In a lower tone, he said to Helen: "We'll have a fine time this summer." Helen was not sure about that, as she really wanted to go with Beatrice.

When they reached Helen's home, they found the evening meal ready. Both young men seated themselves at the table, after a very little persuasion.

"Where is Beatrice's apron?" Warren began, when they had finished eating.

"Oh, Warren," Beatrice said, pleadingly; but nevertheless, in a very short time, she and Waren completed the task.

"Want to go to a movie, tonight?" George asked the other young people, then added: "Mr. and Mrs. Call, we would like to have you with us. My car is a seven-passenger, and there will be plenty of room."

"No, I don't think we better go," Mr. Call said hesitatingly. "You young folks don't want me and ma taggin' along, I know. We'll go by ourselves. My old Ford is good enough for us."

"We would be glad to have you," Warren said. But both of the older people were firm in their refusal.

"Drive out to your house, George. I believe we would prefer a ride to a show, tonight, (speaking for Beatrice and myself). I'll get my machine. You and Helen can go to the theatre if you want to."

"Would you like to take my car?" George asked. "It's the same make as yours, and you could be able to drive it."

"It was finally agreed that Warren would use the new car, providing he would return by the time the play was over. They took the road which followed the river.

"Beautiful night," Beatrice said.

"Is it? I hadn't noticed. Been too busy thinking of you," Warren said.

Beatrice did not reply.

"Like me?" he asked.

"Probably," she answered.

"No 'probably' about it. I want the truth."

"Yes, then."

"I wish that my business took me to California this summer," he said.

"So do I, Warren. Why don't you go out there for a vacation?"

"I am sorry, but it is impossible for me to do that. You know dad is in the wholesale drygoods business. Our branch in Boston has not been profiting as it should, and he wants me to take charge of things up there. I am going home two weeks from today for a few days. Then, I am going to Boston and get busy."

"I start home the same day you do," Beatrice informed him. "But I have to stop at a place called Belleville to hunt up a runaway servant, who would probably be glad to take a trip this summer, as she happened to be my maid. If Mr. Call will consent, Helen is going to spend the summer with me, too."

"That will be nice," Warren said. "I live close to Belleville, myself, just outside the city limits, so why can't we start from here together? I will help you to locate your stray servant, and can take an electric car from there to my 'old home town,' or rather, will let the car take me."

"I shall be glad to have your company," Beatrice said.

"If anyone sees us at the depot here, they will think we are eloping," Warren said, just to see how she would take it.

"Who do you mean by 'we'?" Beatrice asked. "Helen will probably be along. You couldn't elope with both of us."

"Don't get funny. The gossips would decide that Helen was a bridesmaid. Novel idea, isn't it? Say, Bea, there's a fellow at college who used to like you real well—Bill Harvey, you know. What do you thing of him?" Warren asked.

"I used to like him quite well until I found that his family is as poor as church mice. I wasn't to be handicapped by poverty, so I broke off our friendship."

"But it seems to me that, since his prospects for the future are encouraging, you should at least give him a chance."

"Why are you arguing his case?" Beatrice asked wonderingly.

"Because I like to see fair play," Warren replied. "If you won't be fair in your dealings with others, you would not be fair to me."

"Have I ever been unfair to you?"

"Not yet: but you acted the same way toward Bill Harvey until you gained your point. Then you were tired of him. It was just one romance out of many to you, but William Harvey is more serious. He will never forget."

"What makes you think so?"

"I am better acquainted than anyone else, with him, and know that I am not mistaken."

"I wasn't formally engaged to him I don't see why I was under any obligations."

"He told me that you consented to his proposal, and afterward refused the engagement ring he offered you," Warren said, determined to learn the truth from her, as it had been told him by his chum.

"I wanted a diamond in platinum mounting; he brought me a white gold ring, set with my birthstone. I realized that he would never be able to please me, and refused, to accept the ring," Beatrice explained.

As Beatrice's side of the story corresponded with the other side, as he had heard it from Bill Harvey, Warren dropped the subject, mentaly deciding that Beatrice needed to be taken down a few more notches. He did not know that fate would soon attend to that matter without any assistance from

They returned to meet Helen and George at the appointed time, and after they reached Helen's home, Beatrice at once mentioned her intended trip to California, and informed Mr. Call that she wanted to take Helen with her. He hesitated before replying. She could see that something was troubling him. Finally, he said:

"I'm sorry, but I don't see how we can let her go this year—"

"Of course, my father will bear all the expenses," Beatrice promised.

"I never was much of a hand to take charity from anyone," Mr. Call persisted.

"I wouldn't look at it that way, Mr. Call," interposed Warren. "I am sure Helen's company would pay them for the cost involved, which is only a trifle to a man of Mr. Morgan's circumstances."

After a little more persuasion, Mr. Call consented to the proposition. From that time, until the day when the two girls, accompanied by Warren Allison, boarded the westward bound train at the depot in Eastfield, nothing was talked of by the two girls but the pleasant prospects ahead of them. The outlook, however, to two of Warren's college chums did not look so promising. George Wyman wondered how on earth he could pass the summer without Helen. Bill Harvey felt that the breach was widening between himself and Beatrice Morgan. He was beginnig to feel that he had gone too far when he confided in Warren Allison about such a delicate matter. Worse yet, to him, was the thought that he was the originator of the plan to avenge the treatment Beatrice had meted out to him in the past. What if Warren should succeed in trampling her affections under his feet, just as she had done to him, William Harvey. Would that make her penitent and cause her to realize the wrong she herself had done? He feared not, after he had taken time to reconsider the matter.

"Girls these days are independent. They do not allow disappointment in love to wreck their lives, nor do they run to the arms of a cast aside suitor for consolation. I was a fool to even contemplate such a move," young Harvey thought remorsefully. When he informed his chum of his altered opinion, Warren just laughed about the matter.

"I'll drop her one of these days. Then you can step in and run things to suit yourself; and I am certain that it will work."

"I hope so,'" Bill said, "but I very much doubt it.'

"Now, I've located your trouble, Billy, old boy," Warren said, giving the lovesick youth a hard slap across the shoulders. "You 'doubt.' Quit doubting; be optimistic about the situation, and stop acting like a school boy."

"I'll take your advice, but I greatly doubt the advisability of it," Bill said.

"There goes that 'doubt' again. Cheer up! Take other girls to a theatre or someplace once in a while. Now, I don't intend to hand you any more suggestions. I'm not associated with a matrimonial bureau, and besides other things of more interest to me than girls will ever be, are soon going to keep me occupied. What did you think of the baseball game yesterday?" Warren asked, to change the subject.

"Who won?" Bill asked.

"Our team, of course. If you ever expect to make good at anything for goodness' sakes, wake up."

"I have some studying to do. Guess I'll go to my room," Bill announced.

"And so have I," Warren replied.

CHAPTER VIII

The remainder of the school term passed without any unusual occurrences, except that the party for the pupils of both schools "went over big," as Warren put it. Finally, the day came when Helen and Beatrice met at the railroad station, as they had agreed to do. They were soon joined by Warren and before many minutes, the three were soon travelling swiftly across the mountainous region of the Eastern Highland in the direction of Beatrice Morgan's home in Illinois. As they had started very early in the morning they reached Belleville, where they expected to search for Norma Wentworth, late that afternoon. They went to the house belonging to Mrs. Browning, but found no one at home. A woman in one of the neighboring homes, informed them that Mrs. Browning and Miss Wentworth had taken a trip to Boston to visit Mrs. Brownin's sister. She gave them the address of Mrs. Browning's sister.

"A sample of my luck, again," Beatrice said, in a disappointed tone.

"Why worry?" Warren asked. "If you really must have a maid, why not go to an employment agency? There are several of them in the downtown section."

"I don't want to employ a stranger if I can help it. Norma knows all about my personal likes and dislikes, and uses remarkable taste in designing my clothing. That is not included in her duties, according to custom, but she likes to do it, and always had plenty of time. I don't see how I shall get along without her. I have about fifty yards of material to be made up in the next two weeks; and Carlinville doesn't even boast of a dressmaker.

"Probably she would prefer a trip to California this summer to a lengthened visit in Boston," Helen suggested.

"Tell you what I'll do," Warren promised. "I am going to Boston myself, as soon as dad gives me the necessary instructions about the Dry Goods busines, though at first I intended to stay at home for several weeks. Probably I can go to see this remarkable young lady and persuade her to accomodate you, especially if I tell her how valuable she has been to you in the past."

"For goodness sake, don't do that. She is conceited enough as it is."

"Just as you say about; but I will do the best I can for you." When they reached the depot it lacked thirty minutes of being train time. Warren waited until time for the train to leave the station, after which he boarded a car which way to convey him to the home of his father. Having never been given the opportunity to travel, Helen enjoyed the pourney very much. While Beatrice idly turned the pages of a magazine, which she had purchased on the train, Helen's eyes followed the ever changing scenery. After two nights spent in the Pullamn, and a few hours of riding the last morning, the conductor came through the aisle shouting: "Next stop, Carlinville."

The girls collected their belongings, and when the train drew up beside the shabby little station, Beatrice saw her father waiting on the platform. Not being demonstrative where her father was concerned, Beatrice hastily exchanged greetings with him and introduced Helen. Mr. Morgan's car was parked near the depot. Mrs. Wentworth was seated in the back seat and Beatrice wondered for the first time why this woman was so glad to see her every time she came home from the school. She resented the familiarity with which this woman spoke to her.

"She is just my father's housekeeper. Why should I have anything in common with her?" Beatrice asked herself, as they rode toward the Morgan home. Then an idea came to her, which gave her cause for wonder, when she noticed that Mrs. Wentworth was unusually friendly with Mr. Morgan, talking to him constantly, not even giving his own daughter time to get a word in edgewise. To her great consternation, Mr. Morgan listened atentively to all that this woman said.

"It would certainly be humiliating to have her for a step-mother," Beatrice thought. "It is very hard to tell who she is. I have never heard her mention her husband. My father certainly would never consider taking her into the family."

This was the substance of the young girl's thoughts.

"Mrs. Wentworth, will you kindly give me a chance to say a few words to my father?" she questioned impudently.

Mrs. Wentworth frowned, but soon lapsed into silence. She could see that Beatrice had interrupted her just to be spiteful, not because she had something important to say to Mr. Morgan. When they reached home, Beatrice and Helen hastily changed from travelling clothes into cool, summary dresses. Mrs. Wentworth soon announced that the noon meal was ready, and being very hungry, both girls did ample justice to the tempting repast, after which Mr. Morgan summoned his daughter into the library.

"How soon will we be ready to start on our vacation?" he asked.

"I'm sure I don't know," Beatrice said, with a shrug of her shoulders. "Norma Wentworth was not to be found in Belleville. I was told that she has gone to Boston, and sent a friend of mine, who is going there on business, to find her."

"Why didn't you send her a telegram and avoid the delay of waiting for this friend of yours to locate her? I told you that I must not be detained."

"You will not be detained longer than is necessary. Helen can now. I will have her teach me, and probably we can get along without Miss Wentworth." Mr. Morgan leaned back in his chair and laughed.

"The idea of you learning to sew! What has happened during the winter to change you?" He looked at her keenly.

"Nothing, that I know of," Beatrice said, not particular about being truthful.

"Who has volunteered to find Norma Wentworth for you?" he asked.

"A young man who attended Clinton University happens to live near Belleville. He left Eastfield on the same train Helen and I had decided to come on, and as he is going East again in a few days, kindly offered to find Norma for me."

"There is another thing I would like to speak to you about. You know Mrs. Wentworth has stayed with her work constantly since she came here almost nineteen years ago. I think she would enjoy accompanying us on our trip."

"If she goes, I'll stay at home," Beatrice burst forth.

"You don't like her then?"

"No, I do not. We don't know a thing about her past life. Our relations with her should be a matter of business, only. If she wants a vacation send her in the opposite direction from the one which we take, and don't ask me to treat her as an equal."

"All right, you spoiled child. You have always had your own way, and I suppose always will, unless your husband breaks you of the habit. Maybe your young man who lives in or near Belleville could do it."

That is the policy of the Pine Hill Stores. We are serving best today so we may be able to do so tomorrow. A satisfied customer returns and ours come back each day. And new ones are coming too. That's why we are extending an invitation to you to come here and buy. We want you to be pleased.

Our line of groceries and meats is complete in every detail. Some stores have everything but oftimes cannot find things on account of dirt that has accumulated, but it is not so with the Pine-Hill Store. A sanitary meat case keeps our meats in the same good shape as when we buy them.

And if you are a late worker and get home after other stores have closed, remember we are open until 8 o'clock each night. This is another part of our contribution to the betterment of the Hilltop.

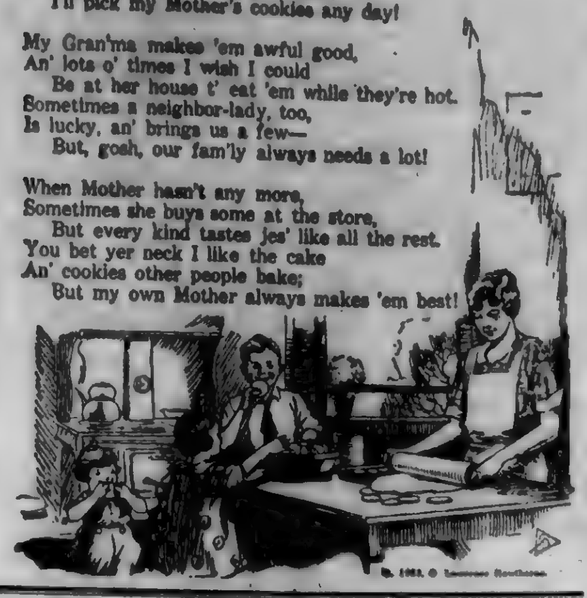
Edison at the age of 80 says as yet he hasn't learned to talk fluently to the ladies. This is something very few men can say because they like to please the ladies so well.

Here's another instance of the changing times because back in George's day people tried to tell fewer lies and now it seems they have taken as their motto "The more the merrier."



Mother Makes 'Em Best

by A Lawrence Hawthorne

I guess 'most anybuddy's cake
An' cookies ain't so hard t' take
When boys an' girls 're-comin' in from play
But when I'm lookin' fer a treat
That nothin' else could ever beat,
I'll pick my Mother's cookies any day!

My Gran'ma makes 'em awful good,
An' lots o' times I wish I could
Be at her house t' eat 'em while they're hot.
Sometimes a neighbor-lady, too,
Is lucky, an' brings us a few—
But, gosh, our fam'ly always needs a lot!

When Mother hasn't any more,
Sometimes she buys some at the store,
But every kind tastes jes' like all the rest.
You bet yer neck I like the cake
An' cookies other people bake;
But my own Mother always makes 'em best!

QUESTIONNAIRE TO STUDENTS

Effort Being Made to Learn Why Students Transfer from one School to Another.

President George W. Rightmire of Ohio State University has named a committee to investigate the reason why college students migrate from one university to another.

Ohio State annually gets hundreds of this class of students and a questionnaire has been sent to them in an effort to learn the reasons for the transfers. Some of the questions are:

Did you wish to avoid certain instructors?

Were you tired of work in a certain department?

Did you have difficulties with a college secretary or dean?

Was some course too difficult?

Did you wish to avoid certain requirements or some fixed curriculum?

Did you change your mind as to a vocation since entering the university?

Did you develope new preferences or interests, not strictly of vocational significance?

Did you want some course not available in the college from which you transferred?

WHY FURNACES BURN OUT

About ninety per cent of all cases where it is necessary to purchase a new furnace under 15 years use, the cause is due to burning up the furnace, according to the Minwool Heat Insulating Co., 872 N. High St.

University tests show that no warm air furnace is more than 80% efficient. The heat loss brought about through this inefficiency naturally makes it necessary to fire the furnace to a much higher degree of intensity in order to sufficiently heat the home.

This excessive firing burns out the fire bowl of the furnace and, in addition, wastes considerable fuel.

When a furnace is properly insulated with MINWOOL (felted mineral wool) the lost heat is held in and sent up the pipes into the rooms where it is needed, not only making the home more comfortable in cold weather, but also saving the furnace and many pounds of coal.

SCHOOL BAND ORGANIZED

Twenty-seven West High Students in Organization Under Direction of H. E. Hutchinson.

West High school has recently organized a school band under the direction of Herbert E. Hutchinson of the music department. There are to be 27 members of the band at present.

Plans are being made now to provide uniforms. The boys will wear white trousers and shirts and girls will have white middy suits. Both will have sashes and caps of buff and brown, the school colors.

The following are the band members: Piccolo, Fred Bruhat; flutes, Margaret Combs and Geraldine Phenicr; clarinets, Lawrence Tracy, John Fuder and Elizabeth Marshall; soprano saxophones, Joe Murphy and Glen Markens; alto saxophones, Ester Stephens, Robert McKinley and Victor Stiver; trumpets, Herbert Currier and Donald Coulter.

Cornets, Vede Bryan, Roland Boler, Robert Littler and Carol Shields; French horn, Frank Ansel; altohorns, Delbert Walters and Paul Langdon; baritones, William Pearch and Marshall Hall; trombone, Wilbur Knecht; basses, Robert Currier and Roger Dolder; snare drum, Robert Paul; base drum, William Murrell.

Hospital Campaign Workers Will Meet

An initial meeting of workers for the White Cross Hospital Campaign will be held Thursday evening, March 3, at the Central Methodist church.

W. L. Millikin is chairman of the committe at the Glenwood M. E. Other captains associated with him are Dr. Howard Whitehead, Harry G. Butler, C. W. Walton and H. C. Keifer.

The object of the campaign is to raise $150,000 through the Methodist church and $150,000 outside the church to be applied to the building fund of the White Cross hospital.

Thursday evening of this week the Ladies' Aid society of Burgess Avenue U. B. church will serve a birthday dinner in the basement of the church. Twelve tables decorated fittingly to represent the different months of the year, will be spread. You may pick out your own month.

REV. THROOP AT HOGE MEMORIAL

Rev. Frank H. Throop, pastor of Central Presbyterian church, will address the school of missions at Hoge Memorial Presbyterian church, Thursday evening. Rev. Throop was a missionary in China for a number of years and will use this country as the basis of his missionary talk.

The school of missions has been going on at Hoge Memorial for the past five weeks and will continue until next week. The program includes a supper hour at 6:15 followed by a class period of half an hour and concluding with a missionary lecture.

Washington's Birthday Observance

The members of Hilltop Klan spent a very enjoyable evening at their regular meeting place, Tuesday night, Feb. 22, in the observance of the 195th birthday of George Washington, the father of our country.

Two speakers were present, one of national prominence, the other of the State office.

After the speaking, an oyster supper was served by the losing team of a contest for new members which ended Feb. 15. At this meeting it was announced that another contest would start soon.

Frank Baird of Seaman, Ohio, who was operated upon at St. Clair hospital the first of the month, spent a few days with his sister, Mrs. Anna Chambers, 96 S. Warren Ave., before returning to his home last Wednesday.

RELIGIOUS EDUCATION

Pageant at Glenwood Church Sunday Evening in Connection with Sermon.

"The Light of the World," a pageant of religious education by Anita Ferris, is to be presented next Sunday evening, Feb. 27 at Glenwood M. E. church in connection with Dr. Barber's sermonet on "The True Light."

The pageant, which deals with the aim of the church school of today, namely to develope Christian citizenship, is under the supervision of the following people: Mrs. J. T. Evans, Mrs. Deamon Leach, Mrs. F. K. Dickerson, Mrs. H. G. Hamilton, the Misses Goldie Six, Mildred Phalor, Edna Keefer, Zoe Butler, Annis Turner and Mr. H. C. Keefer. Music will be under the direction of Mrs. Mary Biddle Walton.

The large and well chosen cast is headed by Mrs. Irene Preest Hoyt, who takes the part of Religious Education. Other leading roles, youth of today and maidep of today are taken by Gerald Snedecker and Miss Thelma Allen.

The needle Art club will hold its next meeting at the home of Mrs. A. V. Allen, 128 N. Ogden Ave., March 4.

Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Hartley of Huntington, W. Va., spent the week-end at the home of Mr. and Mrs. E. F. Hartley, 101 N. Eureka Ave.

ANNUAL FATHER-SON BANQUET

At Glenwood M. E. Church Last Friday Night Attended by 175 Guests.

One hundred and seventy-five attended the annual Father and Son Banquet at the Glenwood M. E. church last Friday evening. The program and arrangements were under the auspices of the Epworth League and the supper was furnished by Mrs. Homer Glidden's group of the Ladies' Aid society.

Music was enjoyed throughout the evening at various intervals. Included in this program was several selections by the Blair Sisters Trio, consisting of Gwendolyn, Muriel and Helen Blair. They play violin, cornet and piano. Songs by the whole group were led at various times by Robert Weller with Miss Dolly Born at the piano. Campbell, Allison, Johnson and Swineheart also rendered a few pleasing selections.

Rev. C. F. Barber, pastor of the Glenwood M. E. church acted as toastmaster for the evening.

The toast "To our sons" was given by Herman C. Weiler. The reply to this, "To our fathers" was given by Mr. William Huffman.

The address of the evening was delivered by Cecil J. Randall, attorney. Mr. Randall expressed a desire for father and son to be more like pals than just as mere acquaintances.

The Sunday school orchestra under the direction of Robert Weller played several selections.

Walter Edwards was general chairman for the banquet.

Mrs. Ruth Evans entertained the Stitch-in-Timers with a luncheon Wednesday at her home, 154 S. Ogden Ave. Those present were: Mrs. Mary Jane Evans, Mrs. Elizabeth Merrill, Mrs. Lottie Werner, Mrs. Jessie Noon, Mrs. Maple Dempsey, Mrs. Hazel Link, Mrs. Zoe Witting and Miss Kathryn Lash.

APPROVES BOND ISSUE

Pass Ordinances Appropriating Money for City Building Group.

An ordinance providing $30,000 in bonds for the purchase of additional lands to the municipal building group at Gay and Water streets, was passed by city council, Monday night.

Plans for the municipal building, which will house the fire and police telegraph division, the police station, city prison and municipal courts, are now being completed by architects.

City council Monday night appropriated this sum for the purchase of four lots in Ludlow street, which will complete the site.

NEW MEMBERS FOR EXCELSIOR

Seventeen Pupils Elected to Membership in Highland Honor Society.

The Assembly of Highland Junior High school held in Glenwood M. E. church, Monday morning, honored 19 pupils from that school. Seventeen of them were the newly elected members of the Excelsior society, whose names appear below, and two of them were AA's receiving the Sons of the American Revolution Citizenship medal. This medal, is presented each year to pupils who have certain high standards of scholarship and conduct, and who win out in an essay writing contest on our constitution. The pupils receiving these medals were Mary Mider, and Theodore Dougherty. The medals were fittingly presented by Principal H. H. Reighley.

Mr. Reighley also introduced the Excelsior pupils, and Mr. Littleton, vice principal, then explained the meaning of the society, for the benefit of the new pupils, and the pins were presented. The speech of acceptance was made by Jack Williams.

These new members of Excelsior society, thereby attaining the highest honor Highland Junior High has to offer, are as follows: Milton Banning, Jack Williams, Gifford Markeson, Ruth Beckwith, Betty Gusler, Mildred Welsh, Mildred Kuser, Mary Alice Dorsey, Elizabeth Johnston, Audrey Earl, Arvene Lee, Nova Lauer, Edna Mathew, Marjorie Clark, Helen Deehler, Esther Downs, and Ruth Robb.

Music was led by Miss Ola Trump, who also presented a Girl's sextette in one number. The chief address of the assembly was given by the Reverend Mr. Barber of Glenwood M. E. church who spoke of the value of such an honor as the receiving of pins and medals as far beyond their intrinsic worth. He also spoke of the ideal of the life of George Washington, who also attained through high standing. Two musical numbers were furnished by the Highland school orchestra directed by T. W. Birmingham.

The son born to Mr. and Mrs. J. Walter Burke (Hazel Love), 165 N. Chase Ave., at Mt. Carmel hospital, Feb. 16, has been named John Joseph.

FOUNDER DAY CELEBRATED

Mrs. A. H. Reeves of Philadelphia, president of the National congress of Parents and Teachers, addressed 350 men and women at Central High school last Friday night at the annual Founder' day celebration of the Parent-Teacher association. The membership of this organization has increased in six years from 197,000 to more than 1,000,000.

"Speed of today is a strain upon the younger generation," Mrs. Reeves said, "and it is our duty as parents to help them meet the strain." Picture shows that are not fit for children to see should be a challenge to the parents, she said. The health program in the public schools should be carried on in the homes as well, she urged.

The Woman's Foreign Missionary society of West Park M. E. church, will meet at the home of Mrs. E. J. Smart, 231 Brehl Ave., Friday, Feb. 25 at 7:30 p. m.

West Broad Notes

The sixth grade pupils are leading all other grades in percent of hapking. Miss Hutt's class winning the picture this week.

Miss Grau and Mrs. McKellar have returned after an absence due to illness; Mrs. Mangan is still ill, and Miss Hicks has been called out of the city, owing to her sister's illness.

A new library has been started, belonging to the building, containing about 50 books. It is planned to add to this as rapidly as possible, that the children may be enabled to read many books for recreation. The school library is furnishing many excellent books, but, with so many schools to supply, cannot send as many as are needed.

The pupils have been receiving splendid teaching this month, based on the lives of our great presidents, Lincoln and Washington. Patriotic songs and assembly programs have contributed to the feeling for these heroes of our country. The second grades have prepared the assembly programs for February, and many of the little people have performed their parts well.

A delightful time was enjoyed by all of those attending a birthday party given in honor of Miss Dorothy Dye of 95 S. Ogden Ave., Friday evening, Feb. 18. Games were played and at a late hour dainty refreshments were served. The out-of-town guests who were spending the week-end at Miss Dye's home were the Misses Mary Anna Kauffman, Imbel Musser and Martha Buschemeyer Other guests present were the Misses Doris Mary Stewart, Helen Hastings, Alma Donley, Carrie Fleming, Viva Cielland, Margaret Converse, Eleanor Thomas and Thelma Hamilton; Messrs. Walter Schultz, Robert Dye, Clarence Bayer, David Saugga, Munsel Curl, Robert Thomas, James McNames, John Murphy, Denver Freeman, Norman Dye and Kenneth Curfman.

CHURCH OF GOD CALLS PASTOR

Rev. C. F. Miller of Saratoga, Ind., who spent a few days with the Hilltop Church of God congregation, and has been called as pastor for the coming year, expects to move his family here soon.

Mrs. N. E. Walcutt, 44 S. Wheatland Ave., is in Radium hospital, taking X-ray and radium treatments.

The Brotherhood of St. John's Lutheran church will be addressed on Tuesday evening by Prof. K. G. Busch of Capital university.

A group of little girls in the 5th grade at West Broad school, have organized a social club called the "Rosebud Club." The first meeting took place Wednesday, Feb. 9, at the home of Jeanette Hartman on N. Harris Ave. Election of officers was held, the following being chosen: President, Jeanette Hartman; vice president, Jeanette Addison; secretary, Mary Dicke; treasurer, Margaret Atkins. The next meeting will be at the home of Mary Collins.

Mrs. Denny Wells, 3008 Crescent Dr., entertained the members of the Hilltop Embroidery club with a 1 o'clock luncheon Wednesday. Covers were laid for the following ladies: Mrs. D. O. Orwin, Mrs. L. M. Seiller, Mrs. E. E. Shaffer, Mrs. George Matson, Mrs. E. A. Payne, Mrs. C. J. Randall, Mrs. John Evans, Mrs. Royal Millikin, Mrs. P. G. Gantz, Mrs. T. S. Fox, Mrs. W. K. Merriman and the hostess.

"Suppose, Mr. Speeder"

Suppose that your child should leave its own yard
For a romp, or in search of a ball,
If its mother were busy, or had not the time
To step out and give it a call;
Suppose that some speeder should race down your street,
As though he were taking a dare,
And crush the life out of your little child—
Mr. Speeder, do you think you would care?

Suppose that your mother were crossing the street—
Your mother, now feeble and old—
And some reckless driver should knock her aside,
Leaving her lifeless and cold.
Could you find an excuse for this careless act?
Would you really think it were fair?
Now, putting yourself in this fellow's place,
Mr. Speeder, do you think you would care?

Suppose that a loved one you hold very dear
Were the victim of some speeder's game,
And he lay in his bed, just day after day,
All crippled and helpless and lame;
Suppose that he never could walk any more,
No longer your pleasures could share,
Just lie there and suffer, day in and day out,
Mr. Speeder, do you think you would care?

Oh! how little you think of the other man's pain
In your lawless pleasure and greed;
How little you care what it costs someone else
When you drive at your daredevil speed.
Should this trouble occur in your family some day,
For you and your loved ones to share,
You'll lessen your speed, and you'll take time to think—
And then, Mr. Speeder you'll care.

The Double Deception

By MRS. E. O. CARLSTON
Author of "For Freedom."

He looked at her searchingly, but Beatrice was master of herself, and gave no hint that her fa ther had come very near guessing the truth. Following the conversation with her father Beatrice went downstairs to find Helen. As the girl was not to be found indoors, Beatrice decided that she must be outside. As she entered the hallway by the outside door leading onto the front porch, she noticed that Mrs. Wentworth, who had just entered the house by this side door, carried a letter in her hand. A certain movement the woman made, before she saw that Beatrice was watching her, made the girl think that the woman intended to conceal the letter on her person. Whatever might have been her intention, she now handed the letter to Beatrice, and hurried to her room. Beatrice noticed that the woman was agitated, and wondered if the letter had been the cause. She glanced at the upper left-hand corner of the envelope, which read: "After five days, return to Mr. Warren Allison, etc."

Determined to know why seeing this name should so disconcert Mrs. Wentworth, if it really had, Beatrice followed the woman to her room, and as no one was in sight, she stood quietly outside the closed door for several seconds. Then, not hearing any sounds, she stooped to glance through the key hole. Mrs. Wentworth was standing in the middle of the room, glancing intently at a photograph which she held in her hand. Beatrice watched to see where she would put it. After a long interval, Mrs. Wentworth opened a drawer in her bedroom dresser, and concealed the picture under the folded articles in the drawer. As Beatrice did not want to be caught spying on anyone, she passed quietly down the hall, and being anxious to read her own letter, she went into a room seldom used by other members of the household, where no one would interrupt her.

Warren's letter was impersonal, simply informing her that he was then on his way to Boston, was writing his message on the train, and that he would mail it at the earliest opportunity. The short letter in itself, was not particularly interesting to Beatrice, but she read the closing phrase over and over—"with love, Warren."

With love! Did he really mean that. Just then Helen called her, and Beatrice thrust the letter in a drawer of an old desk, intending to put it in its proper place later. As she closed the drawer, she half-consciously kept her eyes on his name. She and Helen spent the afternoon in the sewing room. As Helen was quick, and Beatrice always learned easily anything that she attempted, they made several garments before time for the evening meal.

Before retiring that night, Beatrice went to get the letter she had received from Warren. She remembered that she had placed it in the drawer with the address up. Now, when she opened the drawer, the blank side of the envelope was up. She knew instantly that Mrs. Wentworth had read the letter. At first she intended to accuse Mrs. Wentworth with meddling, but after second thought, decided that the woman would emphatically deny all knowledge of the letter, while if she took the proper course, Mrs. Wentworth might yet do something that would be absolute proof against her motive. Having made this decision, she retired for the night and watched eagerly each day thereafter for the rural mail carrier, in order to prevent Mrs. Wentworth from having a chance to intercept any letters she might receive from Warren.

CHAPTER IX

Norma Wentworth, away from her old surroundings, became a charming young woman. Mrs. Browning could not complain that the girl did not fulfill her duties as a companion, and Norma could find no fault with the reward she received for her services. She spent the first winter in Belleville very happily, made many friends and acquaintances of both sexes, and was considered quite popular by all who knew her. But she never neglected her duty for the sake of pleasures. Many invitations, which did not include Mrs. Browning, were rejected by Norma, although she would have accepted most of them if her own inclination had been her guide, rather than the duty she owed her benefactress.

LIFE

"Man born of woman is of a few days and full of trouble." He comes into the world without his consent and leaves it against his will.

People come into the Pine Hill Store on their own accord and continue to do so because they can afford to live by buying here. Some stores hand out bad goods at high prices; some give good products for high prices, but the Pine Hill Store gives you quality products at most reasonable prices.

If you are one who hasn't visited our store yet it will pay you to do so. Come around and let's get acquainted. Come in and see our clean store, full line of groceries and meats and our sanitary methods of keeping our meats in good shape. We are now adding a line of drugs.

We are also extending you another service that other stores do not. We are open until 8 o'clock every night in the week. This is for your convenience too. Come in and see us some evening

THE WHY of SUPERSTITIONS
By H. IRVING KING

VAMPIRE

This is an ancient Slavic superstition which spread to many lands but flourished chiefly among peoples who buried their dead instead of cremating them. Though much less common than formerly, the vampire superstition is by no means extinct. In 1870 and 1871 there were many trials of people accused of disturbing dead bodies in connection with vampirism in Germany—there seemed to be an epidemic of the superstition just then—and in comparatively recent years at least two cases have come to light in New England.

A vampire is supposed to be a dead person who comes forth from his grave to suck the blood of the living at night. The superstition is a bit hazy as to the form in which the vampire comes, whether as a ghost or in the actual, buried body. An examination of the oldest and best authorities would seem to indicate a sort of "astral body." Criminals and suicides turn into vampires but a rabbit running over, or a bird flying over the grave of an innocent person may change him into a vampire.

This superstition doubtless originated in the gloomy imagination of Slavs who saw their loved ones dying from some wasting disease for which they were unable to account. In a New England case of vampirism which the writer investigated about thirty years ago the family afflicted were found to be consumptive. Burning the body of the suspected vampire is the accepted remedy for the affliction.

Recipes

BAKED CHEESE SANDWICHES

Two eggs, 1 cup milk, 1-2 teaspoon salt, 1-8 teaspoon pepper, cheese, bread.

Cut bread in thin slices, spread with creamed butter and put together as sandwiches with slices of cheese between. Arrange in a shallow baking dish or dripping pan, making one layer. Beat eggs slightly with salt and pepper and milk. Pour over sandwiches in pan and bake in a moderate oven until firm to the touch and brown on top. The cheese melts and the bread absorbs some of the custard and the dish is quite as appetizing as nourishing.

EGGLESS CORN MUFFINS

One cup cornmeal, 1 cup wheat flour, 2 tablespoons sugar, 1 teaspoon salt, 4 teaspoons baking powder, 1 cup milk, 2 to 4 tablespoons melted butter.

Mix and sift flour, salt, sugar and baking powder. Add cornmeal and mix thoroly. Slowly add milk, beating constantly to make smooth. Add melted shortening and beat hard. Pour into well-oiled muffin pans and bake 20 minutes in a hot oven. If four tablespoons melted butter are used for shortening, reduce the amount of salt to ½ teaspoon.

This batter can be baked in a sheet if preferred, making a good corn bread.

Before Valentine day we think the comic ones we are sending are entirely too mean to be sent but after we have received ours we say they were not bad enough.

California Fruit Growers are offering $10,000 for letters about prunes. Here's a chance for quite a few people to get their names in print.

We notice an advertisement which says "Diamonds Mean Romance." No doubt we all would enjoy romance if we had the necessary diamonds.

* * * *

The popular request by ladies to the barber is getting to be "Just a neck clip, I'm letting my hair grow out."

And still there are some possessors of long hair who view it with disgust and say, "It won't be long now."

Napolean said, "The man who sleeps till noon cannot know how beautiful is the sunrise." Very few people know what a Sunday sunrise is like either.

Poor kids! What next? Now they are about to be forced off the sidewalks with their skates and scooters. Afterwhile people will say the only place for such things is the basement. Some people just simply never were young it seems.

Homes Are Beautiful
Only When Quality Is Built into Them
You cannot cut the cost of any structure by using inferior Builders' Supplies and expect it to be beautiful when it is completed. Beauty and endurance necessarily are based on Quality.
When you buy your Builders' Supplies from the West Side Lumber Company, you are assured of the best; that in the finished structure there will be no "weakest link." A single trial will convince you.

THIEVES LOOT HILLTOP STORE

Pry Lock Off and Cut Hole in Rear Door to Release Bolt.

Late Tuesday night, Feb. 28, thieves looted the Cozy Corner Delicatessen at 2031 Sullivant Ave., and carried off or destroyed goods to the value of near $300.

The shop is owned and operated by Mrs. E. M. McDermott. She notified police of the act but as yet nothing definite had been found in connection with the robbery.

Mrs. McDermott stated that the thieves made entrance to her store through the rear door. They pryed the back door lock off and cut a hole in the door to release a bolt at the bottom.

All the tobacco, cigars and cigarettes were stolen and all the cakes and much canned goods. The ice box was empty when she found it. Her dishes and silverware were also stolen.

Several bushel baskets and large boxes were missing which they evidently used in carrying away their loot.

She says every day she finds something else missing when she goes to use it. Wednesday she was unable to find a large meat grinder.

Much mud was splattered over the floors and a great deal of food was destroyed and scattered over the floor.

TALKS BEFORE BUSINESS MEN

Secretary of Columbus Better Business Commission, Guest of Hilltop Association.

"Business" was the basis of an informal address given by Harry Van Horn, Secretary of the Columbus Better Business Comission, before members of the Hilltop Business Men's Association at their dinner meeting at the Matsonia Tuesday evening.

In the course of Mr. Van Horn's talk he gave some very enlightening information as to the work of the Commission and their method of operation.

C. W. Michel a trustee of the Holmes Hilltop Library appeared before the association and explained to the members the work the library is doing for this community and the method of financing the project.

Mr. Michel stated that the operating of the library was at minimum, about $125 a month, or $1500 a year. In the canvas of the Hilltop last year for the support of the library about $1200 was raised which leaves a deficit of about $900.

M. W. Seiller and H. G. Butler were appointed a committe to work with the library board to devise means of financing the library.

The association went on record as favoring the civic center site for the proposed new state building to house offices of the various state departments.

CAMP FIRE BIRTHDAY

Fifteenth Anniversary of Organization to Be Celebrated Week of March 13.

During the week of March 13, the Camp Fire Girls all over the world celebrate the fifteenth birthday of the first Camp Fire group. These organizations and the ideals for which they stand have become a vital part of practically every community. In our own city there are six hundred Camp Fire girls developing spiritually, mentally and physically under the leadership of women who know and understand girls.

On the Hilltop the first Camp Fire group was organized at Highland Junior high and named "Odaktonta" which means "friendly on the hilltop." These girls represent the very best in school life, being selected not only because of their fine scholastic record but also for their outstanding, true blue character. There are two new groups at Highland this year, organized in the 7th and 8th grades.

Last year Camp Fire girls everywhere were urged to beautify their own homes. This year their main work is with trees. During birthday week each group that plants a tree will be given a national honor. Of course, every group wants the honor but how to get the tree is the problem. The group of older girls, some of whom have gone on to West High, have chosen to scrub porches, care for small children or read to invalids, that they may make money to buy their tree. You will find their advertisement in the classified columns of this paper and they earnestly ask your co-operation in this worthy cause.

On Friday, Feb. 25, Mrs. Elizabeth Van Harken entertained the ladies of W. H. O. club at her charming little home at 231 N. Wheatland Ave. The day was spent in planning the program to be carried out in the future meetings. At noon the hostess and guests made merry at the table laden with every conceivable variety of "eats." Those partaking of the hospitality were Mrs. Anna Work, Mrs. Nola Tharp and daughter Margaret, Grace DeLong and son Billy, Ruth Gill and daughter Dorothy, Ethel Nicely, Lula Butin and daughter, Cora Dayton, Mary Lial and daughter Eileen and the hostess, Elizabeth Van Harken.

On the evening of March 9 the club will meet at the home of Grace DeLong, 113 N. Powell Ave. Each member is requested to bring a little gift well wrapped and identity sealed, to be sold for a quarter at this time. Remember the gift and keep the date in mind. Notify the club members you see as these meetings are very important just at this time.

The program consisted of two parts. The 6B's from Miss Schart's room, in drama emphasized the characteristics of our great statesman.

The 5A's from Miss Kane's room, in a play, made use of many poems and quotations from our poet.

MEN'S CLASS LOSE CONTEST

Provide Banquet for Girl's Class of St. Paul's Church to Pay Debt.

The Young Men's Bible class of St. Paul's Evangelical church banqueted the Keystone class in a superb fashion, Thursday evening, Feb. 24. The event marked the culmination of a contest between the classes, in which the boys came out on the feeding end.

After visiting various places in and out of the city, including the city prison, the girls were piloted to the church, where a sumptous feed of chicken and all the accessories was awaiting them. After eating to, and beyond capacity, Jeff Wilson, toastmaster, called on various members of both classes for toasts. These were interspersed with a violin solo and a male quartet from the boys' class.

The girls presented their hosts with a beautiful basket of carnations, which the boys in turn presented to Mr. Redman, their teacher, in appreciation of his duties as chef for the entire feed. After a social time, all went to their homes feeling that the contest had been well worth while.

The Burgess Avenue U. B. Woman's Missionary association will observe Worlds Mission Sunday with an all-day meeting in the church, Tuesday, March 8. Annual election of officers at 10:30. Bring your pot-luck dinner and spend the day with us.

PRESENTS PUPILS IN PIANO RECITAL

Henry A. Schultz presented a group of his pupils in a piano recital, Tuesday evening, Feb. 22, at his home, 68 N. Chase Ave. At the close of the program, Norman Broadway, son of Rev. and Mrs. N. J. Broadway, 24 S. Warren Ave., was presented with a book, a reward for his efforts in the winning of a contest, which terminated a few weeks previous. The following pupils were on the program: Thelma Link, Johanna Mae Taylor, Marjory Rockhold, Irma Neff, John David Schultz, Henry Ruegg, Louise Greer, Pauline Morris, Raymond Detrick, Norman Broadway and Sadie Harmon. Miss Selma Houdashelt assisted with a group of readings.

Mrs. Jane M. Hills, 135 N. Warren Ave., returned home Wednesday after spending ten days with her sister, Mrs. Elmer Houdashelt in Norwood, Ohio. Several delightful affairs were given in her honor. On Friday, Mrs. Houdashelt entertained with a Five Hundred party in honor of her sister. Favors, decorations, etc. were in keeping with Washington's birthday. Mrs. H. F. Rudd entertained on Saturday night, Mrs. C. C. Fillman on Monday afternoon and Mrs. O. D. Smith on Tuesday evening.

CREAT RESPECT FOR AMERICANS

Have the Chinese, According to Chinese Student Speaking Before Inter-Racial Council.

On Friday night, Feb. 25, at 6 o'clock the Inter-racial Council of the Ohio State university met and banqueted at the Indianola M. E. church.

Mr. Charles Wu, was chairman of the program.

The speaker of the evening was Dr. Frederick Detweiler, Ph. D. of Denison university. In the course of his speech he brought out the fact that education was blending the nations together and the tendency toward war was being lessened.

Nearly every nation was represented. There were Hindoos from India, an Abbossynian prince, Chinese, Japanese, Philipinos, Cubans and South Americans and many others.

In an interview with Mr. Chu, a senior in the Engineering College, we learned that the Chinese have a great respect for Americans. He said they (the Americans) were there for a different purpose from any other foreigners. He stated that the British and other peoples came there for the purpose of trade only but the Americans brought knowledge which his race was seeking. He says the war is turning in favor of the southern government because their methods are more humantarian like.

Mr. Chu expects to return to China in another year where he will take up his engineering work.

The marriage of Miss Edna Kern, daughter of Mr. E. S. Kern, 321 S. Warren Ave., and Mr. Pearl C. Valentine, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Valentine, 667 Kerr St., took place at 8:30 p. m. Wednesday, Feb. 23, in the parlors of Glenwood Methodist Episcopal church, with Rev. George F. Barber officiating. Mr. and Mrs. Valentine will reside at 667 Kerr St.

Billy Helmbrecht, little son of Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Helmbrecht of Steele Ave., was brought home Monday from Grant hospital after undergoing the second mastoid operation within a month. Billy is very glad to be home again and is reported doing nicely.

Story Hour

The children's story hour will be conducted by Hilltop Child Conservation Circle and Story Tellers' league at the Holmes Hilltop Library, Saturday, March 5 from 1 to 2 p. m. Mrs. L. A. Warner will be in charge and the stories will be of the "Land of Industry."

FORD SEDAN GIVEN AWAY APRIL 16th

Forty Merchants of the Hilltop Business Men's Association Will Participate.

Would you like to have a present of a new Ford Tudor Sedan for Easter?

Someone will be made happy on that date for a machine of this type will be given away on the Hilltop by members of the Hilltop Business Men's Association on the evening of Saturday, April 16.

At a meeting at the Matsonia, Tuesday evening, plans and arrangements were made by about forty Hilltop merchants, members of the Hilltop Business Men's Association, whereby the giving of this machine was made possible.

The idea in giving away the machine is to have people become better acquainted with the Hilltop merchants, and stores and have decided on this plan of giving a ticket with each 25c purchase made at the stores participating in the giving of this machine.

All tickets will be placed in a barrel in the Hilltop Bank which will be in a prominent place in the bank.

On the above date it is planned to have some prominent, disinterested person draw the tickets from the barrel and present the machine.

The list of those merchants participating in the giving of this machine will appear in next week's issue of the Record.

The Double Deception

By MRS. E. O. CARLSTON

After the winter had passed by, and spring days became warmer, followed by summer, Mrs. Browning decided to visit her sister, Mrs. Bennett, who lived in Boston. One day she summoned Norma to her room.

"How would you like to go to Massachusetts with me for a few weeks? My sister has written me several urgent letters recently, wanting us to come to see her. I told her how nice you have been to me this winter, denying yourself many of the pleasures youth delights in, for my sake, and she agrees with me that you need a change.

want to start, if we can, in two weeks."

Mrs. Browning gave Norma a check book.

"I have placed some money in the bank to your account. I want you to have a handsome wardrobe, so that you will look as attractive as my nieces."

Norma hesitated before accepting his generosity.

"Don't worry about the cost, child," Mrs. Browning said. "I shall enjoy taking you with me, especially if you are dressed as becomingly as possible. You know I wouldn't want to feel that your appearance needed to be improved."

"If you feel that way about it, Mrs. Browning, I certainly will be careful not to vex you, and will take advantage of this checking account. But I wish that I could repay you some way," Norma said wistfully. "Probably I can sometime."

"Yes, when you land a multi-millionaire, as I am sure you can do, if you try hard enough," laughed the older woman.

"If I ever marry, the man will have to 'land' me, whether he be rich or poor," Norma said decidedly.

"Are you going shopping this afternoon?" Mrs. Browning asked.

"I should like to, as I realize that I will have to hurry, but Professor Crumm will be here to give me my music lesson at three o'clock. I also have to master that French Mr. Elbert instructed me to learn," Norma said.

"I shall tell Mr. Elbert that his services must be discontinued until we return from our visit, as all of your time from now on will be occupied otherwise."

Professor Crumm received the same notice that afternoon, and expressed his disappointment, as his pupil was learning rapidly, and had improved very much under his instruction. The following day, Mrs. Browning phoned her dressmaker, who was considered one of the best seamstresses in the city.

"I want your undivided time for two weeks beginning next Monday, if you can possibly give it to me," Mrs. Browning's voice said over the wire.

"I am afraid it will be impossible, Mrs. Browning," the woman said doubtfully. "I am back with my work now, and don't see how I can do it."

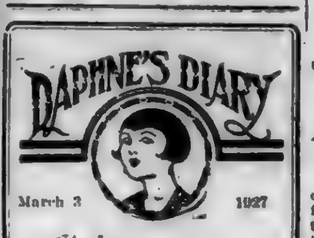
"I will pay you two hundred dollars per week if you can give me your undivided time," Mrs. Browning promised.

"Sorry, Mrs. Browning, but I do not believe I can manage it."

"Will you come for two hundred and fifty dollars?" Mrs. Browning asked.

"Wel-l, maybe. I'll let you know tomorrow."

"I must know now, or I will have to engage someone else," Mrs. Browning said, holding her own, to a certain extent.



"Very well, then. You can expect me next Monday morning at about ten o'clock."

The following Monday, Mrs. DeVere, the dressmaker, according to the arrangement made with Mrs. Browning the previous week, rang the doorbell at Mrs. Browning's home. She continued to come every morning at the appointed time until the work of completing Norma's wardrobe was finished. The new garments were placed in a large trunk, and Mrs. Browning and Norma were soon on their way to the eastern coast. After several days of travel, which became tiresome even to Norma toward the last, they arrived at their destination.

Mrs. Browning's sister, a proud, middle-aged woman, greeted her sister warmly—Norma, a trifle coldly. The door from an adjoining room opened and two young girls entered. One was near Norma's age; the other, a few years older. Mrs. Browning's sister introduced them to Norma as "my daughters, Miss Edna and Miss Marie Bennett."

Ancient vs. Modern Times

Adam and Eve, these two well-known characters have been commented on from time to time and its only natural that we compare their experiences with those of the present day family.

Of course, while in the Garden of Eden, this couple had everything in the way of food furnished them but after the episode of the forbidden fruit, conditions were not so good and they were forced to make a way for themselves. Adam, like all his descendants, was very fond of "good eats," and Eve like the housewife of today was interested in pleasing her husband.

The big difference in the times is that Eve did not have a Pine-Hill Store at which she could buy her meats, fruits and groceries.

More and more Hilltop housewives are pleasing their husbands by buying here. They get the best at a greater saving.

Courtesy, honesty and clean sanitary methods is the reason the housewife returns to the Pine-Hill Store. We cooperate with the people from all parts of the Hilltop by remaining open until 8 o'clock and invite you to drop in and see us some evening.

FURNITURE COMPANY CELEBRATES

Discount Sale in Honor of First Anniversary of Hilltop Furniture Co.

A year of successful business operation on the Hilltop is being celebrated by the Hilltop Furniture Co., with a discount sale in appreciation of the loyal support of the people of the Hilltop and adjoining communities.

On Saturday, March 12, the exact date of the company's birthday, they will inaugurate their discount sale and beginning at 1 o'clock will hold open house, lasting until 9:30, during which time there will be music, and coffee will be served.

Opening their business, they occupied the ground floor of the Reamer building but the business soon grew to a point where this room did not give them sufficient space for the display of their large line of goods, and last winter the company took over the entire building and now have 12,000 feet of floor space for the display of their stock.

O. E. Heimbrecht and Rex C. Benefield, proprietors of the store have both had years of experience in the furniture business, and are to be congratulated on the first anniversary of their business relations with people of this community.

To Open Funeral Parlor

F. W. Chenoweth of 2241 Sullivant Ave., will in the very near future open a funeral parlor on the Hilltop. Mr. Chenoweth is a graduate and licensed mortician, and has worked a number of years for local firms.

He and his family have lived for a number of years on the Hilltop.

Mrs. C. E. Kennedy (Marie Auts), 439 Ellsworth avenue, entertained with a surprise shower Thursday evening, honoring Mrs. William Higgins. Those present were: Mrs. E. M. Lucas, Mrs. R. A. Huff, Mrs. G. Auts, Mrs. I. Auts, Miss Virginia Ann Auts, Miss Ann Auts, Mrs. F. Fletcher, Mrs. M. Schroeder, Mrs. A. Burns, Miss Mildred Burns, Mrs. Bertha Lane and Mrs. Emma Johnson.

CHILD HURT IN AUTO ACCIDENT

Robert Miller, 2, 16 Yale Ave., Saturday night was cut and bruised about the face and body when he was struck by the auto of P. F. Grigsa, 716 A. Warren Ave., in front of 1154 W. Broad St. The child was removed to his home by police.

Mrs. E. G. Williams was hostess to a luncheon Wednesday, March 8, entertaining the Glenwood Happy Hour Embroidery club. Those present were: Mrs. G. A. Barker, Mrs. F. O. Page, Mrs. C. N. Wisker, Mrs. Fred Hardy, Mrs. J. E. Pease, Mrs. E. P. Morse, Mrs. Frank Scurry, Mrs. J. P. Mehring, Mrs. Charles Rockbold, Mrs. F. C. Harrod, Mrs. J. T. Innes, Mrs. C. H. Schulenburg and the hostess.

Highland P.-T. A.

Highland Parent-Teacher association will meet in Glenwood M. E. church Monday evening, March 14, when a program of music, and address and a pageant will be given.

Music of the meeting will be given by the Mother's quartet.

Mrs. Valentine, president of the Franklin County Council, will address the meeting, telling of the P.-T. A. work.

A pageant, "Candle Lighting," will be given by parents and teachers of the association.

Members of all Hilltop Parent-Teacher associations are especially invited to attend this meeting.

A number of pupils of Mrs. Dorothy Stevens Humphreys will be presented in a voice recital assisted by Miss Mary Louise Todd, pianist, and Miss Catherine Settler, violinist, Wednesday evening, March 16, at 8 o'clock, at the home of Mrs. John Thompson, 151 S. Terrace St. The following pupils will take part in the program: Miss Mary Johnson, Miss Wannetl Bauermeister, Miss Lucile Gilman, Miss Helen Hauer, Mrs. Arnie Chadwick Spence and Mrs. Katherine Rice Thompson. The public is invited.

The Hilltop Branch of the W. C. T. U. will meet Friday at 2 p. m. at the home of Mrs. Fred H. Tibbetts, 721 Bryden Road. Miss Margaret Huffman, secretary of Glenwood M. E. church, will have charge of devotionals, Mrs. J. C. Bickel, 82 Tompkins St., will give a resume of her trip through the Holy Land, and Mrs. C. W. Morley, 319 Kelso Road, will be the soloist.

Hits Parked Autos

The sorry looking Ford touring car which was huddled near the corner of Broad and Eureka last Thursday night belonged to Jacob Morrill, London. Mr. Morrill suffered cuts and bruises when his auto collided with two machines that were parked along the curb belonging to Frank Gooden, 1965 Floral Ave., and Ted Taylor, 181 Lechner Ave. The parked machines received badly dented fenders and the Ford received a changed appearance.

The marriage of Miss Marian Sutermaster of E. Main St., and Mr. Alford English, 260 N. Harris Ave., took place Saturday afternoon, Feb. 26 at the home of the officiating minister, Rev. Ralph Davis, 23 S. Monroe Ave., pastor of the Broad Street Methodist Methodist Episcopal church.

The Needle Art club held its last meeting at the home of Mrs. A. V. Allen. The next meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Fred Rudolph, 272 Midland Ave., Wednesday, March 16.

Is Making Good on Varsity Mat Squad

The Hilltop has a representative at Ohio State university who is showing up excellent on the Varsity wrestling squad. Charles Shanely, of 98 Eldon Ave., has won every match he has been in this year in the 115 pound class. He will go with the squad to Chicago this Saturday.

Shanely is a sopomore in the premed. college. This is his first year out on the mats, but he was formerly a football star of West High. Coaches at Ohio State say he is good material for the wrestling squad for next year also.

He is a pledge to Phi Kappa Sigma fraternity.

Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Cornelius and children of North Hague avenue have located in Dayton, Ohio, where Mr. Cornelius has opened a drug store.

BARBER SHOP CHANGES HANDS

Carl Rucker, well known on the Hilltop, has purchased the basement barber shop at 2878 W. Broad St., formerly owned by O. L. Spencer. H. L. Locker and E. C. Johnson, also well known on the Hilltop, who were associated with Mr. Spencer, are in charge of the shop.

BOY LOSES SIX FINGERS

And Suffers Cuts and Bruises About Face and Chest When Dynamite Cap Explodes.

As a result of playing with a dynamite cap Sunday, Charles Fleming, 1076 W. Broderick St., suffered the loss of all the fingers on his left hand, and was badly bruised and cut about the face and chest.

After medical assistance was given in Mt. Carmel hospital, he told how the cap exploded as he pricked it with a pin in the doorway of a confectionery at Cypress Ave. and Broad St. A passing autoist removed him to the hospital.

"I took the dynamite from a stone quarry," sobbed the boy. "But I didn't know the cap would do any harm."

William Wilson, 126 S. Wheatland Ave., the lad's grandfather brought police a stick and a half of dynamite which he said he found in the boy's room. Unable to learn exactly from where the explosive was taken, Patrolmen Talbott and Campbell threw it into the Scioto River in front of Central High school.

The Personal Workers' Bible class of Hoge Memorial Presbyterian church held their monthly business and social meeting Monday night at the home of Rev. and Mrs. H. C. Hutchison. This being the annual meeting, reports were read and officers for the coming year were elected. The treasurer's report showed that the pledge made by the class to the church building fund had been paid in full, thus having the honor of being the first organization in the church to complete their pledge. The election of officers resulted as follows: President, Mrs. Bruce Oyler; vice president, Mrs. Luke Lehman; secretary, Miss Margaret Burnside; treasurer, Mrs. David Morgan; teacher, Mrs. O. V. Metzger; assistant teacher, Mrs. W. H. Riley.

The following hostesses presented a program and served refreshments: Mrs. W. G. Davis, Mrs. E. E. Evans, Mrs. O. V. Metzger, Mrs. H. H. Carter and Mrs. O. E. Jones.

NEW OFFICERS FOR LADIES' AID

The Ladies' Aid society of Hoge Memorial Presbyterian church has elected the following officers for the ensuing year: Mrs. W. E. Merriman, president; Mrs. Mary Sperry, first vice president; Mrs. P. G. Ganta, second vice president; Mrs. Ray Cave, secretary; Mrs. George Matson, treasurer; Mrs. S. B. Pool, publicity chairman; and Mrs. S. M. Kingery, chaplain. Hostesses at the meeting Thursday, when officers were elected were: Mrs R. P. Rauch, Mrs. L. Wurzauf, Mrs S. C. Jones, Mrs. Ed. Winget and Mrs J. P. Johnson.

Group No. 1 of Glenwood Ladies' Aid will meet today at the home of Mrs. Lawrence Earle, 324 E. Burgess Ave., for a pot-luck luncheon. Members are requested to take their needle chimble and scissors with them to the meeting.

BISHOP WOODRING TO BE AT ST. PAUL'S

Bishop E. S. Woodring, who is bishop of the East Pennsylvania conference of the United Evangelical church is touring Ohio, Saturday afternoon, he will visit Lancaster with Rev. H. D. Schultz, who is presiding elder of the Ohio district. Sunday morning, Bishop Woodring will be in Columbus, and will deliver the message at St. Paul's United Evangelical church, South Warren Ave. Sunday afternoon, he will leave for Findlay where he will preach in the evening.

P.-T. A. Meeting

The West Broad Street P.-T. A. will meet in the auditorium of the school on Friday, March 11, at 3 p. m. Music will be furnished by Mrs. Edna Fox Zirkel, who is one of Columbus' favorite soloists, and by Mrs. C. N. McDonnell, well-known pianist and teacher of theory. The subject of the meeting will be a discussion of the writings of Angelo Patri, authority on child problems, in which the mothers are to take part.

Mr. Weismen of 160 N. Harris Ave., was taken to Grant hospital Tuesday morning. He was operated on for a severe attack of mastoiditis.

MARY DICKEY BADLY INJURED

Suffers Broken Arm, Skull Fracture and Bruises as Result of Auto Accident.

Mary Dickey, aged 12, of 2438 W. Broad St., is in a serious condition at Mt. Carmel hospital after being hit by an automobile Saturday afternoon at West Broad and Eureka avenues. She is suffering from a broken arm, fractured skull and serious bruises.

Up until Tuesday morning she had not recovered consciousness. It is reported that near noon of the same day she opened her eyes and began to tell how she was hit but soon became unconscious again. Doctors now are holding hope for her recovery.

The car by which she was struck was driven by Milton Andrew, 871 Carpenter St.

Ladies' Aid of Glenwood M. E. church, group No. 5, will meet with Mrs. E. B. Hooper, 2725 W. Broad, Thursday evening, March 10.

HIT BY AUTO ON WAY HOME

Robert Hall, aged 8 years, son of Mr. and Mrs. Claude J. Hall, 187 N. Park Ave., was struck by a machine Tuesday in front of the Millikin Hardware store at Eureka and West Broad as he was returning home from kindergarten at West Broad Street school. He was not seriously injured.

SPENDS $1,022,547 FOR SCHOOL SITES

Results of a rigid expansion policy followed by the city board of education revealed in figures given out, Monday, by W. V. Drake, clerk of Columbus schools, show that since 1915 sites for 39 schools, involving a total of 135.097 acres have been purchased at a cost of $1,022,547.25.

Four high schools, North, South, East and the new West occupy 51.567 acres, while 19.071 acres have been incorporated in grounds for six junior high schools within the city limits. Locations for 20 elementary schools charing 65.069 acres are included.

White Cross Campaign

The $300,000 building fund campaign of the White Cross hospital begins on Saturday, Mch. 12. It is proposed that one half of the needed amount will be raised within the Methodist church of Columbus and Franklin county and the balance in the community other than Methodists. The directors of the community fund have given their approval to this worthy cause and will co-operate heartily in the canvass for funds. Mr. Claude Hocker is the general chairman. Mr. W. L. Millikin is the chairman of the canvass in Glenwood church and associated with him are the following captains: H. G. Butler, I. C. Keefer, C. W. Walton, Dr. Howard Whitehead and M. W. Legg. The fact that 20 per cent of the work done at White Cross hospital is straight charity and that less than one half of the patients are able to pay in full, lives to this enterprise a wide spread appeal.

INTEREST HIGH IN FORD CONTEST

Many Tickets Already Given Out by Hilltop Merchants Donating the Gift.

Much interest and enthusiasm is being manifest by people of the Hilltop and surrounding community speculating as to who will get the Ford Tudor sedan to be given away by a number of Hilltop merchants on Saturday evening, April 16.

A great quantity of tickets have been distributed, in fact almost 100,000 tickets have been given out, and still the demand continues, and Fred Sulsberger, in charge of the tickets, is kept busy supplying the demand.

About forty merchants and business men of the Hilltop, members of the Hilltop Business Men's Association, contributed toward the cost of the machine. They are as follows:

B.-B. Hardware Co., Budd's Barber shop, Bob Calland, Cousins & Hartsough, Davis & Herbert, Carl Distelhorst, Dodd's Beauty shop, Down's Confectionery, E. & B. Shoe store, Haunts Grocery, Hempy Bros., Hilltop Accessory, Hilltop Furniture, Hilltop Supply Co., Chas. Houx, Lewis & Noon Coal Co., Looker's Barber shop, Matsouris Barbecue, M. Millikin Grocery, W. Six, Fred Sulsberger, Todd's Pharmacy, Watt's Restaurant, Weber's Confectionery, Whittle's Barber shop, A. H. Cartwright, Voss Bros., Eureka Ave. Lumber Co., E. H. Stauch, Hilltop Bank, R. D. Hastings, Hilltop B. & L.

WOMEN'S DAY AT HOGE MEMORIAL

Last Sunday at Hoge Memorial Presbyterian church the women were in charge of all departments of the Sunday school and the service was a decided success. Mrs. W. E. Merriman was general superintendent. Mrs. R. O. Harrison was chairman of the committee on arrangements for the day.

Music was furnished by the Sunday school orchestra, which is one of the newest organizations and doing good work, and a quartet consisting of Mrs. R. L. Held, Mrs. Thompson, Miss Burnside and Mrs. Beaton, also a solo by Mrs. C. C. Cook, and a reading by Mrs. Ray Cave.

The Bible drill was conducted by Mrs. W. H. Riley and while the men can sing better than the women perhaps, it was voted the women surely knew their scripture well. The attendance was 425 and those present felt that Women's Day was one of the happiest and biggest days in the Sunday school. The Easter goal is 450.

Mr. and Mrs. Junior Morrison and daughter, Miriam Jane, of Portsmouth, Ohio, were week-end visitors with Mr. and Mrs. E. B. Jackson and family, 2640 W. Broad St.

The Robbins-Greiser quartet of the Hilltop School of Music was honored with an engagement to play at the banquet given Saturday evening by the New York Central trainmen at the Seneca hotel. This was given in honor of their assistant superintendent, who is leaving the city for a higher office. Mr. H. T. Wilson of North Eureka avenue made a very capable toastmaster and "Pop" Hoenig led the "Sing." Little Jackie Wiseman sang and danced. The Robbins-Greiser quartet plays this Thursday for the general membership banquet of the Y. M. C. A.

Mrs. O. C. Eylar of Sinking Springs, Ohio, visited last week with her son, E. G. Eylar of Midland avenue, and her sister, Mrs. E. E. Jackson, 2640 West Broad St.

CHICAGO PASTOR AT HILLCREST SUNDAY

J. H. Hughes, pastor of the Temple Baptist church of Chicago will preach a trial sermon before the congregation of the Hillcrest Baptist church at the Sunday morning and evening services.

He comes here after being extended an invitation by the pulpit committee of the Hillcrest church. He is well liked and in a good position in the Chicago church at present and comes here highly recommended.

The pulpit committee is made up of O. H. Craft, Nathan Kent, Ray Evans and George Wymer.

The Jolly Embroidery club met at the home of Mrs. Jack Richardson, 106 Highland Ave., Thursday, March 3. Those present were Mrs. Spanabel, Mrs. Heath, Mrs. Manser, Mrs. Bigler, Mrs. Saugge and the hostess. The next meeting will be at the home of Mrs. Spanabel, 2241 Sullivant Ave., March 17.

SCOUT KNOT TYING CLASS

R. C. Kadel, scoutmaster of Troop 21, Monday evening started a class in pioneer knot tying at Troop 21 headquarters at Hoge Memorial church on south Eureka avenue.

All scouts in the district outside of members of Troop 21 were invited into the class for instruction in knot work. Each scout furnished his own rope for class work.

The S. S. I. Sunday school class of the Glenwood Methodist church will meet with Mrs. Martha Rucker, 108 Whitethorne Ave., on Monday evening, March 14. Election of officers will take place. Mrs. Grace Wyman, Mrs. Jennie Phillips and Miss Lula Meldrim are the assisting hostesses.

Music Box Meetings

The regular meeting of the Music Box club will be held March 11, at the home of Emma Muller, of 272 N. Harris Ave. The following program has been arranged.

Mendelssohn's life by Ruth Vickers.

Mendelssohn's country by Marjorie Clark.

Mendelssohn's works by Thelma Scribner.

Vocal solo by Mrs. Cannon.

Piano duet by George Muller and Mr. King.

All members are urged to attend, as this is a very important meeting.

A very pleasant surprise was given at the home of Mr. and Mrs. D. C. Saugge, 241 S. Ogden Ave., Friday night March 4, it being the occasion of Mr. Saugge' birthday anniversary. The evening was spent in playing games and listening to the radio. Mr. Saugge received many beautiful presents and a dainty lunch was served. Those present were: Mr. and Mrs. Hammond and son Junior, Mr. and Mrs. Spanabel and son John, Mrs. Bigler and two children Mary Kathryn and Harriett, Mr. and Mrs. Heath and Margaret and the host and hostess and children David and baby Helen.

Achbar Caldron Patrol will entertain with a luncheon at 12:30 p. m. Wednesday at the home of Mrs. Pearl Boggs, 225 Guernsey Ave., West Gate, for members and friends. Mrs. John C. Mason, assisted by Mrs. John Raymond, Mrs. Boggs, Mrs. Tom Logan, Mrs. George Stiles and Mrs. Richard [illegible].

White Cross Night

Sunday evening will be observed as White Cross hospital night at Glenwood. The pastor, Dr. G. F. Barber, will speak on "Divine Healing." A demonstration, "Even These Least," showing the value of the hospital, will be given.

The nurses' chorus of White Cross hospital will furnish special music during this service. They are very fine and we are sure all will want to hear them.

The junior choir of the church, under direction of Miss Cora Chase will also sing.

Reports from the team captains will be made at the close of the service.

Mrs. Bertha Hitchcock, 28 S. Burgess Ave., was very pleasantly surprised Saturday evening, March 5, by a number of her friends. Those present were: Mr. and Mrs. I. Winehart and son Richard, Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Another Free Show For the Kiddies

Another free show for the kiddies at the Rivoli theatre next Saturday morning, March 12, at 10:30. We are unable to say what the film will be as Manager Pekras wishes to keep that a secret. However he assures his little friends they will not be disappointed and will enjoy his offering, and he is expecting a full house at this party Saturday morning. What do you think asked to take part.

NEW MEN'S STORE FOR HILLTOP

Shank Brothers Will Open Clothing and Haberdashery Store About April 1.

Possibly the most interesting of late Hilltop business news is the announcement of the new clothing and haberdashery shop that will occupy the front room of the new Stauch building on West Broad street.

Jack Shank, 28 Binns Blvd., who for the past eight years has made his home on the Hilltop, and his brother Homer Shank, for seventeen years manager and buyer of the New York Clothing House at Pomeroy, Ohio, will be partners in this new store for men.

"Jack" needs no introduction to Hilltop people as he has many friends and acquaintances on the West Side. For the past thirteen years he has represented the Mishawka Woolen Manufacturing Co., selling Ball Brand rubber goods. His brother is well-known in Pomeroy business circles and comes to Columbus with a wide and varied experience in his clothing business.

The new store will be known as "Shanks" and will carry only nationally advertised quality merchandise. Fixtures and stock will all be new. Plans are being made for the opening sometime between April 1st and 8th.

League Meeting

The Epworth League is co-operating with the church for the coming evangelistic crusade at Glenwood. Teams with the following captains have been chosen for the coming six weeks: Roger Snedeker, Bernola Woodward, S. N. McIntosh, Alice King, Cora Chase, Miss Elva Paul, first vice chairman of the league, will act as general chairman over this group. Next Sunday will be enrollment day in the league and all young people who wish to be members are asked to enroll at the Sunday devotional service. The service will be in charge of the High school group under the leadership of Roger Snedeker. Mr. C. J. Randall, a member of the school board will also make a short talk. A quartet from the West High school will sing two numbers on the program. All young people are cordially invited to attend this service.

Sunset Literary club will have an all-day meeting Tuesday at the home of Mrs. C. W. Lentz, 25 N. Harris Ave. A casserole luncheon will be served at noon. Afternoon will be spent sewing for the Needlework Guild. Mrs. H. W. Lowrie will be assisting hostess.

The Hilltop Child Conservation Circle will be hostess circle for the Columbus Federation of Child Conservation circles on Thursday, March 17, at 1:45 p. m., when the different circles will be entertained at the home of Mrs. T. S. Fox, 2846 W. Broad St.

Miss Caroline Clark of the Ohio State Department of Health will be the speaker and music by the Capital City Trio, with readings by Mrs. H. R. Lee, will compose the program.

Mrs. H. G. Englehard, chairman of the social committee, will have charge of the social hour, following the program.

The circle's next study meeting will be held Thursday, March 10, at 7:30 p. m. at the home of Mrs. H. C. Englehard, 26 N. Ogden Ave. Subject, "Duty and Play," from volumes 2, 3 and 6. Mrs. C. W. Rucker, leader.

The Children's Story Hour at the Holmes Hilltop library, Saturday, Mch. 12, from 1 to 2 p. m., will be in charge of Mrs. H. G. Geyer. Stories by Story Tellers' League will be of "The Land of Courage."

Group No. 10 of Glenwood M. E. will meet Thursday, March 10, at 2 o'clock at the home of Mrs. Lena Elliott, 2469½ W. Broad St. Mrs. Annie Elliott and Mrs. Sallie McKinney will be assisting hostess.

Where the Hilltop Begins

Out where the skies are bluer,
Out where the air is purer.
Out where the smoke clouds are fewer—
There's where the Hilltop begins!

Out where children are merrier,
Out where homes are cheerier,
Out where folks are friendlier—
There's where the Hilltop begins!

Out where happiness is found,
Out where peace and contentment abound,
Far from the city's grime and sound—
There's where the Hilltop begins!

Besides being the source of tremendous amounts of power, Niagara Falls is a sort of gigantic clock by which the scientists measure time. From annual measurements it has been found that the cataract is cutting back at the rate of two feet a year. At that rate it has taken it at least 30,000 years to recede from its original position at Queenstown, 60,000 feet, from its present location.

Hudson caps a succession of triumphs, that are the talk of motordom, in presenting the New Hudson Standard Sedan.

It is today given its first exclusive showing by the distributor and dealers of the (City) Metropolitan District.

In color, in beauty and richness of appointment it is one of the outstanding cars of the year. You will be proud of its ownership. With its good looks, its completeness of detail and quiet luxury, it bears the mark of distinction everywhere.

Like all new Hudsons—with the Super-Six principle freed to the limit—it has performance, stamina, safety and economy beyond anything heretofore known. There is effortless ease in all it does, from the swift, smooth glide into motion, to sustained high speed, and back to the soft, instantaneous stopping action of its four wheel brakes.

Come see it. Examine it, ride in it. It is closed car luxury at a price that good judgment must approve.

Formal Wraps For Young Girls Are Furred In White And Gray

Designers who cater to youth are giving much thought and time to the creating of evening wraps for the girl in her teens. Those who have made a study of apparelling the younger generation have decided that certain furs are essentially youthful in appearance.

First and foremost among youthful dressy furs is gray fox, and this is being lavished on the formal wraps for the younger daughter of the household. From a distinguished Paris atelier comes the exquisite wrap pictured here to the right. It is handsomely furred in gray fox, and thus bespeaks a youthful appearance, which was the intention of the designer. The wrap is of velvet, lined with silver.

If not silvery gray fur then pure white is the choice of the debutante and her younger sister. Favor for white fur is very pronounced, not only for midwinter wraps, but for coats and capes to be worn over thin dresses this coming spring and summer.

Of course if one's bank book permits, unspotted ermine is the choice, but if one counts before one spends white rabbit is just as effective. In fact the very exclusive couturier there shys has no hesitancy in using furs which appear to be what they are not—and what extra youth if the "looks" be there.

The very newest thing for chic winter resort wear is the straight wrap-around cape. French imports include hand-painted white velvet capes done in bright futuristic design. Often a white fur collar is extended into tuxedo revers down each side of the front such as graces the wrap to the left in the picture. This youthful cape made of white cloth would be practical not only for immediate wear, when parties bid the girl in her teens to come and look her prettiest, but for future wear over the sheer print frocks which the mode declares are again to be fashionable, such a wrap would prove ideal.

Silver lame trimmed with white rabbit fur is the joy and the pride of the young girl this season. The smartest types are of the straight narrow coat genre.

Mother's Cook Book

BRAN MARGUERITES

Beat two eggs slightly and stir in one cup of brown sugar, one-half cup of flour, one-fourth teaspoon of baking powder, one-third teaspoon of salt, one-half cup of nut meats cut in small pieces and one-half cup of bran. Fill small buttered tins two-thirds full of the mixture. Bake in a moderate oven 10 to 15 minutes.

CORN FRITTERS

One cup corn pulp, 2 eggs, ½ teaspoon salt, 1-8 teaspoon pepper, 1 teaspoon sugar, 1 cup flour, 1 teaspoon baking powder, 2 tablespoons milk. Cut the tops from the kernels of four or six ears of corn. With the blunt edge of a knife scrape out the pulp. Beat yolks of eggs until thick and lemon colored. Beat in milk, beating until eggs thicken. Add to corn pulp with flour mixed and sifted with salt, sugar and pepper and baking powder. Mix until perfectly smooth and fold in the whites of the eggs beaten until stiff and dry. Drop from the tip of the spoon into deep fat hot enough to brown an inch cube of bread in 60 seconds. Turn several times while cooking and cook until brown on all sides. Drain on soft crumbled paper and serve with maple syrup.

BAKED CUP CUSTARD

First prepare the above mixture and then pour into individual molds or into one large baking dish, set in a pan containing about one inch of hot water and bake in moderate oven until firm. When the blade of the knife comes out clean when put into the custard, it is done. The baking will take from 30 to 40 minutes if individual molds are used and from 20 to 30 minutes longer if baked in a large dish. It is in the baking of a custard that the cook so often fails. The secret of a rich, smooth baked custard is in the oven temperature. It must not be too hot the water in the pan must not boil, for too much heat is what causes a custard to separate.

STEAMED CUSTARD

To steam a custard prepare as for baking, set in a steamer, cover with waxed paper to prevent moisture from falling on custard, cover steamer and steam for about 20 minutes. A boiled custard may be smoothed out if it has started to jump by setting the cooking dish in a pan of cold water and beating with an eggbeater.

APPLE COBBLER

Line a square baking pan with good short crust, marking the edge with floured tines of a fork. Wash, core and quarter apples enough to make two layers. Put in one layer and sprinkle with cinnamon and sugar, put on the second layer and dust with the cinnamon and sugar, dot with butter and sprinkle over a quarter cupful of honey with a quarter cupful of water. Bake until the apples are done and the crust a delicate brown at the edges. Serve with any liked pudding sauce.

STUFFED PEACH SALAD

Eight halves of large peaches, ½ cup finely chopped nuts, 4 tablespoons minced celery, 4 tablespoons canned shredded cocoanut, mayonnaise.

Drain peaches from syrup. Cut around the cavity of half the peaches scooping out more than half the peach. Combine nuts, celery and cocoanut with enough salad dressing to make quite moist. Arrange the prepared peaches on crisp leaves of lettuce. Fill cavities with mixture and cover with remaining peaches. If convenient, drop a spoonful of whipped cream on each peach and garnish with a red or green cherry.

REMOVES BURNED STOVES

To clean enameled or granite utensils in which food has been burned, fill them with cold water and add a piece of washing soda the size of an egg. Heat to the boiling point, then wash in the usual manner and the burned spots will be easily cleaned.

TO DISTILL WATER

To distill water for use in a storage battery, it is only necessary to obtain a bent pipe which may be of tin, nickel aluminum or copper, and affix it to the spout of an ordinary teakettle, placing a receptacle under the pipe to catch the condensed steam, which is absolutely pure and distilled water.

The Double Deception

By MRS. E. Q. CARLSTON

Before many days passed, Norma noticed the difference between the sisters, Edna being kind and thoughtful of everyone, entirely forgetting herself; while Marie, the elder of the two sisters, was very hateful and overbearing to Norma.

"Why our Aunt Nellie should place a common servant on equal terms with herself, and expect us to feel the same way about it, I am sure I do not know," she complained one day to Edna.

"Why do you think that she is a common servant?" Edna asked.

"I overheard Aunt Nellie telling mother the whole story. Mother thinks the same way I do about it, since she learned what the girl is."

"I am sure our aunt uses good judgment in such matters. No matter what Norma has been in the past, I am sure she has improved remarkably well under auntie's care. I intend to introduce her to all of my friends and make her feel welcome as long as she remains our guest," Edna announced firmly.

Then I shall be compelled to get a bad headache every time we are invited anywhere. She is sure to show her lack of breeding some way," the older sister insisted.

I think you misjudge her," Edna said.

"You will learn different before long," Marie said stubbornly.

Edna, knowing that it was no use to argue with her sister, left the room. Presently, she returned with a suggestion.

"Norma and I are going to a matinee; want to go along? she questioned.

"Why take the trouble to ask me. If you prefer that person's company to mine, that is your privilege. I'm sure I don't care," she said indifferently.

So Norma and the youngest neice of Mrs. Browning were soon on their way to the dowtown section of the city. They had just passed out of view from the house where Mrs. Bennett and her daughters resided when a well groomed broad shouldered young man ascended the steps leading to the small porch in front of the house. He rang the bell, and inquired of the servant who admitted him whether a Mrs. Browning were visiting at that address. Upon being informed that Mrs. Browning was at home, he handed the man a card bearing the inscription: "Warren B. Allison." At Mrs. Browning's request, the servant ushered the young man into the living room. He stated the object of his call to the kind woman, but was informed that Miss Wentworth was well satisfied with her present surroundings, and would not even contemplate the suggested change.

"I consider Miss Wentworth my equal in every way," she said. "Miss Morgan and her father, from what I have ascertained, did not properly appreciate her services, and I am sure she does not wish to return to them. If you wish to be convinced as to the truth of my statement, you may return this evening, when she will be here to speak for herself." Warren had no doubt that Mrs. Browning spoke the truth and feeling that he had fulfilled his promise to Beatrice, the young man took his leave. When the door closed after him, Mrs Browning was joined by her sister. Their conversation turned to Norma.

"That girl has been a great comfort to me during the past winter. I feel as though she were my own daughter."

"I believe she would make a delightful companion, but you must remember that she is not a member of our class. Her social standing will always be questionable, unless she is very careful to conceal the fact that she has never been more than a servant to a wealthy family until you took pity on her which I am afraid was very indiscreet," Mrs. Bennett said, speaking very plainly.

"Why do you think that?" Mrs. Browning questioned in a slightly irritated tone.

"I never saw anyone get any thanks for helping other people's children. It never ends right. If she ever makes a false move, people will blame you."

"I am positive Norma will never do anything dishonorable," Mrs. Browning said. "I intend to do the best I can for her while I am living and expect to leave her well provided for when I die. As soon as I return home, I am going to change my will."

"That would be very foolish of you, I am afraid," Mrs. Bennett said. She, also, was a widow; and was beginning to be in financial straits, as since the death of her husband, she and her daughters had been living beyond their means. As Mrs. Browning was many years her senior, Mrs. Bennett expected to sometime have the benefit of her sister's fortune, as she knew that Mrs. Browning had already made a will to that effect. The idea that the old will would be cancelled and a new one made, which would include the name of Norma Wentworth did not particularly appeal to her. However, she did not say much about the matter.

A few days after the above conversation took place, Edna announced to her sister that she intended to give a party in Norma's honor.

"I should give you credit for better sense," Marie said, frowning.

"I am going to write the invitations now. Shall I include your name on the invitation cards or not?" Edna asked, determined to have her own way for once.

"No," Marie said. "I do not care to be included in such a foolish affair."

The invitations were mailed the following day, the time set for the occasion being one week from that day. When the appointed time drew near, Marie found that she was changing her mind about refusing to enjoy the pleasure the others would have, as Edna had surmised she would do. The night of the party arrived. Norma, natural to her age, at first looked forward to the occasion, but a few days before the date set, she noticed that Mrs. Browning did not appear very well. When the subject was mentioned to the elderly lady, she tried bravely to conceal the fact that Norma had guessed the truth.

Norma, who watched Mrs. Browning continually, even after the guests began to arrive, noticed the woman place her hand against her left side near the heart, her features twitching with pain. The girl, alarmed, spoke to Mrs. Bennett about the matter as soon as the opportunity afforded itself.

"It is nothing serious," Mrs. Bennett insisted. "She had had a little trouble with her heart occasionally for the past ten years, but I feel sure she will be with us a good many years yet."

Edna, too, noticed that her aunt was not well. Stepping to the woman's side, she said:

"Would you like to lie down for a few moments, auntie? You look so tired."

No, dear. Thank you for your kindness, but it is not necessary for me—Oh!" A sharp pain caused her to utter a loud exclamation. In an instant it was gone, but others, more serious than the first, followed in succession. She was carried to her room and a physician was summoned. Before he arrived, Mrs. Browning, gasping for breath ,tried to speak.

"I— w-ant N-Norma to h-have twenty th—" Here she stopped, unable to go on, her features distorted with pain. Her eyes appeared glassy, and breathing became more difficult. She uttered several agonized exclamations, then became silent. Death had done its work. Norma was more overcome by this unexpected occurrence than anyone present, unless it was Edna; but this girl had many friends and many relatives, while Norma was entirely alone in the world, now.

Mrs. Bennett, although grieved at the loss of her only sister, felt that now her financial difficulties were over. She had heard the words the dying woman had attempted to say, and if she had been anxious to carry out the wishes of her sister, Norma would not have been thrown on her own resources. The remains of Mrs. Browning were sent to her home in Belleville for the funeral. When the attorney called to read the will, it was learned that everything was to be divided among the relatives of the deceased. Norma's name, of course, was not mentioned.

Edna, contrary to the wishes of her mother and sister, invited Norma to go back to Boston with them. Relieved to know that this opportunity offered her a temporary shelter, Norma accepted the offer. After two weeks spent with Mrs. Bennett, Norma instinctively felt that she was not wanted by that lady and her eldest daughter. Edna spoke to her mother about it one day.

"I think we should do all we can to comfort Norma. She is very much grieved over your sister's death. I am sure Aunt Nellie would wish us to give her a home, and I know she would have changed her will if she had lived. We heard her dying words, and should not allow a legal right to be placed above a moral obligation."

"Please do not mention this to me again, Edna," Mrs. Bennett said. "My sister must have certainly been delirious to attempt to make such a request."

"If you refuse to be fair to her, I shall give her half of the portion allotted to me," Edna said.

"I hope you will not be so foolish," Mrs. Bennett replied.

When Edna made this generous offer, Norma thanked her for her thoughtfulness, but absolutely refused to accept the gift. She explained to Edna the necessity of finding other quarters, as she was too proud to stay where she knew her presence was unwelcome. Accordingly, she rented a room in a private home, and proceeded to look for work. Several of her quests for employment proved unsatisfactory. One day, she glanced through the "Help Wanted" column in the daily paper, and found the following advertisement: "Girl with good hand-writing for office work, apply Eastern Drygoods Company."

The following morning, she began the monotonous routine of endless copying. Every day, she arrived at the office at nine o'clock and worked until five o'clock in the evening, being allowed an hour at lunch time. The evenings were spent alone in her room. How she longed for the dear companionship of the one who had gone, never to return.

The Sandman Story

By Martha Martin

ABOUT SWANS

"Of course," said the Trumpeter Swan, "my voice is interesting. Though I am in the zoo now I cannot say that I have traveled very far in order to reach this spot.

"Of course I belong to a very, very old family. Trumpeter Swans have been in existence for years and years and years and years and even then a few more years!

"I am very tame because I was brought here when I was young, and if one is brought up among people when one is young, then one is not afraid.

"Of course, that is provided the people are good to you. They were all good and kind and nice to me and so I became very tame.

"I Am Very Tame," Said the Trumpeter Swan.

And then the Trumpeter Swan gave a loud, trumpetlike call, which showed how well named he was.

"We have a cousin here who is the opposite to us," Trumpeter Swan continued. "Cousin Mute Swan is very quiet, and Cousin Mute Swan is well named. Cousin Mute doesn't believe in noise. No indeed.

"But I'll tell you that you may always tell Cousin Mute because he has a black knob at the bottom or lower part of his bill.

Cousin Mrs. Mute has lovely little babies—cygnets—they're called.

"Their feathers are dirty looking now, but soon beautiful white feathers will come in place of the dirty ones.

"I suppose Mother Mute thinks it is as well not to dress up the little ones too much.

"Little ones are not apt to take such good care of their finery. And then she knows they will be beautifully dressed later on.

"Ah, yes, she is wise with her children.

"And she likes to have them here with her in the zoo."

Trumpeter made a few more loud sounds and then he went on talking.

"Shocking housekeepers are the Cousin Mutes. They build such careless nests on the ground near the water and the nests are so badly looked after as far as neatness and beauty is concerned.

"But still, what does it matter if one's home is not beautiful when one is so beautiful one's self?

"I am sure that is the way the Cousin Mutes think about it. Of course, others may feel differently upon this subject."

"Now, I'm not a bad-looking swan," said the Black Swan. "If you're talking about looks you should both look at me and mention me.

"I am from southern Australia," continued Black Swan, "and I have a cousin from Tasmania, which happens to be near Australia, too. You thought for a moment perhaps that it was in another part of the world, eh, Trumpeter? Wasn't that what you thought?"

"No," said Trumpeter, "I hadn't thought that because I never do think a great deal of geography anyway.

"I don't like geography much. I don't like to try to think whether one place is nearer to another than the next place.

"That is queerly worded, but you see the minute I talk about anything that has any suggestion of geography about it I don't speak well, nor do I feel at ease.

"But you asked me to admire your looks. And that I will gladly do. For you are a very large and very magnificent and your shiny black feathers are gorgeous and look so differently from those of other swans.

"Of course, I think it is nice most swans prefer white, but you're fine to have by way of contrast—opposite from the rest of us, I mean.

"And you're always much admired.

"Yes, Black Swan, I must say you have many friends and every one likes to see you and gaze upon you. So I will give you both attention and mention on account of your looks for you deserve both, most assuredly you do."

And black Swan was very grateful as Trumpeter gave a long call of congratulations.

A new malleable glass that is non-splinterable, ten times clearer than ordinary glass, and easily bent, is a recent invention. It is said that the substance can be bought in liquid form and poured cold from a bottle. One valuable property of the glass is that it will transmit ultra-violet light, and, therefore, can be used as a shelter for patients requiring sun treatment. It can also be used for greenhouses.

CITY TO SELL TREES, SHRUBS

Sale Will Start Latter Part of March or Early in April, Recreation Dept. Advises.

The annual shrub and tree sale of the city recreational department will be held the latter part of March or the first of April, no definite date being yet decided upon, Recreation Director Raymond announced this week.

Awaiting the date of sale Director Raymond emphasized the need to prepare ground and garden beds for planting.

In making preparations for a hedge Director Raymond advised that a trench 18 inches wide and 12 inches deep be dug and that fertilizer be spread and turned under now. If the ground is prepared now the gardener need only plant his shrub later on, he said.

The city recreation department has for many years conducted an annual tree and shrub sale. All plants are guaranteed by the department.

Group No. 6 of the Ladies' Aid of Glenwood M. E. church met at the home of Mrs. Hoover Bentz, 40 S. Ogden Ave., on Thursday, March 10. Fifteen members were present. Dainty refreshments were served by the hostess, assisted by Mrs. F. Coberly and Mrs. D. H. Elliott.

BIG DAY FOR FURNITURE CO.

Last Saturday was one of the biggest days in the history of the Hilltop Furniture Co., when they held open house from 1 to 9:30 p. m., and inaugurated their discount sale in honor of the anniversary of their first year as a Hilltop business firm.

During the afternoon and evening coffee and doughnuts were served to hundreds of visitors who came to congratulate Mr. Heimbrecht and Mr. Benefield and wish them success for the coming years.

Small Fire Loss

A small fire at 38 N. Park Ave. caused a damage of near $200 Sunday evening about 6:30 o'clock.

No one was in the house at the time the fire was discovered and firemen knocked out a window in order to enter.

The flames are thought to have started from a cigaret lying on an overstuffed arm chair. The chair smouldered and the rug in front of it caught fire.

The executive board of the Ohio branch of the Women's Home and Foreign Missionary society, United Evangelical church, recently held a meeting at the parsonage of St. Paul's church, 24 S. Warren Ave. The purpose of this meeting was to arrange a program for the convention of the Ohio branch of the society which will be held in St. Paul's United Evangelical church during the third week of June. Mrs. L. F. Lee of Findlay, who is recording secretary, was in the city to attend the meeting.

Will Entertain for Columbus Federation

The Hilltop Child Conservation Circle will entertain the Columbus Federation of Child Conservation Circles Thursday, March 17, at 1:45 at the home of Mrs. T. S. Fox, 2846 West Broad street.

Mrs. J. T. Kirk, Columbus Federation president, will preside, and Miss Caroline Clark Field, secretary of the Ohio Social Hygiene Council, and affiliated with the American Social Hygiene Association, will bring an important message for all mothers.

The Capital City Trio will furnish the music and Mrs. H. L. Lee will give readings.

Members may bring interested guests to this meeting. Children will be cared for during the meeting at the home of Mrs. R. H. Campbell, 237 N. Warren Ave.

Mrs. H. G. Englehard, social chairman, will have charge of the social hour, following the program.

In New Location

W. E. Dolby, insurance agent, has moved his offices from 2363 W. Broad to 2341 W. Broad St. The change in location was made Wednesday.

Mrs. Charles C. Mason, 150 Binns boulevard, will entertain Group 2 of Hoge Memorial Ladies' Aid society, Friday, March 18, with a covered dish luncheon at 12:30 o'clock. All ladies of Mrs. A. C. Markert's group are urged to be present as this is the last meeting of the year. Mrs. Ray Cave will assist Mrs. Mason.

FOOD SHOW AND OPENING

G. M. Painter, grocer at 2223 West Broad St., recently purchased the confectionery located one door east of his establishment and has remodeled the rooms combining both businesses.

To better acquaint the public with his new establishment, Mr. Painter will have a Food Show and opening on the evening of Tuesday, March 22, from 7 to 9:30.

For the evening's enjoyment he has provided various features, some of which will carry prizes with them. Among the amusement features is a Bobby Jones contest.

A number of representatives from food distributors will be at his store during the evening and will demonstrate to the public the various food products and the numerous ways in which they may be prepared. Mr. Painter invites all people of the Hilltop to be his guest that evening and enjoy his hospitality.

SOCIAL CLUB ORGANIZED

"The Shepherd's Club" Instituted by 27 Members of Hilltop Lodge, I. O. O. F.

On the evening of March 9, 27 members of Hilltop Lodge No. 662, I. O. O. F., met at their hall and organized a social club which they have named "The Shepherd's Club" of the Ancient Order of Lost Sheep.

The specific purposes of the club are to provide practical and recreational entertainment for the members of Hilltop lodge and members of the I. O. O. F. residing within the community of the Hilltop and the state of Ohio; and increase attendance at the regular lodge meetings from the social influences of the club.

Immediately following the organization procedure, eight members of the I. O. O. F. were initiated into the club and 10 members applied for membership by initiation at the next meeting of the club. Within two weeks the membership has grown to 46 and is rapidly gaining popularity.

Present indications show that this club may be the first of many similar clubs to be organized throughout the country, using the constitution and ritual as provided by this newly created Hilltop club.

The initiation is designed after the lessons we have received from the Great Shepherd—finding the lost sheep and returning them to the fold.

The club will be known as Fold No. 1, and is strictly a separate body and has no official connection with the I. O. O. F., and as provided by the constitution, will not conflict or interfere with the I. O. O. F. whatsoever.

The honor of being the senior shepherd of this club was conferred upon Mr. James Fippin of South Harris avenue, as active member of Hilltop lodge, who recently celebrated his 93rd birthday, and attends his lodge meetings every Wednesday night. All Odd Fellows are invited to membership in this organization.

Mrs. Cornelius Wilcox, 323 S. Burgess Ave., and Mrs. H. Arnold of Mulford Road, left Saturday, March 12, for New York. They will be gone a week.

Francis Willard W. C. T. U. will hold its monthly meeting with Mrs. Alice Barker, 420 Clarendon avenue, March 23, at 2 p. m. Mrs. E. W. Matthews will be the speaker.

NEW COURT FOR COUNTY ASSURED

A court of domestic relations for Franklin county was assured, Monday afternoon, when Governor Donahey affixed his signature to senate bill No. 4, by Paul H. Herbert of Columbus, providing for such a court in the Franklin county court of common pleas.

Under the bill, the new court would hear all domestic, divorce and similar cases, relieving the docket of other common pleas judges. The judges of the new court are to have the same rank as other common pleas judges, and will be elected in November, 1928.

Mrs. Fred L. Newdick, 325 Elden Ave., is in Charleston, W. Va., the guest of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Comyn Lewis.

Through a deal closed last week by Charles Rockhold, Jacob Michel of Elden avenue traded a farm to Harold C. Lloyd for a four-family duplex and nine unimproved lots on South High street.

Mrs. Ed Michaelis, 153 N. Terrace St., entertained Sunday evening for Mrs. Harry Willbarger in honor of her birthday anniversary. Refreshments were served to the following: Mr. and Mrs. Harold Willbarger and sons Francis and Edwin, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Ferrel, the guest of honor and host and hostess.

COLLEGE NIGHT AT GLENWOOD

Second of Series of Special Meetings by First Department of Epworth League.

Not all college students live in the north end of Columbus. The Glenwood Epworth League is planning to have "College Night" next Sunday and expects to have 50 college students present. The leader is Miss Cora Ellen Chase and an excellent program is in preparation.

Saturday is last day of the school quarter at the Ohio State university and many students will be returning home for a short vacation. It is not expected that this will affect the attendance of the meeting as nearly all of the Hilltop students will spend the vacation at home.

This will be the second of a series of special meetings which is being put on by the first department of the league. Miss Elva Paul is the general chairman.

Last Sunday was West High night, when Roger Snedeker, the leader, conducted a very inspiring service. Several West High students gave talks and musical numbers were rendered by the West High quartet. Mr. W. L. Roller gave a talk on "What Christianity Means to a Professional Man."

Mrs. L. Ernest Dahlen, 219 S. Warren Ave., entertained with a bridge luncheon March 5 at the Gray Moon room for the following guests: Mrs. [illegible] Acker, Miss Gertrude Larrick, Mrs. Arthur Larrick, Mrs. Henry Baas, Mrs. Earl Buehler, Mrs. Ted Langlais and Mrs. Carl Baas.

The Beta Lambda class of Glenwood Sunday school will meet at the home of Mrs. T. S. Fox, 2846 West Broad St., Tuesday evening, March 22. Visiting hostesses will be Mrs. Fleming, Mrs. Fishbaugh, Mrs. Foster, Mrs. [illegible]ten, Mrs. Garrison, Mrs. Geren and Mrs. Hutchinson.

Miss Lois Thornton, 224 S. Richardson Ave., entertained on Saturday evening, March 5, the following guests: Miss Helen Klopf of Piqua, Ohio; Mr. Andy Frazier of Ironton, Ohio; Mr. Bernard Ruffner of Cleveland, Miss Cecilia Schwartz, Miss Alice Shea, Miss Marguerite Schwartz, Miss Margaret Shea, Mr. Edgar Thornton, Mr. Carl Hirsch, Mrs. Clarence Velt, Mr. James Laudergan and Mr. and Mrs. Lelloy Thornton.

AT HILLCREST SUNDAY A. M.

Judge John R. King of this city will speak at the Sunday morning service of the Hillcrest Baptist church. He is a former prosecuting attorney. Mr. King is well-known to many Hilltop people.

J. H. Hughes of Chicago was the speaker last Sunday. Mr. Hughes stated that he liked the Hilltop church and congregation very well.

Mrs. Percy R. Green (Frances Rhoads) entertained the Friendship club, at the home of her mother, 2235 W. Broad St., on Wednesday, March 9. A chicken dinner was served at 12:30 o'clock, the table decorations and favors being green and gold. After a short business session the remainder of the afternoon was spent in playing games. Those present were: Mrs. John Evans, Mrs. Charles Wiles, Mrs. Robert B. Foster, Mrs. Homer Roberts, Mrs. J. Allen Baker, Mrs. S. Darl Rhoads and the hostess. Mrs. John Evans, 94 Frederick St., will entertain the club members in April.

URGES HILLTOP TRUNK SEWER

Sector Duffey Disagrees with Engineering Department in Regard to Roof Drains.

A new trunk sewer for the Hilltop district was suggested by Service Director Duffy in a letter to city council, Monday night, in which he refused to concur with the city engineer's recommendation that roof drains must be cut from sanitary sewers and directed into the gutters.

Director Duffy pointed out that the relief, although immediate, would only be temporary and that the city would be faced in the near future with the construction of a trunk sewer.

He directed attention of council to the fact that 98 per cent of the roof drains into sanitary sewers had been constructed or connected "subsequent to Aug. 27, 1907," and that this was in direct violation of the plumbing code and should not have been permitted

Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Moore, 17 Whitethorne Ave., announce the birth of a son; Clyde Jackson, at Radium hospital, March 10. Mrs. Moore formerly was organist at Hillcrest Baptist church. Mr. Moore is a member of the reptorial staff of the Ohio State Journal.

JACQUES OPENS FURNITURE STORE

D. E. Jacques, who for a number of years has been connected with the E. F. Kerr & Sons Co., furniture dealers, has retired from that organization and has opened the Jacques Furniture Co. store at 606-608 W. Broad St.

Mr. Jacques, with his family, resides at 74 S. Terrace St.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward J. Whipple of 559 S. Warren Ave., have returned home from Buffalo.

Tenth Recital

On Monday night, March 21, at 8 o'clock, the tenth recital of the season will be given at the Hilltop School of Music, 67 Midland Ave. Miss Greiser and Miss Robbins extend an invitation to those interested in music. Following are those appearing on the program: Reed Varner, Paul Warner, Arved Underman, Joe Lile, Howard Zimmer, Edward Luke, Charles Johnston, Gordon Wilcox, George Hudson, Irene Stewart, Eleanor Thomas, Edith Myers, Betty Riley, Delores Sinclair, Edna Huntley, Gertrude Alford and Helen Hastings.

A miscellaneous shower was given March 5 in the hall at 2393½ W. Broad St., in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Elisha S Thompson (Lillian Nye) and Mr. and Mrs. Charles Jones (Mildred Thompson). Musical selections were given by Mrs. George B. Weatherman, Miss Hazel Minck, Mrs. E. S. Thompson, Mr. W. F. Minck, Mr. Louis Nicholas and Master Paul Monroe. The evening was spent in dancing, cards and other games.

Fire Victim Former Resident of Hilltop

Mrs. Carrie Linton Sommer, who was burned to death last week in an East Main street fire, was a sister of Mrs. Belle Linton Mangan, of 75 N. Warren Ave., teacher in the West Broad Street school, and a former resident of the Hilltop, residing on South Terrace street.

Funeral services for Mrs. Sommers were held last Friday from Holy Cross church. Burial was made in Mt. Calvary cemetery.

The Bethany Bible class will meet on Friday, March 18, from 2 to 4 p. m. at the home of Mrs. C. F. Ditrick, 153 N. Warren Ave. The lesson study is found in the last chapter of Leviticus and a brief outline of the book of Numbers, which concludes the history of the wanderings and settlement of the children of Israel. This is the opportunity for new members to join the class and begin with the new subject study to be taken up.

Missionary to Speak

The Hillcrest Women's Missionary society will meet Thursday, March 24, at 7:30 p. m. at the church.

Miss Crawford, well known Indian missionary from Oklahoma, will speak at this time on a topic of much interest concerning missionary work among the Indians.

Mr. Earl Boothe, son of Mrs. Evenly, 70 N. Harris Ave., was taken to St. Carmel hospital Monday, March 14, where he was operated on for appendicitis. He is reported as doing very nicely.

AT GLENWOOD M. E. CHURCH

A special feature of the Lenten season at Glenwood will be the singing of the sacred hymns by various groups on next Sunday evening. The Junior High school department of the Sunday school will sing under the direction of Miss Cora Chase. The Junior chum with Mrs. F. K. Dickerson directing, will sing two numbers and will be accompanied by Dorothy Sellier, piano; Burrell Drake, cornet and Willis Armistead, violin. A quartet from West High school composed of the following: John Wagnitz, John Fedder, Robert Currier and Ralph Essex will also appear on the program. The church choir, Mrs. Mary Riddle Walton, directing will also sing.

JUNIOR MEMBERS ATTENTION

Junior Jolly Party will be held at Glenwood church on Friday at 6:30. A splendid program has been planned by the children and a jolly good time is in store for all. A beautiful set of slides showing the life of Christ will be a part of the program. Music will be furnished by members of the Junior church.

JUNIOR HIGH DEPT. MEETING

The Junior High school dept. of Glenwood Sunday school will meet in the social rooms on Friday evening at 7 o'clock. Mr. S. H. Ridenour of the Y. M. C. A. will speak on "First Aid."

Obituaries

MRS. LOUISA WILKINS

Mrs. Wilkins died at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Myrtle Musselman, 601 S. Richardson Ave., Saturday morning. She was 70 years of age, and made her home at 474 S. Hague Ave. Surviving, in addition to her daughter, Mrs. Musselman, is another daughter, Mrs. Miss D. Brown of Columbus; a son, Cletus H. Wilkins; a grandson and a brother. Funeral services were held at the Richardson avenue home Monday. Burial was made in Amaranth Abbey.

MRS. KATHERINE DURBAN

Funeral services for Mrs. Durban, who died at her home on Trabue pike, Friday morning, were held at St. Paul's Lutheran church in Rome, Sunday afternoon. Burial was made in Alton cemetery in charge of C. J. Kohn.

Subject to Tax

Governor Donahey Monday signed the Brown bill which makes benzol and all other compounds used for motor vehicle fuel subject to the two-cent gasoline tax. As the bill was passed as an emergency it took effect immediately with receiving the governor's signature.

On the evening of March 9, Mrs. Grace Delong, assisted by Mrs. Nola Tharp, entertained the members of the W. H. O. club at her home, 113 North Powell Ave. The evening was spent in a business and social session and numbers were chosen, each one representing an appropriate gift. A lovely luncheon, carrying out the St. Patrick colors, was served and the decorations throughout the home were in keeping with the season. Those partaking of their hospitality were: Mrs. Anna Work, Mrs. Elizabeth Van Sarken, Mrs. Maude Rudy, Mrs. Luella Butts, Mrs. Lula Link, Mrs. Mary Dial, Mrs. Ethel Nicley, Mrs. Anna Fisher, Mrs. Helen White, Mrs. Fern Gill, Mrs. Ruth Gill, Mrs. Grace Delong and Mrs. Nola Tharp. At the meeting Mrs. Blanche Rings was welcomed as a new member and Mrs. Etta De Wiese of 139 N. Park Ave. was a guest.

The Christian Endeavor society of Hoge Memorial Presbyterian church held an attendance contest recently, the membership being divided in two sides, the "Blues" and the "Reds." The Reds lost to the Blues, so in consequence the Reds entertained for the winning side Tuesday evening at the church-house on South Eureka avenue. Games were played and refreshments were served to a good number.

Miss Gertrude Slater, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. B. H. Slater, 347 S. Ogden Ave., was hostess to a number of friends last Thursday night at which time her engagement to Mr. Gilbert D. Nelson of Cleveland, son of Mrs. Emma I. Nelson of Winter Haven, Fla., was announced. At the announcement party were: Mrs. Ray A. Hoyt, Mrs. Edwin Hanelsee, Mrs. Edward Snyder, Mrs. Ruth McIntosh, Mrs. B. H. Miles, Mrs. Donald Lear, Miss Catherine Sperry and Miss Lydia Hull. The wedding will take place some time in June.

Miss Slater is home economics teacher at the Eleventh Avenue Junior High school, graduating from Ohio State in 1925. Mr. Nelson is a graduate of Illinois State Normal school and is a member of the faculty of Lincoln High school, Cleveland.

RUFFLED GLADIOLIAS NEWEST VARIETY

For a number of years, lovers and growers of iris, peonies and roses have had an opportunity to exhibit their choice bloom and to see the newer and rarer varities of their favorite flowers at the wonderful shows of the iris and rose societies which have been staged at the Museum building at Ohio State University.

This year, The "Hilltop Glad Gardens" are planning and will sponsor a show for the amateur gladioli growers of Columbus and vicinity to be held about the middle of August, on the Hilltop.

favorite flowers as there will be no entrance fee, the only requirement to compete for prizes being that flowers were grown by exhibitor and entered as named varieties.

A very valuable prize list of bulbs will be offered to winners in all classes, and all awards will be made by competent and well-known judges. One of the features of the show will be the floral exhibits of the larger growers of central Ohio. Among those who have already enthusiastically accepted the invitation to participate by bringing large displays of their high class flowers and offering valuable bulbs as premiums are: Mr. Arthur Baker of McNaughten Road Gardens of Reynoldsburg, who has for several years State fair; Dr. B. R. Bales of the "Triangle Farms" of Circleville, where thousands of Columbus people go each year to see them growing by the million; Mr. John Humphrey of Humphrey's Flower Gardens, Pataskala, who is a recognized authority and has been growing "Glads" for twenty-five years; Buster Bros. of Wilmington, whose gardens everyone who has travelled the C. C. C. highway from Columbus to Cincinnati has seen, and the "Hilltop Glad Gardens," which are operated by Mr. F. P. Carpenter, of 110 N. Powell Ave., Mr. E. I. Price, of 147 S. Terrace St., and Mr. E. O. Clime of the farm on Clime road, three miles west of Columbus, where the bulbs and flowers are grown.

No doubt there will be other growers who will bring in flowers for exhibition.

A list of rules and classes for all entrants, with prizes to be awarded will be prepared and may be secured from either Mr. Carpenter or Mr. Price.

The Double Deception

By MRS. E. O. CARLSTON

At times, she felt a strong resentment toward Mrs. Bennett ,who had failed to carry out the dying woman's wishes. She tried to overcome this feeling, but was only partly successful. One Sunday afternoon, Edna came to see her. She was the only person whose society Norma had enjoyed since she had changed her address. As yet, she had not become a member of that "inside circle" at the office. None of the employes talked to her except when certain duties made it necessary.

"I wonder if it is my fault that I do not make friends," Norma wondered. "Probably I should be more cheerful."

The next morning, when she entered the office, the other girls were already seated at their desks as it was exactly nine o'clock.

"Good morning, Miss Blanc," she said pleasantly to the girl whose desk was next to hers.

Miss Blanc, in response to the cheerful voice, returned the salutation in the same tone. Norma met the girls just a little more than half way, and was soon going to lunch and an occasional movie with them. She tried the same methods she had used at the office, on the family with whom she lived, and found that they, too, were glad to respond to her desire for friendship. She was often invited to take her meals downstairs, although the business arrangement existing between them allowed for lodging, only.

Several weeks rolled by at the office, before Norma found herself rushed with work. When she asked one of the girls what it was all about, she was informed that the manager had been away, and was returning the following week.

"When he goes away, we enjoy ourselves the first few weeks," she told Norma. "Then we have to make up for lost time when he sends us word that he is returning."

"I believe I would rather keep everything caught up all the time, so that there would be no need for a rush at the last minute," Norma said.

"So would I," the other girl admitted, but it is a strong temptation to 'lag' when everyone else is taking it easy."

"What kind of a man is the manager? A regular old grouch, I suppose," Norma said.

"Not a very old one—he is about twenty-three, I think—but he certainly believes in discipline. Some of the girls are crazy about him, but he acts like a stern old grandpa everytime he has occasion to speak to any of us."

"Another obstacle for me to overcome," thought Norma. "Hope I do not have to do any work directly under his supervision."

The next Monday morning, everybody was careful to arrive at the office promptly at nine. The manager arrived at ten-thirty. In going to his private office, he had to pass the row of desks in the large room. Norma noticed that he spoke rather gruffly to the girls, and formed the opinion that he certainly would be a hard person to work for. That afternoon, the assistant manager, who had been in charge of the business when the chief executive was away, stopped beside Norma's desk.

"Mr. Allison has some work for you to do, Miss Wentworth. He said for you to come to his office immediately. Norma arose from her desk-chair and followed the assistant, Mr. Cromley, toward the door on which was printed:

"Warren G. Allison, Private"

Cromley opened the door, and Norma entered ahead of him.

"Mr. Allison, this is Miss Wentworth," Mr. Cromley said. Both parties acknowledged the introduction. "He will give you instructions about what he wants done."

When Cromley left the room, Warren looked at her with a smile, which was more pleasant than she would have given him credit for, judging from some of the criticisms she had heard.

"Your name is Wentworth?" Warren asked. "I was sent here to find a person by that name several weeks ago I don't suppose it would have been you though."

Warren was thinking of the description he had heard Beatrice Morgan give of Norma: "Rather plain-featured, etc." This girl, he thought, certainly did not answer that description. As Mrs. Browning had neglected to tell Norma about the young man who had inquired for her, Norma did not know of Beatrice's offer. Warren, supposing this girl was not the same one he had promised to find, and having more important business at hand, dropped the subject.

"Miss Wentworth," he inquired. "Can you write quickly, and still make legible characters?"

"Yes, sir."

"Then I wish you would copy these names as I give them to you, and afterward look up the data concerning them in some old records and other books, which you will find in the stock room. Be very careful to copy these addresses accurately."

He handed her some ruled paper, and began to read some certain names from the book lying on the desk before him. They did not reach a stopping place in their work until late in the afternoon, when the telephone rang to interrupt them. When Warren finished talking and hung up the receiver, he glanced at his watch. It was four-thirty.

"Whew!" he exclaimed. "Didn't realize it was so late. If I have to keep you past your usual time, I will see that you get paid for the over-time."

As he expected, it was past six o'clock when the list was completed. When Norma entered the large office room, all of the desks were in order for the night, and the chairs were empty. She hastened to the dressing room, where she found her coat and hat in a heap on the floor, due to someone's carelessness, who must have been in a hurry, too.

When she opened the front door, she saw that it was raining and probably had been all afternoon. She had started down the steps leading to the side walk, when Warren called to her.

"Wait a second, Miss Wentworth. My roadster is parked back of the building. If you will step back here into the entrance under shelter, I will drive around in a few minutes."

According to his promise, Warren's car soon stopped in front of the office. Norma sat down in the seat beside him.

"Where do you live? he asked, as he placed his heel on the starter.

"At 255 Bradley Avenue," Norma answered.

"Two fifty-five Bradley Avenue?" Warren asked. "Are you staying with Mrs. Wendall?"

"Yes, are you acquainted with her?"

"I certainly am. Mr. Wendall is a cousin to my father. Here's where I get an invitation to a good home-cooked meal," Warren said, as he turned a corner sharply, which threw Norma to the left, causing her head to nearly rest on his shoulder. She deftly regained her sitting position.

"Pardon me," she said, timidly.

"That's all right," he said in a tone of amusement. "We are coming to another corner just like that one. Here we are," and he made the turn at full speed, but Norma sat firmly and did not lose her balance. They looked at each other, and both laughed. Warren pondered what had happened to him, as it never had been his nature to attempt to be familiar with a girl on such short acquaintance as this.

"Oh, well," he thought. "She is a nice little girl."

"Fine fellow," Norma was thinking. "I think the girls at the office are inclined to exaggerate things."

They soon reached Mrs. Wendall's home. Norma opened the door, and Warren followed her into the living room. Mrs. Wendall, hearing voices, left her work in the kitchen to speak to her guest.

"Good evening, Warren," she said. "I was looking for you."

"You were? Why?" Warren asked, puzzled.

"I knew where Norma worked, and that you would be at the office today, said he passed you coming home."

Mrs. Wendall got no further. Her "You know my tendency toward match making? I thought probably you'd like Norma better than that bunch of flappers you've employed, and don't like. Besides, Pa just got home, and husband, whom she had referred to as "Pa" entered the room just then, and began where she had left off.

"Yes, my flivver was right back of that roadster of yours I saw you round that corner at about thirty per, and then slow down to fifteen. I turned the corner slow, myself, like a sane man ought to; then I picked up speed and passed you, just to let you know I thought there was something wrong in your wiper story, but neither one of you saw me, though I blew my horn so hard, I thought it would have to be fixed. Can't figure out young people these days," and "Pa," in obedience to a command from Mrs. Wendall, left the room, "to wash for supper."

The evening passed more quickly and pleasantly to Norma than any since the death of Mrs. Browning. Warren took his departure at ten o'clock, as he had some business which demanded his attention that night. The next day, Norma went to the office with a light heart. The "old grouch" whose authority she had dreaded the day before, had turned out to be a very companionable young man.

The Henlopen lighthouse at Lewes, Delaware, the second oldest lighthouse on the Atlantic coast, was undermined by the sea which it had battled for one hundred and sixty years. It had not been used since 1924, when it was abandoned for a new steel structure. "The Old Man of the Sea," as the lighthouse was called, was built by the British in 1764, at a time when the Delaware River was a chief port of entry. The money was raised by public lottery. During the war of 1812 the British burned it, but the American Government later repaired the damages.

SPECIFIC BUS ROUTES

Council Passes Resolution After Two Months' Study of Routes.

By a resolution drawn in city council Monday night all bus companies operating through Columbus have been restricted to specific routes through the city. The resolution adopted was drawn following a two months' study by the State Utility commission and city officials.

All routes in the resolution have been approved by the commission and the traffic division of the police department.

Routes were adopted to relieve traffic congestion downtown. They follow circuitous routes providing frequent stops to let off and take on passengers.

The Springfield and Dayton bus route which passes through this section of the city as follows: Rich street to Glenwood to Town to Central to Broad street to city limits. Returning, Broad street at city limits to Central to Town to Glenwood to Rich street to bus station.

HONOR GOLDEN ANNIVERSARY

The women's society of Hillcrest Baptist church will honor the golden anniversary of their national society by a meeting this Thursday evening, March 24, at 7:30 at the church.

They are privileged to have as their guest and principal speaker, Miss Isabelle Crawford, who since her graduation at the age of 19, has been working for and with the Kiowa Indians.

From her unique experiences she fascinates her audiences completely. She attributes her success to "splendid help ers, cast-iron constitution, Scotch determination, Irish nonsense, the Divine call and power of the Holy Spirit." Special music will be rendered. All are cordially invited to attend this meeting.

John Burroughs Benefit

On Friday afternoon and evening, March 25, under the auspices of the John Burroughs Parent-Teacher association, the Ritz theater will present the latest RIN-TIN-TIN picture, "The Night Cry," and "Our Gang" comedy.

The proceeds from the performances will go into a fund for the school library. Performances continuous from 3 to 11 p. m.

PREPARATORY SERVICES

Cottage Prayer Meetings to Be Held by Members of Hoge Memorial Church.

Hoge Memorial Presbyterian church will hold a series of cottage prayer meetings in preparation of their two weeks of special evangelistic meetings to be conducted at the church from April 3 to April 17. The pastor, Rev. H. C. Hutchison, will be assisted by his brother, Rev. W. J. Hutchison, D. D., of Cleveland, Ohio.

Following is the list of homes in which the prayer services will be conducted Friday evening, March, 25th, from 7:30 to 8 o'clock, and also the streets constituting the group for each cottage prayer service. Members and friends are asked to support their own groups.

Group 1—At church. Includes Belvidere, Lechner, Fairmont, State Hospital, Columbian, Ryan, Stimmel road, Nashoba, Sullivant avenue from Central to Whitethorne.

Group 2—Mrs. Mary Simeral, 207 Midland Ave. Streets: Whitethorne, Midland, Clarendon, North and South Wheatland, Highland, West Broad from Lechner to Eureka.

Group 3—Mr. and Mrs. D. M. Reese, 151 S. Terrace St. Streets: North and South Oakley, North and South Park, North and South Eureka avenue, Olive, Pamela, Ray, Ridgeway, Eldon and South Terrace street.

Group 4—Mrs. Guy Ault, 140 South Richardson Ave. Streets: South Richardson, North Burgess, North Terrace.

Group 5—Mrs. W. G. Davis, 72 S. Burgess Ave. Streets: South Burgess, West Broad from Eureka to Ogden, Sullivant avenue from Whitethorne to Burgess avenue.

Group 6—Mrs. Patrick H. Donnlene, 2364 Sullivant Ave. Streets: South Ogden, South Warren, Palmetto, Sullivant from Burgess to Hague, Racine avenue.

Group 7—Mrs. Harold Straubaugh, 2039 West Broad St. Streets: North Ogden, North Warren, Steele, West Broad from Ogden to Hague.

Group 8—Mrs. F. P. Sperry, 45 S. Harris Ave. Streets: North and South Harris and North and South Hague.

Group 9—Dr. R. P. Rauch, 211 N. Powell Ave. Streets: Binns boulevard, Westmoor, West Broad from Hague on Olive, North and South Roys, North and South Chase, North and South Powell.

These groups will meet again on Tuesday and Thursday evenings of next week in a different home. In all it is hoped to have held 27 cottage prayer services before the special meetings begin.

Fell from Davenport

Russell D. Morgan, small son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Morgan, 97 N. Terrace St., suffered a painful injury Wednesday night of last week when he fell off a davenport at their home, cutting a gash in his forehead which necessitated two stitches being taken to close the wound.

Mrs. C. E. Walston, 2089 West Broad St., has returned from Cincinnati, where she was called by the death of her mother, Mrs. Alma Wright, which occurred March 14 in Oakley.

Lawrence A. Warner, 234 N. Harris Ave., after spending Sunday in Columbus with his family, returned to Washington, D. C., Monday, where he has been for the past four weeks on business.

Mr. and Mrs. E. W. Merriman, 1148 S. Rich St., announce the engagement of their daughter, Mary Louise, to Mr Arthur J. Martin, son of Mr. and Mrs Fred Martin, 159 N. Oakley Ave. The wedding will be an event of the early summer.

CHANGE ORDERED IN ROOF DRAINS

Only Permanent Relief Lies in Construction of Main Trunk Storm Sewer.

Hilltop residents whose homes have the roof drainage emptying into the sanitary sewer will have until August 1 to disconnect such connection so that all roof water will be allowed to drain into gutters and storm sewers instead of sanitary sewers, according to an order made by Service Director Duffy last Tuesday.

Inadequate drainage in certain sections of the Hilltop has been the cause of much complaint from residents of this section because their basements are frequently flooded after hard rains.

Conditions Monday were such that the school officials were compelled to close John Burroughs school, Richardson and Sullivant, because a foot of water in the basement of the school made it impossible to heat the building.

Due to bad drainage and inadequate sewers the board was compelled to spend $800 at the school two years ago to raise equipment from the floor in the basement so it would not be flooded.

Duffy's action is expected to provide only temporary relief to the affected sections, the only complete relief being in the construction of a main trunk sewer for storm water.

Cost of a proposed joint county-city storm trunk sewer to provide permanent relief is estimated at more than $400,000 for the city's share. No definite action can be taken unless a bill now in the legislature authorizing such work is passed, Duffy said.

A survey of the engineering department showed there are more than 5000 buildings on the Hilltop affected by flooded conditions after rains.

The department estimated it would cost $40 per house to disconnect these drains, but this estimate is regarded as excessive by councilmen.

Members of the choir of West Park Avenue Methodist Episcopal church were entertained Thursday at the home of Mrs. J. H. Kirkpatrick, 591 S. Warren Ave. Mrs. William Weese was assisting hostess.

INJURED ABOUT HEAD AND BODY

William D. Callahan, 331 S. Richardson Ave., was bruised and cut about the head and body, Sunday night, when he was struck while walking in Grandview avenue, by an automobile driven by J. F. Smith, 27 S. Ogden Ave.

Mrs. G. A. Baker entertained Glenwood Happy Hour Embroidery club at a luncheon at her home Wednesday afternoon, March 16. Those present were: Mrs. V. C. Harrod, Mrs. C. N. Wisker, Mrs. E. C. Williams, Mrs. Charles Rockhold, Mrs. J. P. Mehring, Mrs. E. P. Morse, Mrs. Frank Scurry, Mrs. C. H. Schulenberg, Mrs. J. E. Pease, Mrs. Fred Hardy, Mrs. F. O. Page and the hostess.

Mrs. Thomas T. McCutcheon, 1246 N. Fifth St., and Mrs. Claude C. Shaates, 152 N. Roys Ave., had charge of the arrangements for the benefit bridge given by Kappa Chi sorority at the Neil House Wednesday.

On Wednesday evening, March 16, Mrs. Maude Rudy entertained members of the W. H. O. club with a farewell party, prior to her departure for Magnetic Springs for rest and treatment. The evening was spent in a social way. The surprise of the evening took place when the club girls presented their hostess with a lovely handkerchief shower, it also being Mrs. Rudy's birthday anniversary. A lovely luncheon was served. Those present were: Mrs. Cora Dayton, Mrs. Gertrude Barryhill, Mrs. Luella Butin, Mrs. Ethel Nicely, Mrs. Fern Gill, Mrs. Etta DeWiess, Mrs. Ruth Gill, Mrs. Lula Link, Mrs. Grace Delong, Mrs. Helen White, Mrs. Ralph Rudy, Mrs. Maude Rudy and daughter, Miss Anna Rudy.

Mrs. Jennie Tucker, 165 S. Harris Ave., announces the marriage of her daughter, Miss Evelyn Stronse, to Mr. Charles Orva Tiswerand of Rogers Ave., son of Mr. and Mrs. Willis E. Tiswerand of Greer, Ohio. The ceremony was performed at Newport, Ky., Feb. 12. Mr. Tiswerand is employed at the Accurate Measure Oil Co. The couple will reside at 161 Midland Ave.

2 HURT HUNTING LEAK WITH MATCH

George Anderson, 26 North Powell Ave., and Joseph Page, 198 East Town street, were slightly burned about the face and hands, Saturday, when they exploded accumulated gas in the basement of the Atlantic & Pacific Tea Co. store, 2123 N. High St., by hunting for the leak with a match.

WILL CONDUCT EVANGELISTIC MEETINGS AT GLENWOOD CHURCH

DR. POWERS

Dr. G. F. Barber, a pastor, and the executive committee of which Mr. H. C. Keefer is chairman, have all preliminary plans in readiness for the opening of the evangelistic crusade at Glenwood Methodist church, which will open on next Sunday morning, and will continue until Easter. Dr. Powers who is to be in charge of the crusade and who has succeeded in presenting his message with such great results that he has come to be known as "the man with a message for this generation" comes from Chicago where he is a conference evangelist and is on the staff of the board of home missions and church extensions.

His topics for next week will be: Sunday, March 27—Morning, "The Crusade and Crusaders"; Evening, "Is Our Modern Home On the Breakers?" Monday, March 28—"A Tragedy Under An Oak."

Tuesday, March 29—"The Modern Rip Van Winkle."

Wednesday, March 30—"God's Loud Speaker."

Thursday, March 31—"The Lost Christ In a Lost World."

Friday, April 1—"What Must the Church Do to Be Saved?"

Miss Clara Mae Haas, 215 N. Burgess Ave., entertained the Happy Hour Sewing club on Thursday evening at the home of Miss Mertie Grimm, president of the club. A handkerchief shower was given in honor of Miss Grace E. Schott, 291 S. Eighteenth St., who will leave this week for Cincinnati, following her marriage to Mr. George W. B. Keller of Lancaster, March 26. At this farewell party for Miss Schott the following were present: Miss Elisabeth Rowland, Miss Dorothy Weisman, Miss Virginia Smeltzer, Miss Clara Mae Haas, Miss Mertie Grimm, Mrs. Richard Atkinson, Mr. William A. Grimm, Mr. Gordan Soisgiver and Mr. Harold Hampy.

West Broad School

Last Friday morning at assembly, the moving picture machine and screen were formally presented to the school by the P.-T. A.

The three presidents who have worked hard to make this gift possible, Mrs. C. W. Barrell, Mrs. Eugene Dupuis and Mrs. Lawrence Earl were present and made short talks. Mrs. Earl making the presentation which was accepted by Kathaleen Phillips, president of the School Council, on behalf of the children.

The teachers and principal are very grateful to the parents who have been active in providing the means for visual education, and to Mr. B. J. Frasure for his work as chairman of the committee.

Three of the four 6th grades are running their banking percentage 100 and over. Room 201 still in the lead with 114 per cent. Room 204 made the 100 per cent this week.

This week is the centenary of Beethoven's death, and the memory of the great composer has been honored in the study of his life and music.

On April 29, Mr. Donald Bain will give an entertainment for the benefit of the school fund, entitled "A Trip to the Farm." Later announcements will be made.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Rockhold, 138 N. Roys Ave. announce the marriage of their daughter, Neva Leora, to Mr. Harry A. Thomay, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Thomay, 279 McDowell St. Rev. Harry N. Brobst, pastor of St. Matthew's Evangelical Lutheran church, read the nuptial service Dec. 8, 1926. Mr. and Mrs. Thomay are at home at 279 McDowell St.

BANQUET FOR BASKETBALLERS

Fine Program Enjoyed by West Church League Players as They Eat Feast.

Members of the West Church Basketball league teams were banqueted at the West Park M. E. church last Thursday evening and everyone had a wonderful time and the league wishes to thank the women of the church for the fine meal which they served.

President Joe Davis arranged a very snappy program, assisted by the other officers of the league. Mr. Parkins sang some very good numbers, accompanied by Mrs. Parkins at the piano. Mr. Spangler made a big hit with his accordion and the boys would hardly give him a rest. Too much praise cannot be given these people for their willingness to come out and entertain the West church teams.

Mr. Seddon, of the recreation department, gave a fine talk on sportsmanship, as did Mr. Rollin, vice president of the League. Mr. Seddon was much disappointed at not seeing a larger representation of pastors from West side churches present.

A hot four-round boxing match was a huge success, put on by Bobby and Dan Ryan, who are two 14-year-old West Siders. If some of the old-time boxers could have seen these two boys box they might have received a lesson on sportsmanship and aggressiveness.

Mr. Seddon and Mr. Waite put on a kidding stunt that seemed to take well with the crowd.

Mr. Lutz, president of the East Church league, says we have a mighty fine crowd of boys, now that is some compliment, especially when it comes from the East End.

The party broke up by singing "Fight the Team," accompanied by Mr. Spangler and his accordion.

The marriage of Miss Ruthie Montgomery to Mr. Harvey W. Williams, jr., her step-brother, celebrated Dec. 6, 1926, in Greensburg, Ky., was announced on Friday. The bride is the daughter of Mrs. Harvey W. Williams and the bridegroom is the son of Mr. Harvey W. Williams, sr., 2787 Sullivant Ave. For the present the young people will live at that address.

HAMONICA BAND PLAYS FOR HI-Y'S

The following boys who are members of the Highland Avenue school harmonica band played at a meeting of the Hi-Y boys at the Y. M. C. A. Tuesday evening, March 15. Mrs. Harry M. Reed is directing the band, which is composed of the following: Emerson Hutt, Edwin Dunavent, Warren Kline, Don Reed, Richard Hemmerly, Richard Wright, John Early, Elwood Watts, Everett Mosely, John Leeper Norton Benton and David Randall.

Members of the Bayview Literary club were entertained at luncheon Monday by Mrs. Charles Slater, 37 N. Ogden Ave., hostess, assisted by Mrs. Elisabeth Brown, Mrs. A. Chappelle and Mrs. George Knox. Officers were elected.

Mr. Raymond G. Hill, 436 S. Ogden Ave., is singing this week with the O. S. U. Glee club which is touring Ohio on the club's 70th annual road trip. Mr. Hill is a junior in the college of journalism at Ohio State.

A number of friends surprised John G. Birle Saturday evening at his home, 80 S. Ogden Ave., in honor of the twenty-first anniversary of his birth. An evening of music was enjoyed and refreshments were served to the following: Mr. and Mrs. Joe Wyman, Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Dickerson, Mr. and Mrs. Dick Lewis, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Weatherman, Miss Truth Daniels, Miss Cora Chase, the Misses Ona and Zoe Butler, Miss Hattie Campbell, Miss Eva Paul, Miss Cleo Cramer, Miss Dorothy Pryor, Miss Martha Birle, Mrs. Lena Birle, Ernest Martendale, Water Edwards, Bob Hughes, William Birle and the honor guest.

W. H. Deems Ill

W. H. Deems, 33 S. Westmoor Ave., is seriously ill at his home. Mr. Deems took sick about 9:30 Tuesday evening, and physicians pronounce his condition critical.

The Philathea class of St. Paul's United Evangelical Sunday school met Tuesday evening at the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Gardner, 365 S. Burgess Ave., the occasion being a farewell party honoring Mr. and Mrs. G. H. Ford and family, 157 N. Harris Ave., who are leaving the city. Mrs. Ford is a member of the Philathea class. A very elegant casserole, a gift from the class, was presented to Mrs. Ford by the teacher of the class, Mrs. B. D. Shultz.

BIG CROWD AT FOOD SHOW AND OPENING

George M. Painter, grocer at 2280 W. Broad street, was all smiles and exceedingly happy Tuesday evening when hundreds of people from all sections of the Hilltop attended his opening and food show.

From 7 until 10 o'clock the store was crowded with people interested in the food demonstrations and enjoying Painter's hospitality.

Favors were given out and the crowd was treated to a great quantity of ice cream and cake.

As a climax to the evening's enjoyment prizes consisting of 15 baskets of groceries, 12 pounds of coffee, 5 cans of malt, 1 Kingban ham and a quantity of bacon was distributed to his guests.

Opens Battery Service

John Taylor, who has spent the last four years as battery expert at Columbus' largest battery service station, has opened the Hilltop Battery Service Co., 14 S. His shop and equipment are complete in every detail, enabling him to give the people of the HilRop a complete battery service.

RECREATION BALL LEAGUE

Want Eight Team for Church League—Girls' League Also Planned.

There will be another West Church Recreation Ball league again this year and it is hoped that at least an eight-team league may be organized. Any West Side church interested in recreation ball should call Mr. Waite at Adams 1853.

Last year the ball diamonds at McKinley playground were not finished soon enough to have the West Side players organized into a league, but this year the recreation department is planning to have a class A and class B independent recreation ball leagues. Any team wishing a franchise in these leagues should get in touch with Mr. Waite at Adams 2833.

The girls will also play ball this year and any girls' team wishing to enter a team in the girls' recreation ball league please call Elm St. Clair at the recreation department.

Anyone wishing permits to play tennis on any of the city's tennis courts are requested to call Miss Morris at the recreation department.

Mr. and Mrs. L. W. Spencer entertained at their home, 124 S. Oakley Ave., Sunday, for the following guests: Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Cornell and family, Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Cornell, Mrs. Mary McClaren, Miss Annie Cornell, Mr. Norman Fleming, Mr. and Mrs. Spencer and sons Jack and Lloyd, jr. The dinner was in honor of Mrs. Cornell, Miss Faye Cornell, Mr. Spencer and Mr. Fleming's birthdays.

The Sullivant Avenue branch of the W. C. T. U. are using the new character charts in teaching their young people. Last Thursday Mrs. William Horn spoke to a group of children who attended a birthday party at the home of Mrs. Jesse Shaver, 1562 Thomas Ave., in honor of her daughter Violet. The candy treat also harmonized with the charts. In this way each child learns to analyse its own actions by coloring the charts. Mrs. Nellie Fristoe assisted the hostess.

Frances Willard W. C. T. U. held its monthly meeting Wednesday at the home of Mrs. Alice Barker, 420 Clarendon Ave. Mrs. E. W. Mathews spoke on "Temperance and Missions."

Past Officers' Meeting

The Past Officers' club of Westwood Pythian Sisters will hold their meeting Friday evening, March 25, at the home of Mrs. Bert Loudenslager, 45 S. Terrace St.

The February meeting, held at the home of Mrs. John Miller, 104 N. Hague Ave., was election night, the following officers being elected: President, Mrs. Ora Dolby; vice president, Mrs. Mayer; secretary, Mrs. Chloe Hill; treasurer, Mrs. J. Bieber; press reporter, Mrs. Della Crawford. A social hour followed the business meeting and refreshments were served by the hostess.

The Fidelio class of Hillcrest Baptist church met at the home of Mrs. S. F. Fairchild on Eureka Ave, March 17, where a social and business meeting was held after devotional services conducted by Mrs. J. T. Miller. The class engaged in the discussion of topics which were of interest and for the development of their class and school. They adjourned to the home of Miss Armitha Smith, 22 Eldon Ave., where refreshments were served.

12 noon—Final adjournment.

The monthly meeting of the Democratic Women's club of the eleventh ward was held at the home of Mrs. Grover Amerine, 180 Binns Blvd., Monday evening at 8 o'clock.

Mrs. Lenore Roberts, 88 W. Park Ave., announces the marriage of her daughter, Miss Madeline Roberts, to Mr. Burton Moore, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Moore, West Jefferson, Ohio. The wedding took place at the home of the officiating minister, Rev. W. C. Hickey, pastor of the West Park Avenue Methodist Episcopal church, at 7 o'clock, Saturday evening, March 19. Mr. Moore and his bride will reside at 539 S. Park Ave.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry Slyh, 127 Highland Ave., entertained with a birthday dinner March 17, in honor of their son, Edward Slyh, 516 Midgard road. Those present were: Mr. and Mrs. Edward Slyh and son Robert, Mr. and Mrs. William Borden of Linworth, Miss Florence Bethard and the host and hostess, Mr. and Mrs. Slyh and daughter, Sarah Jane.

Mrs. Karl T. Webber, 2585 West Broad St., is taking reservations for the luncheon to be given, Friday, at the Southern hotel, by branches of the Columbus Needlework Guild.

Miss Marie Hughes Sheron, 67 S. Eureka Ave., entertained her Sunday school class with a St. Patrick party Wednesday evening, March 16. After the president, Miss Natalie Snider, finished with the business meeting they all kissed the Blarney stone and made a good wish, then St. Patrick games were played. At 9:30 old St. Patrick announced their lunch. Those present were: Katherine Hemmerly, Beulah Johnson, Natalie Snider, Katherine Koch, Marjorie Wishan, Dorothy Krinrel, Winifred Hiles, Helen Terry, Daisy Strausbury, Virginia Dodd, Mary Jane and Bob Sheron and Mrs. C. B. Sheron and hostess.

Group No. 1 of the Ladies' Aid society of Hoge Memorial church, Mrs. Latham chairman, will hold their last monthly and social meeting of this year at the home of Mrs. Lulu Lehman, 146 N. Burgess Ave., with Mrs. E. A. Judy assisting hostess. At this meeting the group will dissolve as the present group now, and be divided into various other groups for the coming year.

WHAT BUTTON?

The next time you happen to be playing "Button, button, who's got the button?" you probably can become the life of the party by retorting courteously, but with an air of superiority, "What button do you mean: fresh-water pearl, brass, celluloid, glass, vegetable ivory or galalith?"

There are buttons and buttons, the New York correspondent of the Philadelphia Public Ledger informs us. For example, there are no fewer than seventeen million gross of fresh-water pearl buttons made in the United States every year. Button makers tell us that everyone wears buttons. However, there is a sect in Lancaster County, Pennsylvania, that has not fallen under the spell.

The number of fresh-water pearl buttons made exceeds that of any other sort three times. The manufacturing center of these butons is Muscatine, Iowa. "It is in Muscatine because fate put it there; and therein lies a story," says the secretary of the Button Manufacturers' Association, which has offices in New York.

A button maker in Austria thought that there ought to be a field for his craft in America. "He came over. But he searched the regions surrounding New York, where he landed, in vain for the sort of mussel the shell of which produces buton material. He could find none.

"He went west—to Iowa—and earned a living as best he could. One day he went swimming in a river near Muscatine. As he waded ashore after his swim, his foot struck a sharp object and was cut. He reached down to get the offending object and come up with a mussel shell in his hand, the sort of mussel shell he had been seeking. Then and there he found an industry which has spread to other towns in the vicinity, and has grown from year to wear ever since. That was in 1886, and now the fresh-water pearl button is the button of the masses, so to speak."

Mussels do not supply all the button material used by the several hundred establishments turning out buttons in the United States. The nut of the tagua tree, which abounds in the swamps of South and Central America, produces the material that goes into what are known as "vegetable ivory" buttons.

Galalith buttons are made from milk, or rather from a by-product of it. The chemical process was originated in Central Europe and has come to be quite a factor in the industry. Rubber buttons have found a center down Long Island way and are growing in use. Then, too, there are others made of bone, horn, leather, hoof, glass, celluloid, wood, ivory, iron, steel and brass.

FUNERAL HOME

2431-33 SULLIVANT AVE. RANDOLPH 4314

We wish to announce the opening of our new Funeral Home. Having had fifteen years' experience in the profession, holding two state licenses, graduates from the Columbus school and licensed morticians, our motto is "Service." We have all the modern facilities.

When necessity requires us to perform the sensitive tasks of caring for a loved one who has passed away, you will find a spirit of service and friendly understanding in our work that helps in some slight way to lessen the burden of your loss.

Think of us as your friends to whom you can turn for assistance and sympathy in your hour of need.

Among the things that characterize our services are personal attention to every detail of the funeral arrangements, and little acts of thoughtfulness that only an experienced funeral director remembers to do.

By entrusting us with the entire conduct of the funeral, you are assured that there will be no confusion or embarrassments. Experience, tact and sympathetic understanding enable us to serve you to best advantage.

Isn't That House Beautiful?

We refer to your house that has been painted with our paints. Is it not beautiful in its glistening coat? Yes, and what's more it will wear well—we guarantee that. All our paints, oils, stains, varnishes and enamels are the best obtainable. That's your protection. Phone us.

The Sandman Story

EDA'S DREAM

Eda was very anxious to leave the farm and go into society when she grew older and she thought about it and wondered how it could be.

She thought it would be so lovely to have to do nothing at all, all the rest of her days, except to give orders. She grew so tired at times of the numbers of chores which were always coming up to be done. One night after Eda had gone to bed she was thinking about a wonderful future and planning her best make-believe plans when suddenly a little Fairy appeared.

"Hello, Eda," said the Fairy.

"Why, hello," said Eda.

"My name is Fairy Grant-Your-Wishes," said the Fairy, "and the Dreamland King and the Fairy Wondrous Secrets said you might want to ask me to grant you some wishes. Is there anything you wish?"

"Oh, Fairy," said Eda, "I would like to be in high society when I grow up and I'd even like to begin now."

So before Eda knew it she was with many little girls who were so beautifully dressed and they always had people about them, maids and governesses, and they couldn't do anything by themselves.

Eda wasn't used to that at all. She had always been used to having a lot of freedom and independence. And when she suggested that they all go barefoot everyone was horrified at her. They didn't know what to make of that at all. And, oh, Eda wondered after a time how she could ever stand the life even after she grew up.

For there were so many teas and card parties and luncheons and there were no picnics and no berry and nut hunts. The life now was all that Eda could possibly bear. How she did wish she hadn't asked Fairy Gran-Your-Wishes to grant such a silly wish.

One day she was talking to a lot of her new-found friends. They were all boasting of how rich their daddies were and of how famous they were and of their grandfathers and grandmothers.

They didn't quite understand how Eda was one of them in such an unexpected and unexplained fashion and they wanted to make sure that she really belonged.

So they began talking of their riches and of their fine aristocracy or ancestors, which showed that they didn't amount to much when they boasted so much.

"My father was the founder of a coaching club in the most fashionable city," said one as though that were of great historical importance.

"My grandfather was the founder of an automobile racing club and my grandmother's father was the one who originated riding crops now in use in all the smart riding clubs," said another.

"My grandfather was the brass tack king who made the great family fortune out of brass tacks," said a third.

"My father is known as the Curtain

"My Name is Fairy Grant-Your-Wishes."

Rod King," said a fourth, "and his father before him was famous for being the founder of the Tuesday Evening club dinners."

On they boasted of their relatives who rode along the best bridle paths in city parks and Eda thought it very strange that those who said they believed in a democracy should call all their rich relatives "Kings" when they became prosperous.

"And who was your father?" they asked her.

"He is really a king of the earth," Eda answered, and they all laughed and said, "A king of the earth; how could he be that?"

"He is a farmer," Eda went on, "and without farmers your fathers would never have been able to do anything, for the earth gives us what we eat and what we need. But while you would call my daddy a Farm King if you had him I just call him my dear farmer daddy and shall from now on, for I don't like society. I want to go back to the farm! I want to go where things are happy and simple and real."

And as she said this the children seemed to vanish and Fairy Grant-Your-Wishes had taken Eda back, and the whole long dream had only taken one night of real time. But, oh, how happy Eda was that no one had known she had ever deserted the farm and its dear people and its dear animals for what was so curiously thought to be famous society.

Wash Fabrics For Tot's Frocks Stress Both Plain and Prints

When winter begins its lingering farewell and signs of spring timidly appear, mother's fancy gaily turns to thoughts of sewing for the children. Yes "gaily" is a word well taken, for isn't it fun to make pretty clothes for little tots? Just in choosing the materials, there is a lot of joy. The very breath of spring is in the fresh ginghams, the crisp organdies, sheer swisses, and voiles which flaunt their gay colors from the counters of every washgoods section.

If one plans to decorate the kiddies' frocks with lots of handiwork, then of course, the plain solid colors are wanted and they are to be found in cotton broadcloths, pongees, fine sateens and linens—materials most suitable for early spring. Among the newest items is rayon alpaca—and a delightful fabric it is, never losing its silky sheen when laundered.

As to embroidery there is no end to the novel new ideas. Among the cleverest is that of working bright solid colored fabrics which launder with gay woolen yarn, in cuning flower clusters. Another interesting trend in decorative handiwork is to combine conventional hemstitching or faggoting with natural flower designing. The picture shows the idea. Not only does this look lovely on plain backgrounds, but done in crosswork stitch on gingham checks for the hemline and the upright stem-like lines, the effect is unique, especialy if daisies done in "lazy-daisy" stitch are added.

Most dresses for the very littlestots subscribe to the full-from-the-shoulder line, achieved through plaits or shirring or smocking. Sleeves for the most part stress the little puff. The sleeveless armhole is forecast for prints and ginghams as well as sheer frocks.

Most unusual are the new prints and altogether fascinating. Printed pique and linen prints make up effectively and are very adaptable for children's dresses. Prints in Rumanian colors are especially favored for little folks' clothes, and printed sateens are among the seasons' favorite fabrics. Indeed the list of suitable materials for children's wear might be continued indefinitely.

The Double Deception

By MRS. E. O. CARLSTON

"How did you do it?" one of the girls asked her when she entered the cloak room.

"What are you talking about?" Norma asked.

"Don't pretend you don't know. I saw you riding with Mr. Allison last night."

"It was raining—" Norma began.

"He'd let us walk to Rome in a cloudburst rather than offer any assistance. It gets me how these babies fresh from the country can land such a man, when we know the tricks and can't do it," another girl cut in.

"Better be still; she will tell on you," Miss Blane said sarcastically.

Norma was disappointed, as she had no wish to incur the enmity of the other girls because Warren had shown so slight a preference for her.

"Oh, come out of it, all of you. If you want him so bad, help yourselves. I haven't gone man-crazy yet."

This small disagreement was like many others between the girls—easily started, quickly forgotten.

Warren tried to avoid showing partiality at the office, toward Norma, but he frequently called on his father's relatives, and always made sure Norma would be there before he started in that direction. The young people soon found that they had formed a lasting friendship. They enjoyed many interesting programs together at the theatre and on occasions, and were frequently seen together at parties, etc.

Warren soon openly showed his liking for Norma at the office. When he thought of something he particularly wished to say to her, he said it.

"If the other girls weren't so flighty-minded, I might have liked them. It's their own fault I can't bear to even talk to them," he thought.

The autumn and early winter passed by, and the Christmas season was drawing near.

"What do you want for Christmas?" Warren asked Norma one evening when Mr. and Mrs. Wendall had been considerate enough to take their children to a movie, which left Norma and Warren alone.

"I haven't thought much about it," Norma said.

"Can't you think of something you would like to have that you can't buy with the salary I pay?" he asked urgently.

"I'm very well satisfied with my salary."

"You are the first girl I ever knew that wasn't a gold-digger, unless it was Beatrice Morgan," he added in an undertone which Norma heard.

"Beatrice Morgan?" she said. "Do you know her?"

"Yes. She and I became acquainted at college. We did not attend the same one, but the two schools were close together, and we used to go places together occasionally. Are you the girl she wanted me to find?"

"I suppose I am, though what she could possibly have wanted, I do not know."

"I think she wanted you to go to California with her and Mr. Morgan," Warren said. He did not state in what capacity Norma's services were needed. Norma wondered if any man knowing both Beatrice Morgan and herself, could do other than prefer Beatrice, who could boast of good parentage, while she, Norma Wentworth, had never even seen her father. Warren's next remark dispelled her doubts.

"Between you and me, I have seen girls I like better than Beatrice, one in particular."

"I'll never tell Beatrice," Norma promised.

"You don't even ask who the girl is," Warren said, ignoring Norma's promise.

"Curiosity never troubled me very much."

"The girl is Miss Norma Wentworth," Warren acknowledged.

"I am surprised to hear that."

"No, you are not, little girl. I haven't tried to conceal the fact at all."

"Probably I am a little slow to notice things."

"I disagree with you again."

Just then, Mr. and Mrs. Wendall and their children were heard on the front porch, and the subject of conversation between Norma and Warren was turned to the latest polar expedition.

CHAPTER X

The Western Valley Limited swiftly wound its way over high ridges and through narrow mountain passes. The grandeur of the scene was beautiful. On one side could be seen dense forests, which covered the steep sides of the mountain; on the other side, in the valley, the river carrying the water supplied by mountain streams wended its way. Natural bridges, deep canyons with here and there a log cabin made a picture which was wonderful to view.

"Isn't it beautiful!" Helen Call said enthusiastically to Beatrice Morgan. The girls sat side by side on a leather covered seat in the middle of the coach of the train. Mr. Morgan was in the smoking car. In response to Helen's exclamation, Beatrice replied.

"It is nice to look at, but I shall be glad when we reach San Francisco. This continual riding is getting monotonous to me."

Just then, Mr. Morgan returned from the "smoker." A young man was with him. At first, the girls did not recognize him.

"I believe it's Bill Harvey," Helen said, in a low tone to her friend.

"I wonder if he is following us," Beatrice said.

"Quite likely. I used to think that you and Bill were quite fond of one another. Then Warren Allison appeared on the scene and Bill was forgotten."

Beatrice could not reply, as Mr. Morgan and Bill were within hearing distance. The young people exchanged greetings.

"When did you become acquainted with Mr. Harvey?" Beatrice questioned her father.

"About fifteen minutes ago. He said something about the college at Eastfield and I told him that my daughter had received her education at the Wayland's school. He asked me what your name was, and when I told him, he said he wanted to see you."

Beatrice was surprised at the change that had come to Bill Harvey in so short a time. When they had been intimate friends he was nothing but an easy-going boy, very different from the man who now stood before her. It seemed that he had become several years older in the few weeks' time that had elapsed since they had last met.

"Where are you bound for?" she asked him, after a short interval of silence.

"San Francisco."

"So are we."

"I knew it," he admitted, "but I supposed you were there before this. Imagine my surprise when I learned you were on this train."

"Did you come out here for a vacation or for business purposes?"

"Both," he replied not caring to go into details.

The following afternoon they reached their destination. Mr. Morgan engaged rooms for himself and the two girls at the Lincoln hotel. Bill Harvey went to the home of a relative, who lived in that city. As it was now the middle of the summer, and Mr. Morgan felt that his business had already been delayed long enough for the benefit of his spoiled daughter, he began work at once. Beatrice and Helen soon became familiar with the town, and almost every afternoon found them at the beach or some place of amusement.

Bill Harvey was doing his best to regain the place he had once had in Beatrice's affections. She was aware of his motive, but could not forget the delightful hours she had spent with Warren. When Bill invited her to go to the theatre with him one evening, she felt inclined to refuse, but on second thought accepted.

"I don't imagine Warren will deprive himself of the society of other girls for my sake," she reasoned, "so why should I deny myself?"

Before a months time had elapsed, Beatrice was wondering which one of the two men held the highest place in her thoughts. She could not decide, so just allowed matters to drift along for the time being, at least. Helen spent most of her evenings alone in her room at the hotel. Beatrice and Bill had often asked her to accompany them when they went to places of amusement in the evening, but Helen, having a dislike for being an "extra girl," declined their invitations.

"I am going to bring my cousin over some evening," Bill told her. "He's a mighty nice chap, and I know you would like one another's company."

"Please don't do that," Helen said pleadingly.

"Why?"

"Oh, I don't particularly care to have any company," she said.

Beatrice, who had just come into the room unnoticed, heard the conversation and had a faint suspicion of the reason.

"You haven't got George Wyman on the brain that bad, have?" she questioned.

"Don't make guesses," was Helen's indirect answer.

"I'm willing to bet half of my dad's fortune that I am right," Beatrice insisted.

"That would be foolish."

Unable to obtain a satisfactory reply from her friend, Beatrice and Bill went away, leaving Helen to spend another evening alone. The following day, Beatrice spent several hours in the downtown stores, and when she returned to the hotel, the clerk handed her a letter. Beatrice noticed the peculiar mode of address on the envelope. Small, neatly printed letters were used. She had never heard of the town or city indicated by the post mark. Anxious to know the contents of the mysterious envelope, she hurried to her room, and tore it open. The short letter inside was neither dated nor signed; and the same odd looking printing that had been used on the envelope was used on the sheet of paper folded inside. There was no salutation. It merely read:

"For your future welfare and happiness, do not allow your friendship with Warren Allison to become serious."

That was all. Though very brief, it conveyed the desired impression. Beatrice was not in the habit of receiving anonymous letters, and this message worried her more than a little. She decided to show it to her father, but before she reached his room, an idea came to her. She remembered the first and only letter she received from Warren; thought of how Mrs. Wentworth had started at the sight of the name in the upper left-hand corner of the envelope; how she had hastened to her room, followed by Beatrice, who, unknown to Mrs. Wentworth, had watched her movements.

"She is the person who wrote this letter. Wonder what she would say if I should write to her informing her that I received her letter. Don't believe I will though. When we go back home, I will steal into her room and see if I can find that photograph at which she was looking so intently that day."

Beatrice wondered again and again what the mystery was all about, and determined to learn the truth some way. She did not mention the incident to anyone, feeling that she could look into the matter better without possible interference. She wondered why Warren did not write to her. To be sure he had not asked her to correspond with him, and the one letter he had sent her was rather impersonal. She did not have much time to ponder over the situation, as it would soon be time for Bill to call for her.

STILL AT SEA AS REGARDS STATE BLDG.

Republican Caucus Favors New State Capitol Instead of State Office Building.

Some Interesting Early History of Ohio State Capitols and Early Assemblies.

Just what the state legislature is inclined to do about providing needed office space to house the various state departments still remains a much of a mystery as it has been for several years past. However, they do agree on one thing and that is that provision should be made for housing these various departments in one building for the convenience of those having business to transact with the state.

Several sites have been considered for the erection of an office building for this purpose, the best and most logical location undoubtedly being the plan for including the office building in the civic center group along the river front.

However, now comes some agitation for a new state capitol building replacing the present one. This proposition was endorsed by a caucus of Republican members of the house recently, who also endorsed a proposal to levy a general property tax to finance its erection, consisting of a levy of two-tenths of a mill for two years which would make available $5,000,000.

While our legislative members are pondering this question, it may be interesting to some to know a bit of the early history of Ohio's capitol buildings and general assembly conventions.

The first state house was erected in Chillicothe in 1801, being the first public edifice in the state to be built of stone. In the year 1810 the capitol was removed to Zanesville, where it remained for two years, Chillicothe again being selected as the Capitol City. In October, 1810, the state offices were moved to Columbus, and on December 2nd of that year the General Assembly met for the first time in the new state house [illegible] August [illegible].

The Hilltop Library will be held Friday afternoon, April 15, at the library over the Hilltop bank.

[illegible] ing new officers of the

and south in High street and fifty feet east and west along State street. State offices were established in a building to the north of the state house, a two-story structure of brick, 26 by 120 feet on High street. The old state house was destroyed by fire on Feb. 1, 1852, and the state office building was taken down in 1857.

The first General Assembly to convene in Ohio, then a territory, met for organization in Cincinnati on Sept. 24, 1799. The population of the city at that time was 750 inhabitants. The legislature adjourned on Dec. 18th, after enacting 20 bills into laws. The second General Assembly met in Chillicothe on Nov. 23, 1801. The enumeration taken by the government the previous year gave Ohio a population of 45,028. Ohio was admitted to the union and became a state on March 1, 1803, the General Assembly meeting and organizing at that time.

Huge Assets Back of Insurance Policies

Invested assets back of the life insurance policies issued by United States insurance companies have now reached $12,850,000,000, and are increasing at the rate of more than $1,000,000,000 a year, Fred H. Ecker, vice president of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Co., told the recent convention of the Association of Life Insurance Presidents.

"Mortgage loans on city properties," said Mr. Ecker, "furnish a striking illustration of the way in which life insurance funds keep pace with the necessities of the investing public. The tremendous increase in building from 1921 to 1926 is reflected in the increase in city loans from $1,253,000,000 to $3,123,000,000.

"Loans for housing and business purposes in cities are not only a necessity but also furnish a means by which labor may be employed; and, indirectly, the means by which a market may be furnished for products of the agriculture community."

How It Started

By JEAN NEWTON

THE MINSTREL

One conception of a minstrel today is a blackface comedian, and accordingly, the far-famed Dan Emmett, said to have been the first man to use burnt cork on his face, has been called the inventor of minstrelsy.

But minstrels existed long before the days of Dan Emmett. Their origin is written in their name, for "minstrel" comes from the old French "menestrel," which goes back to the Latin "ministrelis," meaning servant. And the first minstrels were of the class of musical entertainers attached to medieval households, particularly those who sang to the accompaniment of the harp or other instrument.

Later, the name came to be applied to street singers and traveling troubadours of whom frequent mention can be found in contemporary literature. For instance, in a Flemish book entitled "Adventures of the Fox Rheinhardt," written in the Twelvth century by one Willem, we read of minnestreels" or troubadours.

Anatole France refers to Homer as a minstrel who traveled to the military camps to entertain the soldiers with his epic songs. But the first valid minstrels and the first to answer to that name were the medieval troubadours of whom the burnt-cork gentry are a comparatively modern variation.

Sure enough St. Patrick drove out the snakes and to keep up the custom and recall "Ye olden days" we have our snakes appearing again.

Last Thursday on the day when green hats and neckties were all the style, we were sure of the arrival of spring and on second thought remembered the story of St. Patrick and the snakes, for sure enough, there, lying on the grass of the front lawn was our first wriggly visitor coiled up as if enjoying the famous day.

Everybody's Night Glenwood League

"What the Church Means to Me" will be the topic for the Glenwood Epworth League next Sunday evening at 6:30. The discussion, to be led by Miss Bernola Woodyard is the third of a series of six meetings being conducted by the first department of the league.

A very interesting musical program has been provided for the occasion. A vocal solo will be given by Mr. Pearl Nagle. A unique feature will be the Boy's Harmonica club of Highland Avenue school. This is "Everybody's Night" and everyone is sincerely and cordially invited. Don't forget Glenwood Methodist church at 6:30 sharp.

GYMNASTIC EXHIBITION

Highland Junior High Boys Will Give Annual Physical Demonstration, Friday Evening.

The boys of Highland Junior High school will give their annual gymnastic exhibition, Friday evening, at the Glenwood Shelter house. The exhibition will begin at 8 o'clock.

Boys of the 7B grade will put on a flag drill, while there will be a pyramid number, which will require 65 boys to complete. One of the features of the exhibition will be a fancy drill by 32 upper classmen, and which has required untiring work on the part of the boys to perfect.

The final number of the program will be a cage ball game between two groups, each composed of 50 boys. This game is very exciting to the spectators, as well as to the players.

After spending a week at home, Evelyn Knox, returned to Portsmouth, Sunday afternoon, where she is teaching in the city schools. It was the school's spring vacation

Will Assist in Evangelistic Campaign at Hoge Memorial

REV. WILLIAM HUTCHISON, D.D.

The Hilltop has become a favorite spot in our great city. Many new families are coming up here because they realize its many advantages. We need the help of those who accept these advantages, such as ours on the Hilltop, to maintain the churches. It is hoped that many will find an opportunity in these services for the community good-will. It is further hoped that some who have become careless, will be aroused to their duty to God and His son Jesus Christ, for it is only as we render to God the things that belong to Him, that we are likely to render to Caesar the things that belong to Him.

Dr. Hutchison will preach on the following themes: Monday, April 4, "The Challenge of Christ's Program"; Tuesday, April 5, "The Christ Nobody Conceals"; Wednesday, April 6, "Christ's Cross and Ours"; Thursday, April 7, "The Disciple That Lost His Lord"; Friday, April 8, "God's Gift of Love."

Lenten evangelistic services will be conducted each evening at 7:30, from April 3 to April 17. The pastor, H. C. Hutchison, will be assisted by his brother, Wm. J. Hutchison, D.D., Boulevard church, Cleveland, Ohio. The special music will be in charge of W. H. Jones, director, and Miss Margaret Andrix, organist.

It was to be expected that the "after-war days" would be disordered, but few anticipated the times would be as perilous as they have become, or dreamed that the American people would be so lawless, pleasure-loving and money mad. We are certainly facing conditions that cannot continue without bringing disaster.

Leaders in all walks of life, such as employers of labor, bankers, statesmen and ministers, unite in declaring that the strain can only be relieved by a revival of old-fashioned religion. There is no time like the Easter season for such a renewal of the nation's religious life.

Mr. and Mrs. Henry O. Kuch, 465 S. Warren Ave., announce the marriage of their daughter, Flora, to Mr. Mark A. Hanna, son of Mr. and Mrs. Howard H. Hanna, 324 W. Third Ave. The ceremony was performed August 12 in Covington, Ky. Mr. Hanna is the assistant manager of the F. W. Woolworth store. The couple will make their home at 465 S. Warren Ave., temporarily.

Just-a-Mere club gave a card party Wednesday evening, March 23, at the home of Mrs. H. C. Shonting, 148 S. Terrace St. Mrs. Lucille Rowley was assisting hostess.

Jesse L. Glick, 17, son of Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Glick, 62 S. Warren Ave., is confined to his bed with pneumonia. His temperature was very high Wednesday evening.

School Orchestra Plays for Faculty

Falls Down Shaft

Credit Pennell, 37, 170 North Chase Ave., a parcels-post truck driver, suffered a broken collarbone and was bruised, Monday, when he fell several feet down an elevator shaft at the main postoffice.

Sunset Literary club, at a meeting Wednesday, March 23, at the home of Mrs. O. V. Williams, 53 S. Richardson Ave., elected the following officers: Mrs. Charles W. Lentz, 25 N. Harris Ave., president; Mrs. William H. Mann, 3103 Ellis place, first vice president; Mrs. O. V. Metzger, 105 S. Harris Ave., second vice president; Mrs. F. A. Gemeinhardt, 2037 W. Broad St., recording secretary; Mrs. L. N. Berle, 324 N. Burgess Ave., treasurer, and Mrs. R. E. Hecker, 227 Eldon Ave., corresponding secretary. Assisting Mrs. Williams was Mrs. F. P. Ireland. The speaker was Mrs. T. D. Fletcher, who discussed current events. Sunset club will hold its annual luncheon April 13.

NEW PASTOR FOR HILLCREST

Rev. Hughes Will Take Up Duties at Baptist Church the First of June.

Rev. John A. Hughes of Chicago has accepted the call extended to him by the Hillcrest Baptist congregation to succeed Rev. E. E. McFarlane, and will take up his new duties about June 1. Rev. Hughes visited Columbus on March 13 and preached two sermons.

Rev. Mr. Hughes has been pastor of Temple Baptist church since July, 1925, and at the present time is engaged in a campaign to raise funds for a new pipe organ for the edifice. He will finish this campaign before taking up his new pastorate.

He is a graduate of William Jewell college and of the University of Chicago Divinity school. He came to Chicago from a pastorate in Mexico, Mo., which he had held for seven and a half years.

Rev. Mr. Hughes was born in Chillicothe, Mo. His work at Mexico won him recognition which resulted in the call to the Chicago pastorate. His family consists of a wife and two small children.

Mr. and Mrs. H. O. Koonts, 155 N. Harris Ave., announce the engagement and approaching marriage of their daughter, Minerva, to Mr. Maurice L. Sweet, son of Mrs. Clara Sweet, London, Ohio. The wedding will take place in June.

Musicale by Students

The Hilltop School of Music will hold its next musicale in the social room of the Baptist church, Eldon and Broad, next Monday, April 4, at 8 o'clock. This is the eleventh of a series which have proven to be most delightful affairs. There will be readings and violin and piano solos. There will be no admission and the public will be welcome.

Mrs. L. N. Neff, 134 N. Roys Ave., who recently underwent a serious operation at Grant hospital, is reported as convalescing satisfactorily.

Mr. and Mrs. Dale Schwartz, 421 S. Terrace St., announce the birth of a son, March 19, at St. Carmel hospital.

Missionary Meeting.

Fifteen women represented the Hillcrest Baptist church at the semi-annual meeting of the Foreign Missionary society at the South Avenue Baptist church, Tuesday, March 29. The meeting lasted all day and luncheon was served in the basement of the church.

The meeting was presided over by Mrs. Fullerton, president of the organization. The main speaker was Mrs. Bailey, just recently returned, from Assam, in North East India, after a 16-year stay. She has eight children, four of which are studying in Denison university.

INJURIES ARE FATAL

Hurt While Summoning Aid, Motorcycle Cop Dies in Hospital, Tuesday Afternoon.

Motorcycle Officer Horace D. Elliott, 118 Dana Ave., died at 5:45 p. m. Tuesday, in Mt. Carmel hospital, from a skull fracture, suffered Monday when his motorcycle skidded into a safety zone standard at Broad and Sandusky Sts.

He was injured while en route to summon help for a fellow officer, John L. Garner, 20, 486 S. Terrace Ave., who had been hurt when his motorcycle collided with an auto at Central Ave. and Broad St.

Garner is in Grant hospital recovering from his injuries, which are not considered serious, and it is expected he will be able to leave his bed near the end of the week.

At the home of Mrs. Harry C. Henslee, 1482 Sullivant Ave., a triple birthday celebration in honor of Mrs. Henslee, Mrs. Dominic Catanese and Mrs. Florence Thomas was held on Tuesday, March 22, from 10 a. m. to 4 p. m. The home was very beautifully decorated with roses, fern and sweet peas. An appropriate musical program was arranged by Mrs. Florence Gump, pianist and songs, Miss Myra Young, violinist, and Mrs. Ruth Oliam, cornet. A lovely luncheon was served, after which the surprise came when their friends presented them with presents. Evangelist W. Loveless of London, Ohio, gave a very appropriate talk for the occasion. The following guests were present: Mrs. English Lauer and son, Paul, Mrs. William Longshore and daughter, Ruth, Mrs. George Ruder and son, George jr., Mrs. Thomas Paine, Mrs. Charles Combs, Mrs. Jessie Weiss, Mrs. Anna Sider, Mrs. Ray Taylor and daughter, Ruth, Miss Lena Dalton, Mrs. Bessie Shaffer, Miss Anna Louise Ollom, Mr. Frank McNabb, Mr. H. 1000 PEOPLE WILL VISIT 6500 HOMES

Complete Community Survey to be Made in Connection with Evangelistic Crusade.

The Modern Evangelistic Crusade, launched at the Glenwood Methodist church, last Sunday, under the leadership of Rev. P. Raymond Powers of Chicago, is a new combined plan of modern Evangelism that conserves all the values of the old with new and unique methods and sets the entire church to the task of reaching the whole community by methods that Jesus taught and practiced.

One of the special features is a complete community survey put on by the entire membership of the church teams of two each under the direction of divisional directors, district chairmen and section captains. This organization of approximately 1000 people in teams will survey the entire community on next Sunday afternoon, between the hours of 2 and 4. This will mean that the 500 teams or 1000 members will visit 6500 homes and interview from 20,000 to 25,000 people for the purpose of discovering the people without a present relation to some church and of helping them relate themselves to the church of their choice.

All the workers are instructed to make the friendly visitation and record such information as is given by the homes visited, and when the cards are analyzed and classified, all members and preferences for other churches will be turned to the respective pastor at once, with the thought of helping these churches to interest new people preferring their churches.

These Crusades have been conducted by Rev. Mr. Powers in cities from the size of Chicago down to small communities where all the various denominations are represented and in the several years of these Crusades, not a single protest or objection has ever been registered from pastors or members, officially or otherwise.

From all indications the people of the Hilltop will appreciate the friendly visitation of the part of the Glenwood people, as their only purpose is to create the spirit of good-will and fellowship by a call in the name of the Christ and church. And incidently help the people to find and enjoy a spiritual home in some church.

Rev. P. Raymond Powers is pleasing the large congregations with his great gospel messages, that are free from sensationalism, slang and criticism. His pleasing personality, natural wit and wholesome humor make his appeals highly entertaining as well as inspirational. His faith in God and confidence in people are so imparted to others that he is truly a Crusader for Christ. His positive message is simply an interpretation of Christ in the light of modern needs.

The subjects for the week are as follows: Thursday evening, "The Lost Christ in a Lost World"; Friday evening "What Must the Church Do to Be Saved?"; Sunday morning, "God's Call and Our Answer"; evening, "A City on the Auction Block." There will be in addition to the regular chorus in the evening, a special chorus of 100 men to sing a special number, directed by the Evangelist.

Monday evening, "Acid Test of a Christian"; Tuesday evening, "The New Woman of America and Her New World," and Wednesday evening, "The Price of a Modern Man."

Some other pleasing features are an organ recital from 7:10 to 7:30 each evening, while three special prayer groups are in devotions.

Mrs. Elmer Houdasheit and son Kenneth of Cincinnati, are guests at the home of Mrs. Houdasheit's parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. L. Ogg, 135 N. Warren Ave. They will remain in the city two weeks, while Kenneth is taking treatments for rheumatism.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Biggert and Mrs. S. G. Feder of West Jefferson, and Mrs. M. H. Midgley, Marion, Ohio, were entertained at dinner, Sunday, at the home of the Misses Lulu and Margaret Renner, 2021 W. Broad St.

Mr. and Mrs. John A. Geyer, 227 N. Warren Ave., announce the engagement of their daughter, Edna S., to Mr. John P. Ranke, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Ranke, sr., of Grove City, Ohio. The wedding is to take place in the near future.

The marriage of Miss Anna L. Bratt, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Bratt, 22 N. Oakley Ave., to Mr. Charles W. Work, son of Mr. and Mrs. William G. Work, 140 N. Roys Ave., was solemnized Wednesday, March 30, in Dayton, by Rev. C. S. Turley, former pastor of Glenwood Methodist Episcopal church.

The law of compensation holds in regard to earthquakes. Although the earthquake in Santa Barbara, California, in the summer of 1925, left great property damage, it has caused as a result of an increased flow of underground springs, the waters of which are rich in minerals and are of great medicinal value. Japanese earthquakes have unearthed valuable ore deposits not known before.

Girls' Basketball

The Girl's Junior Recreation league, composed of five teams, played their last round Wednesday evening, March 8, at West Market Hall.

This league was organized primarily to take care of the younger girls and all who witnessed these contests will attest to the rapid progress made by them.

The championship was won by the Pioneers who proved themselves real champions throughout the season.

The league standing follows:

Team	Won	Lost	Pct.
Pioneers	4	0	1000
Holy Family No. 1	3	1	.750
Questions	2	2	.500
Holy Family No. 2	1	3	.250

ANNOUNCEMENT

Effective April 1st we will own and operate the Eureka Avenue Lumber Company in Columbus. It will be operated as The Eureka Avenue Lumber Co., division of the Potter Lumber & Supply Company.

Mr. M. Stanley Acree will continue in full charge and plans to keep the same organization, so there will be no change in policy.

We expect to add some new sheds and a railroad switch through the yard, which will faciliate the handling of building materials, and make this one of the most economically operated yards in Columbus.

The addition of this yard to our present organization enables us to get some favorable advantages in quantity buying, which we can pass on to our customer.

We fully appreciate that if we succeed, we must give Honest Values, and Real Service, and this is the basis on which we solicit your Business.

The Easter Bonnet Registers Compose of Black and White

That the Easter bonnet will be largely a matter of black-and-white, so as to enter into the scheme of the mode, is a foregone conclusion. The new hats give every evidence that milliners are making it a point to feature stunning black-and-white head wear.

The collection of smart spring millinery in this group presents a varied and fascinating black-and-white program. A notable form of trimming this season is all-over applique. This idea is handsomely demonstrated in the first hat which shows white satin scroll-like motifs on a cunning black felt shape.

Black velvet, in graceful leaves and figures, is applied all over a white bangkok for the next hat which bears the message of wider brims. It is said that black on white will be featured throughout millinery for summer. One charming effect promised is thin black lace stretched over a foundation of white straw.

Paris sends over many hats with a charming model at the top to the right in the picture, for the crown of which velvet is the chosen medium. Black embroidery on white crepe for the wide headbands plays a decorative part in keeping with the black-and-white vogue.

Superbly tailored is the model in the lower left corner. This creation is of black pedaline braid and white kid stitched in black and ornamented with ivory pins.

Yes, larger brims are coming in and the hat of black milan, black moire silk, piped and faced with white shown in the group is a forerunner of the vogue which is "on the way."

The Church with a Community Program Invites You

The Double Deception

By MRS. E. O. CARLSTON

He arrived in less than a half-hour, and to her surprise, when they left the hotel, he led her toward a car which was standing in the parking zone near the hotel. Heretofore, they had been using the city street cars as a means of transportation. Bill started the car, and they were soon riding through the streets and avenues to the open country beyond.

"This is a surprise to me," Beatrice said joyfully. "When did you buy it?"

"Four weeks ago," he answered.

"And this is the first time you have used it?" she questioned.

"Yes, I wanted to see if you meant to be nice to me for friendship's sake, before telling you I had purchased a car," Bill said frankly.

"You found out, didn't you?"

"I certainly did," he said, happily.

They were silent for a few minutes. Then Bill resumed conversation.

"I have often wondered why you would not accept that ring I gave you. I formed my opinion at the time, which I then thought was correct. Could it be possible that I was mistaken?"

"What was your opinion?"

"I thought you wanted a more expensive ring than I could then afford to give you."

Beatrice colored, an unusual thing for her, but Bill knew he had guessed the truth.

"You acknowledged that you cared for me. If you really had loved me, I don't believe you would have refused the ring I bought for you," he said, determined to learn the entire truth.

"I was 'bawled out' once for that," Beatrice said, almost angrily. "Why did you tell your troubles to Warren Allison?"

It was now Bill's turn to feel embarrassed. He finally did:

"Because just then, when you had disappointed me, I did not have a very good opinion of anyone belonging to your sex. I felt that I must tell someone."

Beatrice did not blame him, as she remembered times when she had confided in Helen to relieve her troubles.

"I have the ring with me that I offered you," Bill said eagerly. "Will you wear it now?"

Beatrice did not know how to answer him. She thought of Warren.

"Which one do I like best?" she asked herself, but was unable to decide. Finally, she said:

"I want to be real sure this time, Bill. All I can promise you is this: I will wear the ring on my right hand for a few months, just to prove to you that I have changed my mind about the material value of things. If, at the end of that time, I can give you a favorable answer—" She stopped, and he supplied the remainder of the sentence.

"I may place it on the third finger of your left hand? That makes me happier than anything ever did," he said, boyishly, "and I hope you decide to keep the ring."

The last month of the summer vacation passed quickly. Mr. Morgan, who had wound up his business affairs in California suggested that they return north. Bill Harvey came to talk to Beatrice one day, wearing a look of disappointment on his face, which, although the girl did not know it, was really affected.

"I've brought some bad news, so I may as well spill it," he said abruptly. "Had to sell my car this morning, because I needed money. Are you still willing that our agreement should stand?"

"I have given you my word, Bill, and will not change it—that is, unless you want me to," she added quickly.

"Want you to? I should think not," he said, and added impulsively:

"Beatrice, why is it that you want to wait until after we have returned North before giving me a definite answer?" He looked at her keenly. "Is it because you want to see Warren Allison first, so that you can decide which one of us you like the best?"

He saw instantly that he had guessed correctly, and was half sorry that he had encouraged the little plot Warren had suggested, "to bring Miss Morgan down a few notches."

"When do you return North?" he asked.

"In a week or ten days from now, I think."

"I wish I could wait until that time, myself, but I find it necessary to return immediately, as I will have to stick to business closer than ever now."

"When are you going to start?" Beatrice asked.

"On the nine fifty-five tonight," he said. "I am going straight through to Massachusetts without stopping any place longer than is absolutely necessary to make my connections. I shall write you often, and hope to hear from you frequently."

A month from the day that this conversation took place, Beatrice and her father had returned home, and Helen continued the last part of her journey alone. Mrs. Wentworth had arrived home from her vacation a few days before Beatrice and Mr. Morgan, greatly to the girl's disappointment. It would be harder to search for the mysterious photograph with the owner of it in the house.

CARDS OF THANKS.

We wish to extend our heartfelt thanks to the relatives, the many, many friends and our dear neighbors for the kindness and sympathy shown us at the death of our beloved wife and mother, Mrs. Clara S. Bretton and infant son. Also Rev. Barber for the consoling words spoken during our sad hours, and the beautiful music rendered by Mr Allison and little daughter, Mary Esther, and Robert Morris chapter No. 372. Also for the many beautiful floral offerings. The Schoedinger Co. for their efficient services.
E. E. BRETTON AND SON VIRGIL.
MRS. M. J. REESE.

We wish to extend our sincerest thanks to our many friends and neighbors for their kindness and expressions of sympathy during the illness and death of Mrs. Wm. M. Ferguson.
THE FAMILY.

We wish to thank our friends and neighbors for the beautiful flowers and kindness shown us at the death of our father and grandfather, Mr. Williams Cox. Also Rev. Kritz of the Home Community church for his consoling words, and folks of the church.
MR. AND MRS. CHAUNCY MYLERS AND FAMILY

OBITUARY.

On the morning of March 24th 1927 Mrs. Clara S. Bretton [illegible] E. Bretton and [illegible] A few minutes later fell asleep in Jesus, to wake no more in this life, but to enter a brighter and better world. Her life on earth was a life of sacrifice and service, living for others. She is happy in Heaven with her Savior, where all is peace and joy. She leaves to mourn her loss a kind and loving husband, a son Virgil, age 10 years a little infant son [illegible] Mrs. Bretton was born [illegible] Ohio. She was [illegible] Lincoln, Kansas; a brother, Robert Reselle Agin of Columbus, Ohio, and many, many friends and relatives, so deeply grieved. She was a member of the Baptist church [illegible] years of age, also a member of Robert Morris chapter of Eastern Star. Those from a distance were her sister Mrs. Mount Reese and daughter Evelyn of Russel, Kan.; her aunts, Mrs. Arthur Love of Pittsburgh, Pa.; Mrs. J. L. Graham of Irwin, Pa.; Mr. Bretton's sister, Mrs. Laura Fox of Neola, Ore. [illegible] Mr. Albert Bretton and wife of Kansas [illegible] Mr. and Mrs. A. M. Bretton of Pa. [illegible] and many cousins from different parts of the state.

EXPECT GREAT RESULTS FROM M. E. CRUSADE

Sermons Free From Controversial and Speculative Matters.

The Evangelistic Crusade at Glenwood church under the direction of the Rev. P. Raymond Powers is swinging along in a way that promises great success for this effort.

The first week, though given quite largely to the details of organization, was marked also by a constantly growing interest in the meetings which are held each evening at 7:30.

Mr. Powers is showing himself as a master in his chosen task. His sermons are free from merely speculative and controversial matters and are directed toward the practical problems of life of today and are uttered in the terms of today's thinking. Whether challenging to serious thinking or provoking to laughter Mr. Power's utterances carry conviction by the very sincerity of the preacher's sympathy and desire to win people to Christ and to service for his kingdom.

The special feature of last Sunday's program was the religious census. One of the results revealed by the census was the surprisingly few families on the Hilltop which were not in some way affiliated with some religious group. There are thousands, however, who are not yet affiliated with any Hilltop church or who have never made a definite profession of religion. The almost universal courtesy with which the hundreds of visitors were received indicated an appreciation of the friendly interest extended to them. Many expressed the feeling that a more frequent visitation on the part of the churches would be of special value in a community which is growing as fast as the Hilltop.

On account of school activites a change in the week's program has been made and Thursday evening will be "Community Night" and the theme for Mr. Power's sermon will be "A Crusade in Action. Friday evening will be "Young People's Night" and the theme will be "The Difference Tomorrow." Special reservations will be made for young people's groups and a record attendance is anticipated.

Dr. and Mrs. C. B. Nessley, 294 S. Central Ave., announce the marriage, April 3, of their daughter, Kathryn, to Mr. Richard H. Hunter, 165 E. Lakeview Ave. The bride, a graduate of the class of 1924 of Denison university, is a teacher at the Franklin Junior high school. Mr. Hunter, a graduate of Ohio State university, class of 1922, and a member of Sigma Alpha Epsilon fraternity is associated with the Armstrong Cork and Insulation company.

Confirmation Service.

Confirmation services will be held at the Hilltop Lutheran church next Sunday morning at 10:30 o'clock. A class of eight young people will be confirmed, the pastor of the church preaching to the class and then parents and sponsors. The following young people are enrolled in the class: Gertrude Alford, Kathryn Hackman, Frances Reichel, Juanita Adamson, Edward Weisenberger, jr., Norman Wintermeyer, Howard Hoffman and Robert Byerly. It will be a public service. Special music furnished by the choir.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Winner (Margaret Borland), 84 E. Ogden Ave., announce the birth of a little son, Tuesday, April 5.

The L. C. T. class of the Hillcrest Baptist church will hold their regular monthly business and social meeting Thursday evening, April 7, at the home of Mrs. Fred Cruise, 295 N. Ogden Ave. Assisting hostesses are Mrs. Enterman, Mrs. McCarly, Mrs. Smith and Mrs. Ballinger. A large attendance is desired.

New Organ for Ritz

Mrs. Steve Duros, manager of the Ritz theater, announced Monday that the new $10,000 Page organ will be installed during the coming week. The organ is now on display in the foyer of the theater.

Miss Jessie Serra will play popular selections each night during intermission.

Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Wiseman and family of 208 N. Harris Ave., spent the week-end in Stewart, Ohio, visiting friends.

West Broad P.-T. A.

The regular monthly meeting of the West Broad P.-T. A. will be held Thursday evening, April 7, at 8 p. m.

The association will have as its guest and principal speaker Mr. Cecil Randall, prominent Columbus attorney and president of the board of education. His discussion will be along lines of vital importance to the schools. Music will be furnished by the West Gate Masonic chorus.

Mr. and Mrs. Jo Gilliland of 228 N. Warren Ave. entertained the following guests at their home last Saturday evening, the occasion being the birthday of Mrs. Jo Gilliland and of Mr. Walter Gilliland. Mr. and Mrs. Fred Krauss, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Jenkins, Mr. and Mrs. Walter Gilliland, Miss Helen Tipnich, Miss Virginia and Joan Gilliland. The evening was spent in games and good eats and everyone departed late, wishing them many more birthdays.

NEW STORE OPENS FRIDAY

Shank's Men's Furnishing and Clothing Store Invite Public Friday Evening.

Friday evening will see the opening of the Hilltop's newest business house—Shanks men's clothing and furnishing store, located in the new Stauck building, when they will hold open house for the inspection of their new store from 6 to 10 p. m., during which hours no goods will be sold and members of the firm will devote their entire time to meeting and welcoming people of the Hilltop and community.

The new firm is composed of J. F. and Homer Shank. Mr. Homer Shank comes to the Hilltop from Pomeroy, Ohio, where he has been connected with one of Pomeroy's largest stores for a number of years. Mr. J. F. Shank is well known on the Hilltop, having been a resident of this section for several years.

The new store is a decided addition to the Hilltop business houses and is equipped with modern up-to-date fixtures and equipment.

OPEN GARAGE ON SULLIVANT AVE.

The Burgess Ave. Garage, located at the west corner of Burgess and Sullivant Aves., opened for business under the new management of H. G. Putman and G. Miller.

They announce they will be open for service all day and until 10 o'clock each night. At present the two men will serve as mechanics on general repair work. A line of accessories and battery appliances will probably be added later. Both men have had five years' previous experience on various makes of cars.

Putnam and Miller reside at 281 S. Hague Ave.

T. E. Brand who has just returned from a trip with the Christian Herald thru the Holy Land and different parts of Europe will speak to the Men's Baraca class of Glenwood M. E. church Sunday morning. He will tell his experiences and the conditions there at this time.

Miss Margaret Dellenbach, 52 N. Ogden Ave., is convalescing at her home from an operation which she underwent at Mt. Carmel hospital last month.

WHEN A JOKE WASN'T A JOKE

A joke is a joke and we believe the Record bowling team can take a joke as well as anyone, but when "Os" Voss ran in a team of lady bowlers last Thursday evening to represent his Ford team in the Hilltop Business Men's Association league it proved to be no joke as the results showed, for the ladies certainly could roll a mean ball and took three straight from the Record team. Not only did they take the three games, but the worst part of it was they took each game by over 100 pins margin.

The Record team took their beating gracefully and take off their hats to the ladies.

The leaders in the league—Orchaugh Real Estate, Painter Grocers, and Westgate Electric are putting in extra practice games for they seem to have a bunch that they will have to meet the ladies also.

Mrs. Roscoe Stevens and daughter Iva, of Marion, Ia., visited at the home of Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Kramer and family, 64 N. Harris Ave., a few days last week.

MRS. McCLEAD SUCCUMBS IN AUTO ACCIDENT

Husband Escapes With Slight Injuries by Hanging to Draw Bar.

Mrs. Flora McClead, 1577 Thomas Ave., was instantly killed early last Saturday evening, when the auto in which she was riding with her husband, Ray McClead, was struck by a Pennsylvania mail train at the Water St. crossing. Mr. McClead escaped with slight injuries.

He owes his life to an instinct to cling to a heavy draw bar on the front of the engine, until the train was brought to a stop.

The accident occurred shortly after the train left the Union Station in charge of Engineer E. A. Culp, 2736 Steele Ave., and Fireman George Schmaltzig of Xenia. Neither man in the cab saw the auto because of the high building on the east side of the track, which obstructs the view.

The train was brought to a stop about 300 feet from the scene of the accident. It was necessary to uncouple the train in order to remove the body of Mrs. McClead.

Besides her husband, Mrs. McClead is survived by her parents, a daughter, four brothers and two sisters.

LOAD LIMIT TO BE LIFTED APRIL 8TH

Activity on the part of highway contractors is expected to be resumed next week, with the lifting of the ban on limits of auto truck loads. The load limit restriction would be lifted at midnight Friday, April 8.

A limit of 7½ tons has been in force since February 1, on account of the spring thawing and soft conditions of all highways. Lifting of the restriction will permit trucks to carry 10-ton loads.

Mr. and Mrs. Bruce R. Scott (Edith McDonald), 390 S. Ogden Ave., announce the birth of a son March 29 at St. Carmel hospital.

Leaves State Service

Terminating a five and one-half years' service with the State Bureau of Juvenile Research, West Broad street and Wheatland avenue, Dr. E. P. Rauch's resignation took effect last Thursday. Dr. Rauch resigned his position with the state to enter the book dealer and importer field.

As a pleasant surprise for Mr. Rauch his associates in the research work had arranged a chicken dinner for the entire staff Thursday noon, and presented him with a gold pen and pencil as an appreciation of the pleasant association enjoyed during the years of his service.

ARBOR DAY PROCLAMATION

Governor Donahey Sets April 29 as Date This Year—Schools to Have Exercises.

Calling on "friends of the forest and the admirers of the birds to join in the observance of this occasion," Governor A. V. Donahey has issued the annual Arbor day proclamation, setting April 29 as the date of the event this year.

The first observance of Arbor day in Ohio was held at Cincinnati in 1882. Since 1900 it has been marked annually by most schools of the state.

According to the statutes, each school is required to give over two hours on Arbor day to exercises and studies on trees and birds, and the planting of trees and shrubbery is urged.

The governor of the state is required to set the date for Arbor day each year, not later than April. The head of the department of public instruction is authorized to issue manuals each year giving rules and suggestions for Arbor day exercises.

Teachers are urged to acquaint students with the state laws protecting birds other than game birds and providing penalties for destroying eggs of certain birds.

GARDEN LOT CAMPAIGN ON

Director Raymond Makes Appeal for More Lots for City Farmers.

The annual vacant lot garden campaign of the city recreation department was opened Monday by Director Raymond. The campaign for lots will close Friday, April 15.

All persons who held cards for lot gardens in 1926 are requested by Raymond to register with the department before April 15, if they wish to continue their gardening activities this year.

Director Raymond also issued an appeal for more vacant lots. All persons who have such property, which they are not going to use, are requested to get in communication with the city recreation department. Approximately 900 vacant lots were used in 1926 for gardens.

What lots remain untaken by April 15 by last year gardeners, will be listed for new applicants, Director Raymond declared.

SHOE STORE TO QUIT BUSINESS

A. F. Elliott and J. G. Andrews, proprietors of the E. & E. Shoe store announced this week that they would discontinue business and have put their entire stock on sale starting Wednesday morning.

The E. & E. Shoe store was opened at its present location several years ago by Mr. Elliott and R. B. Bidwell and has enjoyed a nice business. Mr. Bidwell disposed of his interest in the store to Mr. Andrews about a year ago.

The Elite Embroidery club entertained Friday, April 1, with a luncheon at the Lazarus tea room in honor of Mrs. George Ryan of Kansas City and Mrs. J. Elmer Houdashelt of Cincinnati. Those present were: Mrs. Arthur Fisher, Mrs. D. U. Creager, Mrs. A. W. Jordan, Mrs. H. I. Spencer, Mrs. William H. Spangler and Mrs. J. W. Reese. HILLTOP BUSINESS MEN'S ASSOCIATION LEAGUE

Thursday Night Section

An upset of the leaders occurred Thursday night, March 31. Orebaugh Real Estate went into first place when they took two games from Millikin Hardware. Painters Grocery went into second place by winning two games out of three from B.-B. Hardware. The surprise of the evening came when Fred Voss sent in a ladies' team which proceeded to take three games from the Hilltop Record. This dropped the Hilltop Record team from first place to a tie for third. The Westgate Electric team went into a tie for third place when they won three games from Millikin Grocery. Only one game is between the leaders.

High score for one game went to Rankin, bowling with Westgate Electric with a score of 223. Walton, of Millikin Grocery, had high three-game score of 555. Westgate Electric with 890 had high score for one game and 2484 for three games.

Following are the scores turned in during the evening:

Millikin Grocery	794	744	761
Westgate Electric	745	890	790
Painters Grocery	728	770	698

CHARACTERISTICS OF OUR LATE PRESIDENTS.

Last week I had the pleasure of hearing Dr. W. N. Cooper, National Y. M. C. A. Secretary, speak before a gathering of some 1400 high school pupils. Many things of interest were brought out, which were the following stories of presidents Dr. Cooper has known personally. He has been a friend of Roosevelt, Taft, Wilson, Harding and Coolidge.

Roosevelt, he said, was a man who gained his position by always climbing on the front seat of the carriage, as told by his porter.

He showed his admiration for Taft by telling of the time Taft extended his congratulations to the new president, Wilson. "The difference between a great man and a little man, is that the great man can take defeat, while the little one cannot."

President Harding, he says, was a very lonely man while president. He liked intimate friendship, but the dignity of his position held him from creating many.

Of our present president, he told many humorous stories. Coolidge went to church one Sunday and upon arriving home, his first lady asked him what Dr. Pierce spoke on. His reply was, "Sin." Mrs. Coolidge then inquired farther by asking "What did he say about it?" "Oh, he's against it," answered our president.

One day while in church, before the death of one of his sons, the collection plate passed and all but one of the Coolidge family deposited therein. While going down the aisle, foward the altar, the president stopped one of the ushers and passed the plate again to the neglectful son.

PROSPECTS GOOD FOR WHEAT CROP

Despite the late seeding of wheat due to weather conditions last fall, the recent balmy spring weather augurs well for the wheat crop on Ohio farms, according to C. J. West, federal crop statistician.

Although the acreage amounts to only 82 per cent of normal years, West sees a good crop in prospect unless a series of hard freezes now set in for the next two or three weeks.

West pointed out that one hard freeze yet this year, while doing some damage, would not fully counteract the good done by the unseasonal rains and warmth which has started the wheat in unusually good condition for the time of year.

Early pasturage for dairy cows and other grazing stock also is foreseen by West, because of the unusual weather.

Fruit so far has shown little reaction to the weather conditions because there has not been quite enough warmth, although a severe cold wave at present might injure some pear trees, West said.

THE WHY of SUPERSTITIONS

By H. IRVING KING

THE BRIDESMAID

There is a common superstition that a girl who acts three times as a bridesmaid will be an old maid—a sort of "three-times-and-out" superstition. It would appear that this idea had its origin in that conception of marriage by the ancients—as is shown many times in mythology and folklore—as something to which magic particularly attached. Among the forms of magic associated with marriage was sympathetic magic of the sort known as contagious. Several current superstitions illustrate this "contagious magic" idea in connection with marriage and, reasoning by analogy, it would seem as if a girl who has been three times a bridesmaid ought to be pretty sure of being a bride herself.

Now the young women who has been three times exposed to the contagious magic of marriage without effect, might reasonably be supposed to be immune. Upon comparative religion folklore and magic, new light is constantly being thrown. The three realm form one subject and even Sir James Frazer, in his twelve volumes of the "Golden Bough," has but touched upon vast and unexplored regions. Therefore the above explanation of the bridesmaid superstition is only offered tentatively. Perhaps future research may reveal some other.

BILLIE AT THE ZOO

Billie Brownie was on his way to visit the Llama in the zoo when he was stopped by having a talk with the Gray Squirrel who had been busy eating peanuts for some time and who was ready to take a short rest and chat.

"Yes," the Gray Squirrel told Billie Brownie, "it is quite true what you have heard. Our family and the Red Squirrel family have always been quarrelsome and have not been on any too friendly terms. Of course we say it it the fault of the Red Squirrel and I suppose they say the same of us.

"But I'm quite sure that the fair opinion is that it is the fault of the

"First of All, I Come From South America."

Red Squirrels that we do not get along together. Yes, I'm sure of that.

"They're so quick-tempered and they can fight so hard. We're not as they are at all, no, indeed."

"I believe you," said Billie Brownie. "Another time I want to have more of a talk with you, but today I have an engagement with a llma and I don't think one should keep a llma waiting. I have a feeling one shouldn't do that."

"Well, stop for a chat again, Billie Brownie," said Gray Squirrel, as he gave his tail a fine flourish in saying good-by to Billie Brownie.

"Well, am I on time?" asked Billie Brownie as he came to where the llama was.

"I'm sure I don't know," said the Llama. "I haven't any wrist watch and I haven't any clock, and if I had I couldn't tell the time. Of course I know when it is meal time. But I don't need a clock to tell me that. My tummy tells me when it is meal time.

"I know when it bedtime, for my sleepy eyes tell me that. And, of course, when it is bright it is the time to be up, and when it is dark, it is the time to be asleep. That is the general rule and, of course, if one takes a nap in between—well it is simply napping time and one doesn't need a clock for that."

"I only hoped I hadn't kept you waiting," said Billie Brownie. "I am thankful that I haven't."

"No," said the Llama, "I haven't been kept waiting. Of course I am here and ready to see you."

"I am glad to hear that," chuckled Billie Brownie. "And you promised me to tell me something of yourself, if you remember, and if it is not too much bother."

"I remember and it is not too much bother," said the Llama.

"First of all, I come from South America, and I am a little bit like a camel except that I am much smaller and I haven't any hump, nor have I humps!

"I have a relative known as the Guanaco.

"Then I have an Alpaca cousin. His family name has become famous for there is a cloth known as alpaca cloth, and that has come from the fleece of his family.

"The Alpaca family aren't so strong as we are away from their home mountains and they object to other climates which don't bother us at all.

"Of course you know we have always been useful in carrying bundles and packages and have been regular 'beasts of burden,' as the saying is.

"We have lovely long wavy hair as you can see, but there is an Alpaca cousin here, a white one, with blue eyes. That's quite an interesting thing for, somehow, when thinking of blue eyes people would think of a little girl and not of an Alpaca.

"But you said you had another engagement to keep and I don't want to delay you.

"Yes," said Billie Brownie, "I promised I'd run in for afternoon bread with the Bears. That is, I didn't exactly say I'd run in—but I said that I would look on as the bears are to have their afternoon bread shortly.

"The keeper told me they had it just as people will have afternoon tea—the same idea you know!

"So I must be off, Llama. Thanks immensely for your story."

"You're very welcome, Billie Brownie. Very welcome indeed!"

BAGS OF FUN
By Rene and Harold Hawkins

Whoever made the first bean bag is responsible for a good many years of fun in this sometimes too solemn old world. It seems that everyone likes to play with these simple bags. Just why they should be so much more real fun than a ball is hard to tell, but they are. Sometimes you will find ball players tossing a ball back and forth with serious faces, but take that ball away and give them a bean bag and they'll start at once to giggle and chuckle.

Yet with all their popularity it seems that bean bags have never been so interesting-looking as they deserve. So some experienced bean-bag makers experimented. Here are some of the results:

One round bag we called "harvest moon," was made of orange linen. "Rising sun" was fashioned of deep-yellow linene (bean bags are usually made from remnants) with features embroidered in black and a puggie little black rosette for a nose. About the edge was a yellow yarn fringe for the rays. The "star" bag was made of blue chambray, and it had white tassels of wool. In making the star bag, leave each point temporarily open at the tip. Stitch a circle in the center of the star, but leave a little place open between two of the points. These open places are for filling. Rice is better for the star bag than beans, because it fits better into the small pockets formed by the points.

The people of the United States, Canada, England, France and Germany spend $40,000,000 a year on worthless cures for obesity. For years tests of these remedies have been carried on in the laboratories of the medical associations of the various states and of the American Medical Association. During the past ten years more than five hundred men and women have been exposed as distributors of worthless and often harmful remedies for corpulence. It is not possible to "Eat and grow thin," says the Dearborn Independent, or to "Bathe away the fat." Exercise combined with regulation of the diet is the only safe and effective way of controlling the weight. It is claimed by medical authorities.

How It Started
By JEAN NEWTON

"PIGMY"

This is a word that comes to us out of the page of Greek mythology, where we find the "pygmies," a nation of dwarfs, who lived near the sources of the Nile, or, as some authorities have placed them, in India.

The "Pygmies" took their name from the Greek word which means a cubit, the old measurement for about 13 inches, which described their height.

In Homer we learn of the cranes who used to migrate every winter to the Pygmies' country and whose appearance was always the signal of warfare to the little dwarfs, who had to arm themselves against their foe.

Later writers tell of an army of Pygmies who found the great Hercules in a deep sleep and prepared (in regular army formation, we presume) to attack him. The giant, however, awakened, laughed, wrapped them all up in his lion's skin and carried them away!

The Sandman Story

By Martha Martin

BEING AT THE ZOO

Brownie ... have heard ... Our ... Squirrel family have always been quarrelsome and have not been on any too friendly terms. Of course we say it it the fault of the Red Squirrel and I suppose they say the same of us.

"But I'm quite sure that the fair opinion is that it is the fault of the

"First of All, I Come From South America."

Red Squirrels that we do not get along together. Yes, I'm sure of that.

"They're so quick-tempered and they can fight so hard. We're not as they are at all, no, indeed."

"I believe you," said Billie Brownie. "Another time I want to have more of a talk with you, but today I have an engagement with a lima and I don't think one should keep a lima waiting. I have a feeling one shouldn't do that."

"Well, stop for a chat again, Billie Brownie," said Gray Squirrel, as he gave his tail a fine flourish in saying good-by to Billie Brownie.

"Well, am I on time?" asked Billie Brownie as he came to where the llama was.

"I'm sure I don't know," said the Llama. "I haven't any wrist watch and I haven't any clock, and if I had I couldn't tell the time. Of course I ... meal time. But ... Norma re-entered the room, followed by Warren. Mr. Wendall said innocently and very soberly to Norma, at the same time giving the children a warning look to keep quiet:

"Stand still, girls, just a minute. Don't move now."

Not suspecting a trick, Norma did as she was told, wondering what had struck Mr. Wendall, who now, unnoticed by her, made a suggestive gesture with his hand for the benefit of Warren, who now for the first time, saw what Mr. Wendall was up to. He placed both hands on Norma's shoulders and nodded toward the small sprig overhead. She jerked away from him, laughing, and gave him quite a chase through the downstairs rooms of the house. He finally caught her, and led her back to the starting place.

The little scene that followed caused the children to break into hilarious laughter, and Mr. and Mrs. Wendall were little less amused. Norma and Warren did not see the extremely funny side of it, as they had just made

"First of ... America, and I am ... camel except that I am much smaller and I haven't any hump, nor have I humps!

"I have a relative known as the Guanaco.

"Then I have an Alpaca cousin. His family name has become famous for there is a cloth known as alpaca cloth, and that has come from the fleece of his family.

"The Alpaca family aren't so strong as we are away from their home mountains and they object to other climates which don't bother us at all.

"Of course you know we have always been useful in carrying bundles and packages and have been regular 'beasts of burden,' as the saying is.

"We have lovely long wavy hair as you can see, but there is an Alpaca cousin here, a white one, with blue eyes. That's quite an interesting thing for, somehow, when thinking of blue eyes people would think of a little girl and not of an Alpaca.

"But you said you had another engagement to keep ... I don't want to delay ...

"Yes," said Billie Brownie, "I promised ... has been on my mind all week long, day and night. As we really, speaking in terms of days and months, have known each other only a short time, at first intended not to mention the subject to you until spring; but I was so anxious to know if you cared that I resolved to ask you tonight."

"Making one old year resolution, as it is not yet midnight, and one for the new year, too," Norma added.

"You haven't answered my question yet. Do you love me, honey?"

She did not reply verbally, but the

HERE AND THERE
By C. C. H.

Headlines of a popular magazine read: "When We Are Dead, Where Do We Go?" Very few people ever stop to think of this. It might do us all good to read it.

In England they call them Lords. Here in America we call them tramps. We mean the fellows who never work.

• • • •

The question now to be solved is who will pay for the death of the Americans killed in China? For me all we care for China now is just a Peek-in.

• • • •

Truly we expected to hear of a greater disturbance in Nicaragua than in China but we guess China is much easier spelled hence the traveling press agents in that direction.

• • • •

Lita Grey Chaplin is going back into the movies again because she is broke. She should be getting a good increase in pay with all the publicity she has had in the past few months.

• • • •

Prospective wives should be more conservative on the high priced dinners before marriage and they will have fewer hot days in the kitchen afterwards.

• • • •

We of the Hilltop are looking forward to the "Glad" show to be staged this summer. Now is the time to begin raising the "glads" and make our motto: "Everybody Glad."

Boy Scout Benefit

For the benefit of the Boy Scout troops, the Rivoli will present Fred Thompson in "A Regular Scout" Friday, April 8. The showing will begin at 3 o'clock in the afternoon and will be continuous from that hour.

THIRTY YEARS FROM NOW

When young Warren Hastings, who later became governor-general of India, was about twelve or thirteen years of age, he passed with his mother along a fine estate in England, and as he looked upon its beauties he noticed that his mother's face was somewhat sad. Said he, "Why do you grieve?"

Her answer was, "My son, this was once our estate, and we lost it thirty years ago."

The next day he ran away and she found him looking through the fence at his ancestral mansion.

"Why did you leave me?" inquired his mother.

He indirectly replied, "When did you lose this estate?"

She said, "Thirty years ago, my son."

Said he, "Thirty years from now I will give it back to you." And thirty years from then he did. He never forgot his dream.

These are your dream days. Dream pure and worthy dreams and strive to make them come true.

"TYING THE KNOT"

"Do you promise to love, honor and er-er-cherish?"

And the knot was tied.

Now we do not speak of getting married as looping the loop, why should we call it tying the knot? Not in any part of our marriage ceremony is there any allusion or pretense to any such literal entanglement! No, not in ours; but to make our vernacular as worldly cosmopolite, so rich with expressions gleaned from every part of the globe, even India has played a part.

Among the Brahmins of India a nuptial knot is actually tied. After the father of the bride has given her away, literally to the highest bidder, the happy man places about her neck the Tali, a piece of ribbon with a gold thread suspended from it, and ties the knot. And this is the tie that binds! for it is the insignia of marriage and forever labels the bride with the sign, "Hands off!" And it is an indissoluble tie, a knot which cannot be untangled or cut. For those worthy people do not recognize divorce.

Take a big basket to church, for it will always be filled.

Free Show for Kiddies

Another free show for the kiddies is on tap at the Rivoli for Saturday morning, April 9, beginning at 10:30. This show is in the nature of a surprise as Manager Peiras refuses to divulge the name of the film to be shown.

Resolution Adopted By City Council

Following is the resolution adopted by council, March 21, which affects the Hilltop sewer relief:

Whereas, The city council, on the 27th day of August, 1907, passed an ordinance which provided that no storm or roof water leader shall at any time be led into or connected with the sanitary system of sewers of the city of Columbus, and,

Whereas, All that portion of the city lying west of a line along the center of Ryan Ave., from Trappe pike to Sullivant Ave.; thence west on Sullivant Ave. to the west line of the property of the Ohio Institute for Feeble Minded Youth; thence north along said last described line to Broad St.; thence west along Broad St. to the west line of the State Hospital for the Insane, and thence north along said last described line to the corporation line, is provided with a sanitary system of sewers, and,

Whereas, Approximately 40 per cent of the houses and other buildings located in the territory described herein have storm or roof water leaders connected with the said sanitary system of sewers, thereby causing an overloading of same in time of storm and resulting in the backing up of said sewers and the flooding of many basements; now, therefore,

Be it resolved by the council of the city of Columbus:

That the director of public service is hereby authorized and directed to cause a notice to be served on each and every owner of property within the above described territory who is violating the provision of the ordinance referred to herein, to disconnect such storm or roof water leaders from the sanitary system of sewers, and in case any owner of property so notified fails to disconnect said storm or roof water leaders on or before Aug. 1, 1927, the director of public service is hereby authorized and directed to disconnect the sewer of such owner from said city sanitary sewers.

Adopted March 21, 1927.

SCOTT WEHE,
President of Council.

Returned without action by the mayor March 21, 1927.

Attest: HARRY H. TURNER, City Clk.

There are 3000 white employees and 9000 Negro employees of the United States Government in the Canal Zone territory, as well as about 10,000 soldiers and sailors. Uncle Sam makes excellent provision for the comfort of this big family. The Government owns attractive and convenient houses in the Zone, and rents them to its employees for a moderate sum. It also controls food and other supplies through the commissaries. There is an excellent public-school system. Although the Government does not appropriate money for the building of churches, it does grant sites on which they may be erected.

Private corporations are doing much to relieve the disgraceful living conditions in the slums of New York City. The Metropolitan Life Insurance Company has been able to put up attractive and healthy apartment houses, twenty minutes by subway from the Grand Central Station, at a cost of nine dollars per room per month. This is about six dollars cheaper than would be possible for the ordinary commercial builder. The City Housing Corporation, a limited-dividend company, is doing much, also, to relieve the conditions. This corporation has erected houses and small apartments at "Sunnyside," Queens, which are airy, well-lighted, and surrounded by playgrounds and tennis courts.

WINS IN BREAD MAKING CONTEST

Miss Dorothy Adams, 219 South Eureka avenue carried off the honors of this section of the city in the recent bread baking contest conducted in the Columbus schools for eighth grade girls. Miss Adams is a student at Highland Junior High school. She had one of the four highest scores, that of 90 points.

All eighth grade students in the home economics classes competed in the contest. Glassware was awarded the winners of each district.

Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Neff (Bernice Trabue) came from Cornell university, Ithaca, N. Y., 10 days ago, to spend the spring vacation with the former's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Frank Neff, of Osborne, Ohio, and with Mrs. J. C. Neff's mother, Mrs. Lucy Trabue, of North Hague avenue.

BUSINESS MEN HELP SCHOOLS

Local Firms Loan Materials For Demonstration Purposes in Science Classes.

Business men of the Hilltop seem more than willing to help general science classes of the Highland Junior high school. Just recently the Vose Ford Agency was asked if they objected to pupils coming to their place of business to look at a demonstration Ford motor. They replied that they did not object and would be further willing to bring the motor to the school building. This was done and pupils were much more able to see and understand how a gasoline motor operates.

During last school year the Westgate Electric Co. presented the General Science Laboratory with the parts of an electric light bulb in process of manufacture. The Sites Electric company furnished an electric iron which was thoroughly dissected to show pupils how heat is supplied.

While not on the Hilltop, the Ohio Motors company allowed the use of a very small sleeve valve model cylinder, thus clearly showing operation of valves and piston in what is commonly known as the Knight type engine.

Miss Ruth Burdette, 192 South Eureka avenue, entertained April 14 with a dinner and miscellaneous shower honoring Mrs. William Boyer (Miss Wolfendale), a recent bride. Those present were Mrs. Herman Planck, Mrs. Paul Brown, Mrs. Richard Kelley, Mrs. Loring E. Brown, Mrs. William Boyer, Miss LaDonna Terry, Miss Eualia Sanford, Miss Fanny Sworts, Miss Madelyn Lewis and Miss Agnes Fleming.

The Sixth group of Ladies' Aid Glenwood church will meet with Mrs. E. C. Johnson, 119 N. Chase avenue at 2 o'clock Thursday, April 14th. Mrs. Phalon in charge.

Two More Nights Of Special Services

The special services at Hoge Memorial Presbyterian church, will continue tonight and Friday night. At the service this evening, the pastor will use as his text "The Last Night" and "Candle Light Communion" will be observed at this service. Special music by our church choir.

Friday evening will be Sunday school decision night. Every class in the Sunday school is expected to be there with their teachers. The pastor will use as his subject, "Why You Ought to Be a Christian." This will close the special two weeks of evangelistic services looking to the dawn of the Easterday, and the acclamation of our Risen Lord and Master.

North Side Mutual Aid Society met Tuesday with Mrs. Emma Hoffman, 227 S. Burgess Ave.

TALKS TO JR. HIGH STUDENTS

Evangelist P. Raymond Powers Addresses Assembly at Young People's Rally.

Highland Junior High school held a very interesting assembly in the Glenwood M. E. church, Dr. P. Raymond Powers of Chicago, gave a short talk, urging, among other things, that all the pupils should attend the Young People's Rally at the church Friday evening. His talk was a lively one, very enjoyable to all.

Mr. D. A. Falkenberg, representing the Columbus Pocket Testament league, was then introduced by Principal Reighley and made an interesting talk. The purpose of this speech was to interest Highland pupils in Bible reading, which is the purpose of the league. Cards were distributed and, with the approval of their parents, the pupils were urged to join the league, membership in which is dependent upon daily Bible reading. Mr. Falkenberg stated that the Hillcrest Baptist church would furnish a pocket Testament to each member of Highland school joining the league.

Music was furnished by the 9B music class and the school orchestra, under the direction of Miss Ola Trump and Mr. Birmingham.

Mrs. Donald Lear, 78 N. Eureka avenue entertained Wednesday evening, April 6 with a miscellaneous shower for Miss Edna Geyer, 227 N. Warren avenue, a bride-to-be. On Saturday, Mrs. E. G. Distelhorst of Camp Chase, Ohio, also entertained for Miss Geyer.

Mrs. Wm. R. Gilbert and children, Mildred and Jack, of 318 N. Burgess avenue, will spend the Easter vacation in Chicago, the guests of Mr. and Mrs. George Meyers.

Mrs. Jennie Price of Lancaster is visiting her son, Mr. Ralph Price, 478 S. Powell avenue.

ACTIVE CLASS AT HILLCREST

Thirty-five persons were present at the April business meeting of the Young Married People's Bible class of Hillcrest Baptist church which was held Tuesday evening, April 5th at the home of Dr. and Mrs. Eugene Marts at the institution for the Feeble Minded.

Business occupied the greater part of the evening, followed by games and amusements and by refreshments served by the hostess.

Started a little more than a year ago with a membership of eight, it now has fifty-seven persons enrolled as active members and the average is about thirty.

Besides accomplishing the task of building the class to its present size, the organization has found time to sponsor and successfully put across other projects, two of which were the purchase of a piano for Sunday school use and the establishment of a nursery for the care of children while their parents attend Sunday school and church services.

At the meeting Tuesday evening, the class voted to undertake the publication of a weekly bulletin for distribution to members and prospective members.

Collar Bone Broken

A. E. Watson, 45, of 348 Belvidere avenue was struck by a car driven by R. C. Morrison, 236 N. Burgess avenue Wednesday evening, April 6. Watson was alighting from a street car at Sullivant and Belvidere avenues when he was struck. He suffered a broken collar bone and cuts about the face and head.

Morrison was arrested on a charge of drunkenness. Police say Morrison failed to stop as the street car started unloading passengers.

The Day of Resurrection

Easter Day, which commemorates the rising of Christ from the tomb, is a day shot thru with the glory of a new life.

Christmas was the pledge of man's redemption, but Easter is the crowning moment of the Great Sacrifice.

The name of the day comes from the goddess, Ostara or Eastre, the sun woman worshipped by the early Saxons. She was the goddess of the east, of the bright springtime and the dawning morning, the embodiment of life as it swept away the shrouds of darkness. In the days of Ostara the entire month of April was given to celebrating, it was a time of feasting and making merry, the time of youthful matings of love in which the older ones lived again, the days of a cherished time. Colorful crowds made merry in the market spaces, and all were in their finest dress.

From this old custom has come our more modern "Easter parades." So it is a deeper thing than the mere bowing to fashion; it is the decking of the body brightly to match the brightness and glory which should be within the heart and the soul. It is well to know that at the root lies not merely personal and vain adornment.

Spring again, is the message of Easter. The new season testifies once more that the radiant blossoms of spring eternally follow the drab, sere leaf of winter, that birth shall follow death and death shall follow birth, as surely as the young shoot shall spring from the germinating seed.

Nearly 1900 years ago Christ demonstrated that what is possible in nature, the resurrection of all life, is also the destinity of man. He brought the joy of the promise of life everlasting and reunion with loved ones from whose tombs the stones, too, shall be rolled away.

ODD FELLOWS TO CELEBRATE

The 108th anniversary of the founding of the Odd Fellow's order will be celebrated at the I. O. O. F. temple on South High street Friday evening, April 29. All Odd Fellows are invited to attend this anniversary celebration.

The marriage of Miss Mildred Matheny, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. H. Matheny, 170 North Warren avenue, to Mr. Walter P. Gauggle, a teacher in the Piqua high school, took place Friday afternoon, April 8 at St. Matthew's Lutheran church, Rev. H. V. Brobst officiating. Miss Esther Matheny was her sister's maid of honor and Mr. Paul Knoste was best man for the bridegroom.

Mr. and Mrs. Gauggel will reside temporarily at the home of the bride's parents.

SCOUT SHOW NEXT WEEK

Contests and Demonstration Events Interesting Parts of the Program

The sixth annual Boy Scout show will be held at the Coliseum Friday, April 22, 1927, beginning promptly at 8 p. m.

The program opens with a concert by the Mt. Gilead Boy Scout band followed by the bugle corps of Troop 58 and the grand entry of the Columbus Boy Scouts. After the scout oath the winners of the city-wide inspection will be presented. The next on the program is a number of contests which will be of interest to the old as well as the young. Among these contests are signalling, barrel tilting, tumbling, fire by friction, wall scaling, a chariot race, etc.

The demonstration events are also an interesting part of the program. Among the many demonstrations are to be found a council ring, tent camp, camp kitchen, etc.

At the close of the show the winning troop will be announced and prizes and ribbons will be awarded.

It is hoped that every family on the Hilltop will be represented at this show and thereby give the Boy Scouts the support that is due them.

Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Vogel, 42 N. Powell avenue announce the coming marriage of their daughter, Pauline C., to Mr. G. T. Leanon, 359 Cleveland Ave. The wedding will take place on July 20, at St. Aloysius church.

Mrs. Henry Stertzer, 635 South Burgess avenue, was hostess on Tuesday, April 5 for the Donna Social club. Mrs. Carl Hackman was a guest of the club. The assisting hostesses were Mrs. William Basler and Mrs. Fred Schick. The next meeting will be at the home of Mrs. J. V. Lensenmayer, 291 South Eureka avenue, May 3. A potluck luncheon will be served at noon.

Sunday Last Day Of Evangelistic Crusade

Easter Sunday will be the last day of the Evangelistic Crusade which is being conducted at Glenwood church by the Rev. P. Raymond Powers.

This is intensive week and the energies of the crusade are directed toward definite decisions for the Christian life. Hundreds of homes are being reached during this effort and to them is borne a friendly invitation on behalf of Christ and his church. In no other way would so many homes be touched. The work is exacting and yet is being carried out with splendid fidelity on the part of the workers.

The sermons by Mr. Powers this week are in keeping with the sentiments of Holy Week. It is expected that Easter Sunday will be indeed the crowning day of the campaign. Opportunity will be given at the services of the day for any who desire to do so to unite with the church either by letter or on profession of faith. A large class is expected.

Group 2 Glenwood Ladies' Aid meets Thursday 2 p. m., with Mrs. Elmer Myers, 2034 Fairmont Ave. Miss Jennie and Mrs. W. L. Millikin assisting hostesses.

West Broad School

A very simple, though impressive program was given Wednesday morning at assembly, consisting of songs, prayer, responsive reading and the singing of an Easter hymn. All school songs were accompanied by the school orchestra.

Last Thursday afternoon, about 700 people, mostly West Broad pupils, enjoyed Jackie Coogan in "Old Clothes." The picture was given for the benefit of the school fund.

Mary Dickey, 5A, who was so seriously injured by an automobile several weeks ago, is now at home.

SATURDAY NIGHT WILL BE BIG TIME FOR HILLTOP POPULACE

Somebody Will Be Made Happy at 9 o'Clock When Ford Tudor Sedan Will Be Given Away By the Hilltop Business Men's Association.

Autos Collide

While turning off Glenwood onto Sullivant avenue Thursday the Sedan driven by Mrs. W. W. Emlag, 216 Burgess avenue collided with another sedan driven by H. S. Cross, 16 N. Central avenue.

The view of both drivers was obstructed by passing street cars. Mr. Cross suffered a slight cut over his left eye.

The Hilltop Child Conservation circle will entertain its new members with a dinner Thursday, April 21 at 6 p. m. at the home of Mrs. C. W. Rucker, 104 Whitethorne Ave. The study program following the dinner will be led by Mrs. F. P. Brown and will consist of finishing the character building study as outlined for the year.

Mrs. O. Hungelman, 2780 Steele avenue and her daughters, Margaret, Alice Marie leave Wednesday for Cleveland, Buffalo and Syracuse, N. Y.

George W. Peters, better known as just "Grandpa," celebrated his 77th birthday Thursday, April 7 at the home of his daughter, Mrs. H. H. Glick of 62 South Warren avenue. The following friends and members of the family were entertained at a noonday luncheon in his honor: Mr. and Mrs. Perry Much, Mr. and Mrs. Pat Campbell, Mrs. Clara Haas, Mr. and Mrs. H. H. Glick and Ross and Lucile Glick.

COMPLETE NEW CHURCH BLDG.

The Church of the Nazarene, which has its local headquarters at the First Church, King and Hunter avenues, is conducting an evangelistic campaign in the church recently completed to accommodate the church's constituency in this community. The new building is an attractive bungalow structure located on properly recently purchased at the corner of Warren avenue and Whitehead road one block south of Sullivant avenue. The series of revival services which began last Sunday are being well received by the large audiences which are in attendance from night to night.

A number of the leading campaigners of the denomination have been secured to feature the services, among whom are Dr. J. W. Goodwin, of Kansas City, Mo., general superintendent; Rev. Chas. A. Gibson, district superintendent of the Ohio district; Rev. Orval J. Nease, pastor of the First Church at King Avenue and Rev. and Mrs. R. A. Shank, nationally known gospel singers.

Services will be held in the Bungalow Tabernacle each night during the week, except Saturday, at 7:30. The Sunday services are at 2:30 and 7:30 respectively.

The Garwood Bible class of Mt. Vernon avenue were pleasantly entertained at the home of Mrs. Guy Giffin, 83 N. Ogden avenue, Thursday, April 7, with a vanishing tea. Twenty-five ladies enjoyed the games and musical program. Dainty refreshments were served by the hostess, assisted by Mrs. Eugene Swoke of Kenmore Road.

Radio Services

In keeping with the Holy week, there will be broadcasted each day at 12:00 from WAIU, a service under the direction of the Columbus Federation of churches. On Thursday (today) Dr. G. F. Barber, pastor of Glenwood church, will broadcast. A quartet from the church, consisting of the Misses Thelma Allen, Geraldine Elliott, Louise Hamilton and Bernola Woodyard, will render special music and Miss Elva Paul, soloist, will sing.

Miss Dorothy Kneller, 49 Yale Ave., and Mr. William L. Suver, 78 N. Terrace St., were united in marriage at 1 p. m. Saturday, April 9 at the residence of the officiating minister, Rev. William C. Hickey, 177 W. Park Ave.

The Franklin County Institute W. C. T. U. will be held at West Park M. E. church all day Friday, April 22. Mrs. Viola D. Romans will be the speaker for the afternoon.

Republican Meeting

The 11th Ward Republican club will have a pot luck supper at 6 p. m. at the Hillcrest Baptist church Monday evening, April 25, 1927. Election of officers will be held for the following year. All members of the club are urged to be present and take part in the festivities.

Each member is expected to furnish a covered dish, several sandwiches and their personal dishes.

Speakers and music will be furnished for the occasion.

Saturday, April 16, will be a big day on the Hilltop. A day many people have been eagerly awaiting for, the day members of the Hilltop Business Men's association will give away the Ford for which you have been saving tickets for the past few weeks.

Arrangements are complete and the drawing will take place at the vacant lot, corner of North Park avenue and West Broad street at 9 o'clock Saturday night, April 16.

At this time J. A. Maddox, president of the Columbus Chamber of Commerce will be present to address the people assembled and will do the drawing of the tickets from the wheel.

The following is the manner in which the drawing will be conducted:

Twenty-five number in all will be drawn from the wheel. The first five numbers drawn will be placed back in the wheel and the sixth number will be declared the winning number, providing this sixth number is presented within one week. Should the winning number not be presented by 6 o'clock, Saturday evening, April 23, then the seventh number, if presented, will be the winning number, and so on until the full quota of numbers drawn has been exhausted.

Should none of the numbers drawn be presented within the week, then the person presenting the ticket bearing the number closest to and higher than the sixth ticket drawn, will be declared the winner.

Winning tickets should be presented to Fred L. Sulzberger at his store, 2391 West Broad street.

SAVE YOUR TICKETS.

The committee in charge urges that everybody save their tickets after the drawing, for should none of the numbers drawn be presented then some number other than has been drawn will win. So be sure and save your tickets for at least a week if the winning number is not present at the drawing Saturday night.

Tickets will be given out until 7 o'clock Saturday night, which will give you an opportunity to get the tickets from your late purchases in the barrel at the Hilltop bank. Better still, make a day of shopping with the merchants on the Hilltop and get all the chances you can on the sedan.

Miss Mary M. Thomas for 23 years a representative of the Woman's Foreign Missionary society of the Methodist church in China, has been visiting the past week at the home of Mr. and Mrs. James Watson, 138 South Eureka avenue. Mrs. Watson and Miss Thomas were girl friends in Lancaster. Miss Thomas went to Cincinnati Monday, where she will confer with the secretary of the W. F. M. S. board.

ART EXHIBIT AT HIGHLAND

Visitors Welcome During Hours From 9 to 3 to Inspect Class Work and Exhibit.

An exhibition of the work done by the pupils in the art department of Highland Avenue school, will be held on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday, April the 20th, 21st and 22nd during the entire school day, and the parents and friends of the pupils are most cordially invited to call and see the work that is being done in this department.

Visitors will be welcome during any hour of the day from 9 o'clock until three o'clock in the afternoon. This arrangement has been made in order that while inspecting the work classes may also be observed during the regular art periods. Mr. Birmingham will be very glad to explain the method of instruction in the various classes, and visitors will in no wise interrupt the regular class work.

Much talent has been developed in Highland Avenue school and this invitation is intended to bring the parents and friends in closer touch with the work of the pupils, and also to spread an appreciation of art over the Hilltop greater than has been done through the pupils heretofore.

It is earnestly hoped that every member of the Parent-Teacher association will call during one of the days of the exhibition and see the splendid work being done by the pupils of all grades in the high school and help bring about an appreciation of art that will invade every home on the Hilltop.

WEST "Y" CHURCH LEAGUE

With the bowling season nearly over, Hoge Memorial is still holding the lead with a margin of six games over their nearest opponent, West Park M. E. Hoge Memorial needs to win one more game to clinch the trophy, and there is little doubt but what they will cinch it next week when they meet Glenwood M. E. as they have already defeated Glenwood ten games out of twelve this season.

Several games over the 800 mark were turned in during the evening as follows: Ward, 225; Shou, 211, 216; Grey, 205, 200; Kent, 204; Kinkead, 223; Boyd, 200; Barlowe, 204.

TWO INJURED IN GAS EXPLOSION

Jack Hunt 520 S. Wheatland avenue and Maurice Horwitz, 478 S. Eighteenth street, suffered face and body burns Thursday when gas exploded at the Horwitz home. They were removed to White Cross hospital where they are not regarded as being seriously burned.

A gas leak on the second floor caused an accumulation which ignited when one of the men struck a match.

Horwitz had recently purchased the home and with Hunt, an employe of the Ohio Decorating Co. of N. High street were decorating inside.

Several windows on the second floor were blown out.

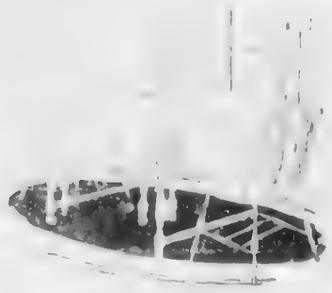
Payment Date of Gas Bills Extended Without Penalty



Patrons of the natural gas service who usually pay their bills between the 11th and 20th of April are advised that this period will be extended pending these companies' appeal in the United States Court of Appeals. It has also been necessary to extend the period for all those who ordinarily pay their bills between April 1 and April 10.

Full announcement will be made of the times for these payments, and the usual ten-days period will be allowed, with no penalty charged, so that the patrons will lose nothing by the delay.

Your kind indulgence is requested dur- time necessary for the fixing of a ate.

DEPENDABLE

Firestone

GUM-DIPPED tires are DEPENDABLE and every important speedway event in this country in the past five years has been won on them. Race drivers will not trust their lives on any other tires. The same noteworthy attributes in these great tires—that make them winners in these terrific grinds of the race track—stand out prominently in the excellent service they are giving as regular equipment on millions of private cars throughout the whole world—FIRESTONE TIRES have extraordinary strength, endurance and flexibility—they are the only GUM-DIPPED tires.

AUTO OVERTURNS; TWO ARE INJURED

Mrs. Grover C. O'Hara, 147 Belvidere avenue, is in City hospital, Chillicothe, recovering from four fractured ribs and a possible fracture of the shoulder, sustained in an automobile accident, six miles east of Chillicothe, Monday, when their auto overturned. A defective steering gear is believed responsible for the accident.

Mr. O'Hara suffered minor lacerations about the face.

Raymond Gadson, 353 S. Oakley avenue, suffered burns Monday in an explosion at the Clinton Dry Cleaners plant, 705 E. Eleventh avenue, when a friction spark ignited a cleaning preparation. He is improving at his home.

HI-Y CLUBS ORGANIZE

"Find Yourself Campaign"—Boy's Work Secretary Will Address Business Men.

Columbus Hi-Y clubs have organized a "Find Yourself Campaign" assisted by C. C. Robinson, national boy's work secretary of the Y. M. C. A.

Robinson will speak before the night high school at Central High Monday, April 25, and will address business men who have signified their willingness to act as interviewers for the boys who voluntarily sign up for an interview with some business man.

The banquet for the interviews will be held at the Central "Y," April 26 and will be in the form of an instruction class, when the men will be told what they are expected to do and how.

Edward Jones of North High school has been made general chairman of the campaign and associated with him on the committee are: Burrell Shirey, South High; Elmer Smith, West High school; Robert White, Central High; Melvin Eyerman, East High, and Arthur Bogen, Grandview High school.

The luncheon clubs are endeavoring to select the best men from their ranks to help as interviewers, but with about 500 senior high school students asking for interviews, the number of men to be made available through the clubs is not sufficient.

Mrs. Homer Roberts, 306 S. Richardson Ave., entertained the friendship club on Wednesday, April 13. Dinner was served at 1 o'clock, covers being laid for Mrs. Belland and Miss Pierce of Alliance, Mrs. Perry E. Green, Mrs. J. Allen Baker, Mrs. Robert B. Foster, Mrs. Charles Williams, Mrs. E. Dart, and the hostess. Mrs. R. B. Foster will entertain the club in May.

Mrs. T. E. Brand, 1086 Fairmont Ave., will entertain eight guests at a bridge luncheon Thursday (today) in the Lazarus tea room.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Parkey (Harriet Rennick) 201 Dana Ave., announce the birth of a son, Rennick Irwin, Saturday, April 16.

Miss Laura Pregraves has returned to her home in Fremont, Ohio, after spending six weeks at the home of her sister, Mrs. Charles Dunn, 28 S. Terrace St.

Highland P.-T. A.

Highland Avenue P.-T. A. will meet Tuesday evening, April 26, in the basement of Glenwood church and will be in charge of "mothers and daughters."

The following program will be given:

Music by Mothers' Quartet."

Paper by Mrs. Major Allen of Salvation Army on "What the Home Can Do to Help in Juvenile Delinquency."

Music by "Mothers' Quartet."

"Camp Fire Honors," a stunt by the Camp Fire Girls.

A question—"What Qualities in Your Opinion, Constitutes an Ideal Mother?" will be answered by "Mother."

Parents are particularly urged to attend this meeting conducted by the mothers and daughters, whether they come regularly to the monthly meetings or not.

Group No. 5 Ladies' Aid of Glenwood M. E. will meet with Mrs. Hite, 493 N. Harris Ave., Thursday evening, April 21, at 8 o'clock.

MEMORIAL TO BE UNVEILED

At the morning service on next Sunday at Glenwood Methodist church a bronze memorial tablet for Mrs. Emma Black Whitehead will be unveiled.

The tablet is presented by the trustees of Ohio Wesleyan university in recognition of the Emma Black Whitehead Memorial Scholarship Fund which has been established at the university by Dr. Howard Whitehead and of which future Glenwood students are preferred beneficiaries.

The address will be made by Rev. Karl P. Meister of the university.

The Franklin County W. C. T. U. institute will be held at West Park M. E. church Friday, April 22. Luncheon will be served at 12 o'clock. Mrs. Viola D. Romans will address the meeting in the afternoon.

The Frances Willard W. C. T. U. will hold its monthly meeting April 27th at the home of Mrs. John Conner of 514 S. Hague Ave.

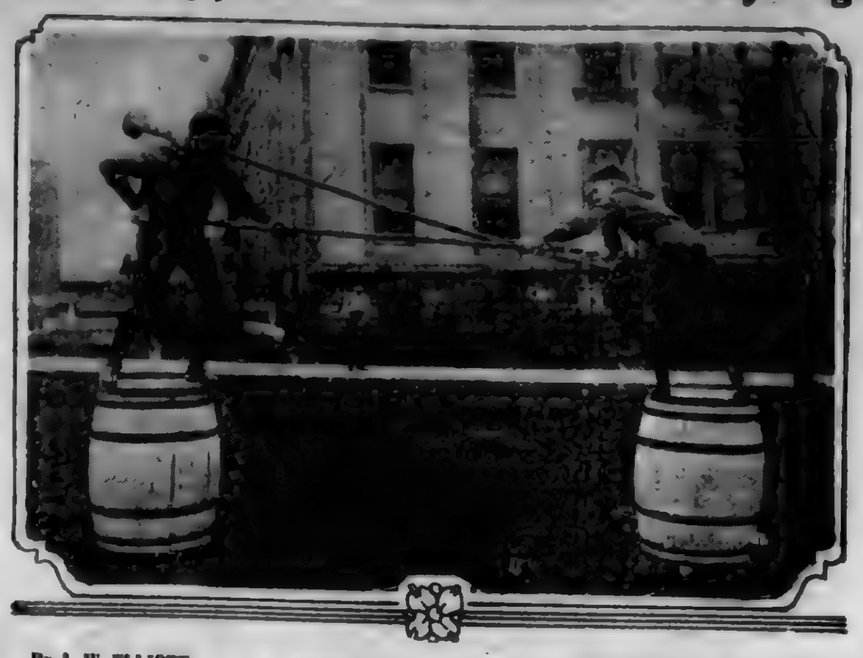
LEGION WILL MEET SUNDAY

Fifty Posts Will Be Represented at Memorial Hall Meeting.

Columbus will be host Sunday, Apr. 24, to representatives of more than 50 posts of the American Legion when the ex-service men from 11 counties in central Ohio will meet in Memorial hall to determine upon plans for presenting the aims, ideals and accomplishments of the organization to the general public.

Robert Herron of Chillicothe, who will preside over the conference, states that it is the belief of legionnaires that as the purposes and activities of the organization become more fully understood, its strength as a force for good will be augmented.

Sig L. Weinberg, chairman of the Franklin county council, who is in charge of local arrangements, is authority for the statement that reports from the posts throughout the central district indicate that from a standpoint of attendance the conference will break all records for this section of the state.



Mrs. George Burnett, 554 S. Ogden Ave., will entertain members of Robert Morris Social club Thursday, April 28. Assisting hostesses are: Mrs. A. F. Elliott, Mrs. Harry Butler, Mrs. E. B. Hooper, Mrs. Andrew Ogg, Mrs. Arthur Hill, Mrs. C. J. Rust, Mrs. Ray Haunts, Mrs. Myrtle Mouser and Mrs. Isaiah Conrad.

GLENWOOD CHOIR TO GIVE CANTATA

The vested choir of Glenwood Methodist church will render the cantata, "Our Living Lord," by Wilson, next Sunday evening at 7:30 o'clock, with Mrs. Mary Riddile Walton, director, Miss Fern Culp will be at the organ and Lillian Born, pianist.

Mrs. W. D. Vale, 200 Chase Ave., was hostess to the Bayview Literary club, on Monday. Following the luncheon at 12:30, Mrs. Rudolph Held led the program on "Biographies of Eminent Women." The assisting hostesses were Mrs. Charles Shriver and Mrs. Fred Carpenter.

Scene to Appear In Scout Show Friday Night

By A. W. ELLIOTT

The sixth annual Boy Scout show which will be held in the Coliseum Friday night, April 22, will be well represented by Hilltop boys. James Matheny, son of E. H. Matheny, 179 N. Warren Ave., and star scout of 45, Highland Avenue school, heads the individual list of entries. Scout Matheny fought his way to the finals in the barrel tilting and will be one of the two boys entering this event at the big show Friday night. Staley Shanely of Troop 21, Hoge Memorial church, ran Matheny a close second and took third place in the elimination. This ancient honorable game continues to hold interest through the years and serves to work up enthusiasm in the individual troops preliminary to the main show, there being but two final entrants going to battle on the show night.

Troop 9 of St. Aloysius (sp) boys were successful in qualifying for the semaphore signaling, there being 10 of the best teams in the city entered in the final show. They will also be entered in several of the other events.

Besides taking an active part in the demonstration work at the show Troop 21 scouts will be entered in the wall-scaling event, fire by friction and equipment race. These boys also won third place in the city wide scoutcraft inspection event. In the demonstration part of the show they will set up their portable camp kitchen as a part of a big camp scene. These lads have used this kitchen on several of their long trips around the country and so far as is known have the only complete truck trailer camp set-up in the city. Scoutmastered by R. C. Kadel, their high-class scout work attracts city wide if not country wide attention.

The boys from Troop 45 will be also represented in the wall-scaling event, the chariot race, fire-by-friction and the equipment race. The chariot eliminations come off Thursday night at they Coliseum and they are all set for the event with a new chariot made by V. E. Wolfe, father of John and Robert Wolfe. The team of boys pulling the chariot will consist of John Wolfe, Charles Thurston, James Matheny and Robert Walker. The modern "Ben Hur" as rider and driver will be impersonated by Kenneth Cox. This is the first year the boys from Highland have gone in all of the events of this annual classic and they have high hopes of scoring several more points and even giving the other troops a run for their money for high honors.

The show is an annual affair in the city and ldio fair to interest a capacity audience this year. There will be over 2000 boys in the grand entry, which is a spectacle in itself not seen in any other similar arrangement during the year. There will be six competitive events and a mammoth demonstration act which will include 13 of the wide awake civic spirited troops. Music will be furnished by a Boy Scout band from Mt. Gilead and a drum and bugle corps made up of Columbus scouts will sound the calls and play for the marching.

The grand entry will move in promptly at 8 o'clock. Children under 12 years, accompanied by parents or older persons, will be admitted free.

SMALL BOY IN HOSPITAL

Frederick Nolan, 5, 2468 Sullivant avenue is resting in Mt. Carmel hospital as the result of injuries sustained when he was hit by the car driven by Mrs. P. R. Orall, 414 E. Rich street, Friday. His injuries were internal.

C. H. Lee, 602 S. Eureka avenue witnessed the accident and explained that the boy ran from behind a street car into the path of the auto. The right wheel passed over his body and he was dragged several feet.

In celebration of the third birthday of their son, Harry Bowen Hopwood, Mr. and Mrs. Harry L. Hopwood, 191 S. Roys Ave., entertained a number of his little friends with a party at their home, Tuesday afternoon, April 12. The children present included: Sidney Hamilton Davis, Elaine Kessler, Robert Earl Boggs, Anna Mae Doekler, Carl Frederick Glade, Vastha Mary Grocock, Jack Kessler, Robert Hesse, Hugh McNulty, Harry Bowen and his sister, Ruth Dolder Hopwood.

U. B. MEN'S BROTHERHOOD

Will Meet Tuesday Evening—Engineer Bonny to Speak on Sewer Question.

The Men's Brotherhood of Burgess Avenue United Brethren church will hold an open meeting next Tuesday evening at 7:30 o'clock in the church that will be of special interest to the whole community.

The Brotherhood has secured as the speaker for the evening Mr. O. Bonney, who is the expert engineer in charge of the sewers of Columbus, and a man who thoroughly knows his work and will give enlightening information on the sewer question.

The sewer situation is exceedingly vital to our comfort, our health and our wealth, and every Hilltop citizen and taxpayer should know the real facts.

Mrs. Godfrey Geyer, Mrs. John Ripley, Mrs. Harry Hart, Misses Madeline Koerner and Mildred Postle were dinner guests Friday at the home of Mrs. John A. Geyer, 227 N. Warren Ave.

Mrs. Ed. Evans, 2657 West Broad street assisted by Mrs. John Evans, 97 N. Oakley avenue, entertained Wednesday afternoon with a linen shower in honor of Miss Edna Geyer, a bride-to-be.

MUSICAL TREAT AT ST. JOHN'S

The personnel of the choir is: Soprano—Mesdames Fred Raether, Carl Raether, Adena Smith, J. Howard Young. Alto—Mesdames V. E. Wolfe, Dr. C. H. Lose, Bertha Summers and Miss Catherine Grossman. Tenor—Dr. C. H. Lose, Carl Grossman. Bass—J. Howard Young, Clarence Renner and Fred Raether.

Miss Elizabeth Raether is organist, and Miss Ruth Pearch, pianist.

H. T. OLPP WINS FORD SEDAN

Presents Lucky Ticket Tuesday and Is Presented With Machine.

No. 7673.

That was the number that won the Ford Sedan last Saturday night.

Herbert T. Olpp, 299 South Park avenue, is the man that held the lucky ticket.

Saturday night was a great night on the Hilltop with thousands of people in the business section awaiting the announcement of the person who would draw the sedan, for which the whole Hilltop had been saving tickets for the past six weeks.

The crowd began gathering early in the evening and by 8 o'clock the streets were one mass of humanity eagerly anticipating the announcement that the drawing would begin and ready to congratulate the winner.

County Prosecutor Jack Chester had charge of the drawing and after explaining to the crowd the manner in which the drawing would be conducted, proceeded to draw five numbers from the wheel. These five numbers were then placed back in the wheel, giving every ticket holder an equal chance to win the machine, and the sixth number taken out was declared the winner if presented within one week.

Nineteen other numbers were then drawn as precautionary measure. This, however, proved unnecessary, as the sixth number drawn, No. 7673, was presented at Mr. Sulzberger's store Tuesday morning by Mr. Olpp.

Perhaps few people realize the amount of work entailed in a contest of this kind, as the heavy part of the work usually falls on one or two men connected with the contest.

Fred L. Sulzberger happened to be the man behind the gun this time for merchants, and while it entailed a great amount of hard work on his part to keep the merchants supplied with tickets and keep the accounts straight, Fred is more than pleased with the results and eager for more.

The Woman's Home Missionary society of Glenwood M. E. church will have their birthday party Thursday today) 2 p. m. in church parlors. Mrs. C. E. Turley of Dayton, Ohio, will be the speaker.

West Broad School

On the afternoon and evening of April 29, Mr. Donald Bain will give an entertainment entitled "A Trip to the Farm." Mr. Bain imitates birds and animals with great success, as well as musical instruments.

This is something entirely different from any previous entertainment, and old and young will enjoy it. Music will be supplied by the school, the boys' and girls' glee club singing. Mr. Avery Hershner will also give some special numbers on the accordion.

Mr. and Mrs. John A. Geyer, 227 N. Warren avenue, entertained the following guests at an Easter dinner Sunday: Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Kuhn and daughter, Almeda, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Kuhn and daughter, Lena Mae, Mr. and Mrs. Adam Koerner, Miss Sarah Kuhn, Richard and Martha Kuhn, Laura and Jake Ranke, the host, hostess and family.

FOUR INJURED IN AUTO ACCIDENT

Hit-Skip Driver Causes Auto Accident at Broad and Central Sunday Night.

A hit and skip auto collided at Broad street and Central avenue with the auto driven by John McBride, 40, 499 S. Ogden avenue Sunday night, causing it to turn over, thereby injuring four persons within the car.

Those injured were: Mrs. C. B. Atwood, 34, 2070 Sylvia avenue, possible skull fracture; John McBride, driver of the car, broken right leg; Mr. C. B. Atwood and son Harold suffered bruises. They were removed to Mt. Carmel hospital by Patrolman Cox and Van Horn.

A passing motorist pursued the car for several blocks and secured the license number.

Mrs. K. E. Lybarger, 2039 Fairmont Ave., entertained her mother, Mrs. A. N. Tracy and aunt, Miss Cora Perfect at luncheon Thursday, April 14.

Mrs. Frank Scurry, 204 S. Princeton Ave., entertained to a luncheon, Thursday, eleven members of the Glenwood Happy Hour Embroidery club. Two guests, Mrs. Jessie Vineing and Mrs. L. A. Watts were present. Members present were: Mrs. G. A. Baker, Mrs. F. O. Page, Mrs. Harry Barclay, Mrs. Fred Hardy, Mrs. C. N. Wisker, Mrs. V. C. Harrod, Mrs. E. C. Williams, Mrs. J. E. Pease, Mrs. J. P. Mehring, Mrs. Charles Rockhold and the hostess.

Mrs. William Rose entertained the W. C. T. U. Tuesday evening, April 12, at her home, 545 Columbian Ave. The ladies brought their home-made candy to fill little Easter baskets for the soldiers at Dayton hospital. A dainty luncheon was served by the hostess. The following guests were present: Mrs. C. M. Smith, Mrs. Anna Hatton, Mrs. Ada Hyder, Mrs. Idella Stephenson, Mrs. Mary E. Earnest, Mrs. Virgie Pritchard, Mrs. Julia Horn, Mrs. L. Stieberger, Mrs. D. Catanese, Mrs. H. C. Hensice, Mrs. J. W. Marshall, Mrs. W. E. Jones Mrs. Charles Combs, Mrs. Laura Howard, Mrs. R. Thompson, Mrs. Mabel Hamilton, Justine Archer, Mrs. Charles Hase and Florence Thomas.

Miss Hazel Terry, 72 Eldon Ave., entertained the Gamma Chi at her home Tuesday evening, April 19. Those present were: Edna Whitaker, Leona Bashor, Louise Loeffel, Annabelle Daniels, Vera James, Le Moyne Ryland, Lydia Phillips, Mabel Minnix, Sara Huff, Florence Huff and the hostess. Prizes were won by Florence Huff and Edna Whitaker. The next meeting will be held at the home of Edna Whitaker, 108 N. Roys Ave., Tuesday, May 3rd.

General Supt. at Nazarene Church

Rev. John W. Goodwin, general superintendent of the Church of the Nazarene, is to hold convention at the Warren Avenue Church of the Nazarene next Wednesday, April 27, continuing over Sunday, May 1. Dr. Goodwin is one of the outstanding leaders of the denomination.

The revival now in progress is having excellent attendance and success. Services are held in the tabernacle each night at 7:45.

Mr. and Mrs. John Miller, 104 N. Hague avenue announce the birth of a little daughter, Tuesday, April 12.

The past officers of Westwood Pythian Sisters will meet Friday evening, April 22, at the home of Mrs. Lettie Bratt, 22 N. Oakley Ave.

MR. OLPP'S STATEMENT

Mr. Herbert T. Olpp makes this statement:

"It certainly pays to trade with the Hilltop merchants."

Mr. Olpp also says there is no need for a man to go to High street to make a purchase as the Hilltop is a distinct shopping district for Hilltop people.

"I am very grateful to the Hilltop merchants who made it possible for me to be presented with a Ford Sedan and extend my best wishes for their success."

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Dinsmore and Miss Anna May Parrett returned home Thursday, April 15, from Winter Haven, Florida.

PIANO RECITAL OF DYER SCHOOL

Mrs. A. O. Dyer will present a group of seventeen pupils in the first four grades at the school home at 272 S. Hague avenue on Monday evening, April 25th, at 7:30 o'clock. The following pupils will play:

Margaret Andrews, Gladys Banker, Katurah Buchanan, Ethel Jane Case, Catherine Combs, Mary Isabelle Collins, Juanita Crowthers, Olive Eagan, Edith May Eagan, Alberta Gulledge, Ruth Harper, Wilmer James, Irma Bartgis, Edward Mider, James Marling, Louise Wintermeyer, Evelyn Tookey.

Miss Margaret Andrews will give an example of the perfect "Up Stroke" and Legato Touch, simultaneously and Miss Ruth Harper of first steps in accompaning.

Selections by Mary Mider, Faye King and Herman Stein of the upper grades will conclude the program.

Owing to limited seats, invitations are extended only to the pupils of the school and their families, all of whom are urged to attend. Former pupils will be cordially welcomed.

WEST SENIORS PRESENT PLAY

"If I Were King" Presented Tuesday Evening in Central High Auditorium

"If I Were King," written by Justin Huntley McCarthy was presented by the Senior class of West High school, Tuesday, April 19 in the Central High school auditorium.

This is probably the best play being presented during the year by any of the high schools. A large number were in attendance and proclaimed the play a decided success.

Main roles were taken as follows: John Wagnitz, 48 N. Park avenue as chancellor to the king; Irene Suddick, 977 W. Broad street took the part of Villon's mother; Mary Stewart, 90 South Ogden avenue as Queen Charlotte and Stanley Hamilton, 156 Midland avenue as Thibaut D'Aussigny, traitor to France, who would deliver Paris into the hands of the Burgundians.

All parts were portrayed in an excellent manner. There were 35 in the cast.

Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth B. Lybarger, 2020 Fairmont Ave., entertained the Five Hundred club Wednesday evening, April 13. Those present were: Mr. and Mrs. M. C. Lauer, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Newhouse, Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Frederick, Mr. and Mrs. Byron Newhouse and Mr. and Mrs. Roger Bellows. The next meeting will be held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Frederick.

The Amity Embroidery club met at the home of Mrs. C. Muller, 227 N. Harris avenue. Those present were Mrs. Park, Mrs. Brant, Mrs. Wilson, Mrs. Schields, Mrs. Loomis, Mrs. Ditrick, Mrs. Bigler and hostess. Next meeting will be at the home of Mrs. Park, 194 N. Harris.

Mr. and Mrs. Dana Masear and children are moving to Sunbury, Ohio.

On Wednesday evening of last week, Mrs. Cora Dayton entertained the members of the W. H. O. at her home, 2338½ W. Broad St. The evening was spent in social conversation and contests. The prize winners were Mrs. Mary Dial, Mrs. Anna Fisher and Mrs. Ethel Nicley. At the close of the evening a lovely luncheon was served the guests who were: Mesdames Fern Gill, Anna Fisher, Ruth Gill, Mary Dial, Helen White, Ethel Nicley, Lula Butts, Elta DeWiesse and the hostess Cora Dayton. On Wednesday, April 20, the club will meet with a potluck dinner and all day sewing at the home of Mrs. Anna Work, 140 N. Roys Ave. and on the evening of May 4, Mrs. Elta DeWiesse will entertain them at her home, 129 N. Park Ave.

Glenwood Choirs Sing On Program

A real treat in the line of entertainment has been promised to the people of the Hilltop for next Monday evening, April 25th. Under the auspices of the young people of Glenwood M. E. church Mrs. Edith Sherman Gustason, head of the Dramatics Department of the Grace Hamilton Morrey school, will present Miss Margaret Huffman in a program recital.

The program will close with a one act missionary playlet "Owin' to Magic," to be presented by pupils of the school. Those taking part in the play are: Mrs. Frances Albright, the Misses Vera Hughes and Dorothy Hammond, Margaret Huffman, Mr. Rex Johnson, Mr. Lawrence Reed, Mr. Thompson and Eugene Garrison.

In addition to this unusually good dramatic program, a fine musical program is to be given by local talent. The combined Junior and Senior choirs of the church consisting of eighty voices will sing under the direction of Mrs. Mary Riddile Walton. Violin solos will be played by Robert Currier and instrumental numbers by church orchestra, directed by Robert Weiler.

This program promises to be one of the best entertainment features of the season and everyone can feel assured of a fine evening. The recital starts promptly at 8 p. m.

THE DUCK'S PARADE

"Quack, quack," said Mrs. Duck.

"Quack, quack," said Miss Duck.

"Quack, quack," said Mrs. Indian Runner Duck.

"Quack, quack," said Miss Indian Runner Duck.

And all the little ducklings said:

"Quack, quack, quack, quack."

Then Mrs. Duck said:

"Quack, quack, we are going to give a party. I am giving it in honor of my young daughter, Daisy Duck. She is such a perfect duck! Such a perfect duck! And I want to give her a party.

"It will be a swimming party."

"Quack, quack, oh dear," said Mrs. Indian Runner Duck.

"Quack, quack, oh dear," said Miss Indian Runner Duck.

"You know I'm not very fond of the water," said Mrs. Indian Runner Duck.

"In fact," she added, "I don't like the water. And I don't believe I'll enjoy your party. In fact, I'm not sure but that I have another invitation on that day and wouldn't be able to accept your very kind thought of me."

Mrs. Indian Runner Duck felt that perhaps she had not been very polite and tried to make the last of her speech sound better than the first.

"Oh, said Mrs. Duck, "I really hadn't finished explaining about my party.

"It will be a swimming party at first for all those who care about swimming but after that it will be a barnyard party.

"We will have all sorts of fun and we will finish off with a splendid dinner.

"I plan to have many different kinds of games played and I thought we'd have a parade which would be a great deal of fun.

"Parades are always amusing.

"Our parade could be called the

The Ducks Sang as They Marched Along.

Duck's Waddling Parade and we could sing or quack as we marched along.

"I made up a marching song to sing as we waddled along. I suppose most would say we couldn't sing, but no matter, in our quacking way it is singing.

"And besides lots only make a noise who call it singing. So why should not the ducks do the same?"

And all the ducks quacked.

"The truth, quack, quack, the truth. Lots only make a noise and they call their noise singing, so why should not the ducks do the same? Why not, indeed? There is no reason why we should not. So we will. Quack, quack, we will."

And Mrs. Duck said:

"Quack, quack, I am so glad that all of you agree with me."

"Let us hear the song," they all called. So Mrs. Duck recited the marching song and this was it:

Quack, quack, quack,
Behind each other's back.
Let us march, march, march!
Quack, quack, quack.

And then she took a breath and began to recite the second verse of the marching song which went like this:

Quack, quack, quack,
Even if grace we lack
Let us march, march, march!
Quack, quack, quack.

The ducks all liked that verse and they quacked-quacked for all they were worth.

Thus encouraged, Mrs. Duck went on:

Quack, quack, quack!
For waddling at least we've a knack,
So let's march, march, march.
Quack, quack, quack!

And yet again Mrs. Duck paused and then began once more to let them hear another verse:

Quack, quack, quack!
Let no one step on a tack
As we march, march, march.
Quack, quack, quack!

They all thought this was excellent advice and all said they would be careful not to do anything of this sort.

And then Mrs. Duck made them all practice their kind of singing and quack-quacking and told them more about the coming party and all decided it would be a splendid affair.

And indeed it was beyond even their high hopes.

FRANKLIN CO. 3rd IN AUTOS

Vinton County Has Least Number of Any County in the State—1833.

Secretary of State Clarence J. Brown has been furnished the figures of the motor vehicles population in the various taxing districts of the state for 1926, compiled in the offices of the Division of Automobile Registration, under the direction of Commissioner of Motor Vehicles Chalmers R. Wilson. The total number of licensed motor vehicles within municipalities is 1,090,440; outside of municipalities, 425,801, or a total in the state of 1,516,241. Cuyahoga county leads of course with 342,714, of which 177,730 are in Cleveland. Hamilton county follows with 166,941, nearly 200,000 less than half the number in Cuyahoga. Franklin county is third in rank with 86,741. Fourth in number of licensed machines is Lucas county with 79,496 and next is Summit county with 72,961. The county having the least licensed machines is Vinton with 1833. Then follows Pike with 2469, Noble, 3261; Monroe, 3501, Adams, 3908 and eleven counties with a little over 4000 machines they being Geauga, Carroll, Harrison, Hocking, Holmes, Jackson, Meigs, Brown, Union, Morrow and Paulding. Only two counties have between five and six thousand, Wyandot and Madison. Clermont, Clinton, Champaign, Fayette, Defiance, Mercer, Preble, Putnam and Warren have between six and seven thousand while Coshocton, Auguaize, Fulton, Hardin, Henry, Highland, Ottawa, Pickaway, Shelby, Van Wert and Williams have between seven and eight thousand. Athens, Huron and Medina a little over 9000 each; Crawford, Erie and Washington, 10,000; Darke, Fairfield, Lake, Marion, Portage and Sandusky, 11,000; Hancock and Seneca, 12,000 and three are in the hoodoo class of 13,000, Miami, Wayne and Wood. Jefferson and Muskingum, 15,000; Ashtabula and Licking, 16,000; Belmont, Richland, Scioto and Tuscarawas, 17,000; Allen, 18,000; Columbiana, 20,224; Clark, 21,104; Butler and Lorain, 24,000; Trumbull, 22,857, Mahoning, 45,882, Stark, 53,497 and Montgomery, 62,405.

The Double Deception

By MRS. E. O. CARLSTON
Author of "For Freedom."

"Then there is no mistake, the girl is your sister. My boy, can't you offer her a brother's love?" Mr. Allison pleaded.

"No, never. I have learned to love her as my intended wife, and am not satisfied to be a brother to her when I expected to be her husband."

"And Norma, how will she take it?"

"I do not know. It will be a horrible blow. Why did we ever met to part like this?" Warren walked excitedly back and forth across the room.

"I do not know which way will be the best to break the news to her," Warren said.

"Probably, since I am her father, it would be best for me to go to her, and tell her the story I just told you," suggested Mr. Allison.

The plan was carried out, and a few days later, when Norma returned from her day's work at the office, she found a distinguished elderly gentleman waiting for her in Mrs. Wendall's parlor. Mrs. Wendall, herself, Norma noticed, had tears in her eyes, and hastily left the room.

Mr. Allison arose to greet Norma.

"I am Mr. Allison," he explained. "You are Miss—" he hesitated—Wentworth, I presume."

"Yes. I am very glad to see you Mr. Allison," Norma said a trifle shyly.

"Miss—ah—Wentworth, I am sorry, but I have some bad news for you." Norma wondered if he disapproved her marriage to his son, because of their different stations in life. Mr. Allison proceeded:

"Norma, tell me something about your mother."

The girl thought her conjecture was right, and not being particularly proud of her parentage, made the explanation as brief as possible. When she finished, he asked:

"Have you ever heard her mention your father?"

"I have not."

Then Mr. Allison told her the story Warren had listened to several days before.

"So you see, Norma, I am your father and Warren is your brother. The knowledge has nearly driven him mad, but I hope you will take a sensible view of the situation."

Norma felt as though she were having a bad dream from which she would soon awaken to find life lovely and bright; but no such an awakening came to her. Day after day, she became more and more depressed. Like Warren, she was not content with their new relation. Under any other circumstances, she would have been glad to learn who her father was, but why should the knowledge be accompanied by such a shock as this, she wondered. Being unable to continue working at the office where memories haunted her, she remained home with Mrs. Wendall all the time, Mr. Allison having left a liberal allowance for her in his cousin's care.

Time went on. Warern did not return to Boston and a new manager was given charge of the business belonging to Mr. Allison. Winter snows melted away; spring came; and still Norma had a vacant space in her heart. One lovely day, a coupe stopped in front of Wendall's residence, and Edna Browning stepped out. She ascended the steps to the front porch and rang the bell.

"Is Norma here?" she asked.

As Norma was upstairs, Mrs. Wendall sent Edna up to the girl's room.

"Hello, there; how's the world treating you?" she said to Norma, who had her back to the door. When her friend turned around, Edna was surprised at the changed expression of her face. The tear swollen, sad, wistful eyes indicated that trouble had come to her.

"I'm sorry you caught me looking like this," Norma said, trying to force a smile of welcome, but almost failing to do so.

"I'm sorry, too," Edna said, and added, "Wish you would tell me what your trouble is. Probably I could help you."

"No one can help me," Norma said bitterly.

"It sometimes lightens one's burdens just to tell them to someone. Try it, Norma," Edna insisted, placing her coat in the clothespress. As Edna, her sister and mother had spent the winter in the south, Edna knew nothing of Norma's love affair. Norma, after a little persuasion, told Edna everything, how she had been so happy with Warren, about his going home, and of Mr. Allison's visit to her and its object.

Edna, sympathizing with her friend, and feeling that the girl needed a little recreation, decided to try to persuade her to go for a ride. The little coupe with its two passengers was soon outside the city limits. They followed the road to a small village about fifty miles from the city. Edna drove to a filling station to buy gasoline, then turned the car back toward home.

They had traveled three-fourths of the distance, and were going down a hill. Before they reached level ground, the road made a sharp turn to the left. Edna turned the steering wheel, accordingly, but to her dismay, the car continued to go straight ahead. The steering gear had broken. Norma, although thoroughly scared, was the first to regain her presence of mind. She hastily put on the emergency brake, but it was too late—the car had reached the embankment, which, though only a little more than two feet high, was steep and dangerous. The car turned over. To Edna, when after a few minutes, she regained her senses, everything seemed to be revolving around her. Then her vision became clear, and she felt less dizzy than at first. She thought of Norma. Two feet from the spot where Edna stood, Norma lay on the ground apparently insensible.

She tried to lift Norma in her arms, but the weight was too much for her.

"I will have to get help," she reasoned. Hastily climbing the fatal embankment, Edna sprang onto the road, and seeing a machine coming, hailed it; but the occupants, having no thought for anyone but themselves, sped on their way. The next driver that passed was more considerate. He stopped the car, when he noticed Edna, and hurried to the place where Norma lay. After a brief examination, he found that she was bruised and cut and had struck her head on something hard when the acciden toccurred which had caused her to become unconscious.

"We will have to take her to a hospital, immediately, if we want to save her life," he said, gathering the form in his strong arms, and placing her in the back seat of his car. They reached the city and Norma was soon under the care of doctors and nurses, who dressed her bruises, and by the use of their skill, restored the patient to consciousness. For days, she lay moaning on the little white bed, complaining of a terrible pain in her head. Edna gave the patient's name as Norma Wentworth, as she knew that being addressed as Miss Allison would not help the girl's recovery. The nurse who was given charge of Norma took a great interest in her patient.

As soon as Norma had recovered from the accident enough to talk, she learned that her nurse's name was Bradford. Miss Bradford asked her one day:

"Miss Wentworth, have you ever lived in Illinois?"

"Yes."

"You were brought up in the home of Mr. Morgan?"

"Yes, do you know the Morgans?"

GUM-DIPPED tires are DEPENDABLE and every important speedway event in this country in the past five years has been won on them. Race drivers will not trust their lives on any other tires.
The same noteworthy attributes in these great tires—that make them winners in these terrific grinds of the race track—stand out prominently in the excellent service they are giving as regular equipment on millions of private cars throughout the whole world—FIRESTONE TIRES have extraordinary strength, endurance and flexibility—they are the only GUM-DIPPED tires.

Tables Ordinance

City council Monday night tabled an ordinance calling for an appropriation of $9000 for construction of a storm sewer in Mound street, from Wheatland to Belvidere avenue.

The Areme club of Robert Morris Chapter of the Eastern Star will meet at the home of Mrs. Rue Fishbaugh, 233 S. Terrace St., Monday evening, April 25. Covered dish dinner will be served at six o'clock.

At noon on Tuesday, April 12, a few of the friends of Mrs. Anna Fisher assembled at the home of Mary Dial with a pot luck dinner and farewell, honoring Mrs. Fisher who leaves this city to take up new duties in another town. Those present were: Mrs. Una Wonnell of Indiana, Mrs. Anna Work, Ethel Nicley, Lula Buttis, Grace Delong, Mary Dial, Helen White and Mrs. Anna Work. A pleasant social time was had and all departed wishing Mrs. Fisher the best of success in her new work.

The Philathea class of St. Paul's United Evangelical Sunday school, South Warren avenue, met at the home of Mrs. H. Maupin, 373 S. Warren Ave., Tuesday evening, April 12, for their regular monthly business and social meeting. Seventeen members and one visitor were present. After the business meeting the hostess served refreshments. The class is growing in numbers and interest. All married ladies, who have no church home, are cordially invited to join this class. Mrs. H. D. Shults is the teacher.

KEEP KIDDIES KONTENTED

Hilltop Library Drive May 9 to 16—Every Loyal Hilltopper Should Give Support—$1500 is the Goal

Owen Harrison, Appointed Chairman of Committee to Raise Fund.

Open House at Library From 12 to 9 P. M. Friday May 6th.

The Holmes Hilltop Library has just turned its back on another most successful year. Into the future, with high spirits and enthusiasm, we must carry on this wonderful and noble enterprise. Great undertakings are not completed in a moment of time and now after several years of struggle and hard work let us all put our shoulders behind the wheel and roll into the treasury of the Holmes Hilltop Library Fund a meager $1500.

Can you immagine in your mind a library being financed for one year on such a small sum? That is all that is asked.

Those of you who have never visited the Hilltop Library above the bank are given a most cordial invitation to do so on Friday, May 6th. That date has been set aside as "Open House." The entire day from 12 noon until 9:00 p. m. will be in charge of the three Parent-Teachers Associations of the Hilltop. Tea will be served by the women of these various associations and it is hoped that several hundred Hilltop people will acquaint themselves with this splendid Hilltop institution. Be there.

6000 books on shelves.

145 books (average) out per day.

Total books out last year, 44,531.

10 magazines regularly subscribed for.

Pay shelf—50 books of current fiction.

A fine record for our Hilltop community. We should be proud of it and support it. Will you help?

Mr. Owen Harrison, manager of the Hilltop bank has announced the following organizations to assist him:

Vice chairman, "Herb" Deems, publicity; vice chairmen, Harry Butler and M. W. Seiller, business solicitation; vice chairman, Dr. E. P. Rauch, residence solicitation; vice chairman, C. W. Michel, organization solicitation; secretary, Dr. M. K. Webber; treasurer, C. H. Campbell.

If you are called on to help, do your part. Let's go over the top.

Following is a copy of the subscription blank you will be asked to sign:

Interesting Meeting Of Missionary Society

The study of the advance of Christ's kingdom, among the colored people, both at home and abroad, was the topic of the Women's Missionary society of Hoge Memorial church. Mrs. C. E. Johnson, president of the Woman's Missionary society of the Oakley Avenue Baptist church read a most interesting paper on the work done in their church and among the colored people of Africa. She said they have rebuilt and enlarged their church and it is altogether clear of debt. They are striving for more civic pride, ideal home-life and harmony among their people. It was read in a most charming manner.

Mrs. S. M. Kingery read a paper on the work of the Presbyterian church among colored people in Africa, telling particularly about the work at Elat. This was admirably done as she was substituting for a member who was unable to come. Mrs. W. G. Davis led the devotional service, and the dangerous period China is passing through was particularly remembered.

Mrs. Horn and Mrs. Finley were hostesses, serving delightful tea-time refreshments.

Mrs. R. O. Jones, 30 N. Ogden Ave., entertained the Loyal Sewing club at a 1 o'clock luncheon on Wednesday, April 20. Covers were laid for the following members: Mrs. David Knox, Mrs. D. T. Reese, Mrs. W. H. Knox, Mrs. Dora Johnson and Mrs. Laura McElrath. The guests present were: Mrs. J. R. Allison, Mrs. George Allenbaugh and Mrs H. C. Englehard.

Mr. and Mrs. Grady left for Marion to visit Mrs. Grady's mother, Mrs. Emma Thompson. The couple will reside temporarily at 40 North Ogden avenue.

A Correction

A typographical error appears in the address of the Guffey Vocal Studio ad on page 3. The studio is located at 2375½ West Broad street, instead of 2475½ as the ad reads.

The Bethany Bible class will meet at the home of Mrs. O. H. Carter, 69 N. Hague Ave., on Friday, April 29, from 2 to 4 p. m. Lesson study begins with Numbers, chapter 55.

A surprise party was given Miss Dorothy Louise Ruegg last Saturday evening by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Ruegg, 110 S. Koyo Avenue, in honor of her 18th birthday. A large party of friends walked in about 8:30 and the bewildered expression on Miss Ruegg's face left no doubt as to the completeness of the surprise. A very enjoyable evening was spent playing games and winning and losing contests, in which competition was very keen. At a late hour delicious refreshments, including an ice cream basket full of Easter eggs were served, after which all departed having spent a very enjoyable evening. Those present were: Misses Selma Houdashelt, Beatrice Converse, Mabel Thomas, Pie and Margaret Petry, Charlotte Rogers, Alice and Helen Snider, Evelyn Poulson, Martha Legg, Peggy Johnson, Mr. Henry Shults, John Newlon, Fred Potts, Morris Wilson, Lyle Rhinehart, Glen Moran, Paul McCune, John Plant, Mr. and Mrs. Marshall Carmen, Rev. and Mrs. N. J. Broadway and sons Arthur and Norman, Mrs. M. D. Shults and son John David.

SCARING A GRIZZLY

A veteran hunter tells of a bear that backed out of a fight, frightened by a man's acrobatic performances. Here is the story in his own words:

"A famous guide courageously advanced upon three grizzlies, an old she-bear, and two half-grown cubs, and by a series of ridiculous monkeyshines and acrobatic maneuvers on the ground within a rod or two of the bears, filled them with such astonishment and apparent fear that the three hastily retreated into the woods, leaving him unharmed, saved from a precarious situation by his quick wit.

"The guide's gun had snapped in both barrels, when he had drawn it on the old bear before the cubs bears appeared. He said afterwards that it was in a fit of desperation that he tried the turning of a handspring, and jumping up and down, flopping his hands, and resorting to other unhunter-like measures.

"He told me once that a hunter had frightened a mountain lion away by similar absurd movements, and he found that they worked to perfection in the case of the bears, although he did not encourage anyone to go hunting grizzlies armed with nothing more than a capacity to turn somersaults."

INSTALLS NEW COOLING SYSTEM

Always endeavoring to keep his food stuffs in the best possible condition, Ray G. Haunts has just completed the installation of a complete Frigidair system in his store at Broad and Hague.

The new system just installed is entirely electrical in its operation, eliminating the use of ice, thereby keeping the refrigerators at an even desired temperature, thus eliminating any chance of spoiled food stuffs coming from the refrigeration cases.

The large meat cooler is now fully equipped with this new system as well as the display cases for the meats and the delicatessen departments.

WINNECK COMET VISIBLE JUNE 26

Rare as are days in June, a night in June this year will be rarer, for about midnight, on or about June 26, mortal eye will see unaided what it never saw before except through telescopes—the Winnecke or Pons-Winnecke comet.

The comet at present can be discerned only through the most powerful instruments of astronomers, but for about one night in June it will be visible to the naked eye, according to Prof. George Van Biesbroeck of Yerkes observatory of the University of Chicago, here.

SATURDAY

There's a lot of nice things about Sunday,
But it isn't much of a fun day;
Kids aren't allowed to do much at all—
Can't shoot marbles, can't even play ball.

School days follow, five in a row.
Gosh, time passes awfully slow
'Til Saturday comes, and then, oh boy!
We hop from bed with a whoop of joy.

Into some old clothes, out with the gang—
Soon the day starts off with a bang!
So many exciting things to do!
Injuns to fight, and bold pirates, too.

Saturday, glad day, best day of all—
Dashing and gay, like a bright Spanish shawl;
Day for adventure, laughter and noise,

THE ASTERS AND THE TREES

We're all fond of the autumn," said the Red-Stalked or Purple-Stemmed, Aster, "though some of us stay around longer than others of us if that is the correct way for me to speak.

"I am well known and well liked, I believe. My name is as it is because my stem is reddish. There are a number of flowers on various little stems from my one big stem and I'm of a violet color or pale lavender color.

"We have thin leaves which aren't very big, quite different from the leaves of our cousin, Large-Leaved Aster.

"Those cousins, as you can guess, have large leaves. Their name tells you that.'"

"Ah, yes," said Billie Brownie, "I do know that bit of information now that I have seen those cousins of yours."

"Oh, Do Tell Me the Secret," Said Billie Brownie.

Then Billie Brownie went and called on Late Purple Aster.

The Late Purple Asters were larger flowers, with long, thin petals and yellow centers.

"You see," they told Billie Brownie, "we're very fond of brilliant coloring, and the autumn is the time when the coloring is so wonderful.

"Of course, when we arrrive in the middle of the summer the coloring is beautiful, for the harvest makes it so rich and lovely, and then the Golden-rods are about, and they are so splendidly gay and bright in appearance.

"Then the Black-Eyed Susans are about, and all of the different Aster relatives are to be found in the different home spots.

"And from the middle of the summer on it seems to us as though the coloring grew more wonderful day after day, week after week.

"When the autumn is actually here, then it gets so that its beauty is beyond expression.

"We wondered how it could be so beautiful this year as, day after day, it did become more marvelous and the trees told us a secret and the shrubs and the vines said that the secret was one in which they shared, too.

"But they told me we could tell the secret to anyone really interested in Nature.

"And we see that you are, Billie Brownie.'"

"Oh, do tell me the secret," said Billie Brownie. "It will give me so much pleasure to hear it."

"We asked the trees how it was that they grew lovlier each day and how it was that they could become so wonderful.

"It seemed to us that each day we could not see them any more beautiful, and yet they were more beautiful and we could tell that people felt the same way about them.

"People would say that the days were so wonderful that they could not describe them—that they had used up all their words.

"And the trees told us this:

"'Late Purple Asters,' the trees said as they swayed in the breeze, 'we are Mother Nature's children, and we want to look our best for our mother before we take off our finery and go to sleep.

"'We are so pleased that she is pleased that we go on each day trying to look better and better, each of us doing the same.

"'We add a dash of color here or a dash of color there, and we just try to please her more and more and more. And, as we try to please her more and more and more, we keep improving ourselves and looking better and better.

"'You know, this is the secret: When we receive praise which is deserved from one we so dearly love we do better and better and better.

"'Praise only makes us want to show that we will not disappoint the one who thinks so well of us. We will be worthy of that praise.'

"That was the secret the trees told us," the flowers ended.

And Billie Brownie thought it was a beautiful secret, but he was glad that all could hear the secret who were really interested in Nature.

"CORPORATIONS HAVE NO SOULS"

In the same sentiment as "the public be damned," which, fairly or unfairly, is the attitude often attributed to corporations, we frequently hear the saying that "Corporations have no souls."

Although the words have no alien sound to American ears, it is in England that the saying had its origin, its first recorded usage being in a famous lawsuit that was fought in the English courts.

Its authorship is credited to Sir Edward Coke, who during the proceedings in the case of Sutton's hospital, is recorded to have said: "They (corporations) cannot commit treason nor be outlawed nor excommunicated, for they have no souls." Subsequently this was affirmed by Lord Thurlow, who is recorded as having said: "You never expected justice from a corporation, did you? They have neither a soul to lose nor a body to wick."

LITTLE MARY'S GOOD MORNING TO GOD

"O! I am so happy!" the little girl said,
And she sprang like a lark from the low trundle bed.
"It is morning, bright-morning; good morning papa!
O! Give me one kiss for good morning, mamma!
Only just look at my pretty canary,
Chirping his sweet good morning to Mary.
The sunshine is peeping straight into my eyes!
Good morning to you, Mr. Sun, for you rise
Early to wake up my birdie and me."

"Happy you may be, my dear little girl,"
And the mother stroked softly a clustering curl,
"Happy as can be, but think of the one
Who wakened this morning both you and the sun."
The little one turned her bright eyes with a nod,
"Mama, may I say, good morning to God."
"Yes, little darling one, surely you may,
Kneel as you kneel every morning to pray."

Mary knelt solemnly down with her eyes,
Looking up earnestly into the skies,
And two little hands that were folded together,
Softly she laid on the lap of her mother.
"Good morning, dear Father in Heaven," she said,
"I thank thee for watching my snug little bed:
For taking good care of me all the dark night,
And waking me up with the beautiful light.
O! keep me from naughtiness all the long day,
Blest Jesus, who taught little children to pray."

An angel looked down in the sunshine and smiled:
But she saw not the angel, that beautiful child.

The above lines, written by an unknown author, surely commend themselves to every father and mother that have had or are having experience in the rearing and training of little children, by their touching beauty of sentiment, so full are they of the innocence and simplicity of childhood. Imagine a little soul of only few years being filled with joy at its happy surroundings that it overflows with greetings and thankfulness to God.

The Double Deception

By MRS. E. O. CARLSTON
Author of "For Freedom."

Before a week had passed, an unforseen circumstance occurred which hindered the rapid progress he was making. Bill Harvey, anxious to see Beatrice, arrived one day from the East, and was surprised to find Warren in the neighborhood. Beatrice had had practice in managing two young men at one time, and rather enjoyed the situation. One evening, Warren and Bill walked back to the village together.

"What is your game, Warren?" Bill asked, curiously. "You certainly aren't working for my interests now, are you?"

"I was employed to care for their baby, and was there when your mother was installed as housekeeper at the Morgan home. I took care of you for a few weeks too," Miss Bradford said with a smile. Then she went on: "It was too bad that little Beatrice had to die." I felt so sorry for the poor motherless darling, and loved her more than any baby I have ever seen. She was committed to my care by her dying mother, and I was very much grieved to hear of her death.

"What do you mean, Miss Bradford?" Norma questioned, in wonder. "Beatrice Morgan is living and well. She completed her education about a year ago."

"Are you sure?" Miss Bradford asked.

"Yes, indeed. I lived in the same house with her for more than eighteen years."

Miss Bradford did not wish to say anything to excite her patient, but she knew that there was a mystery somewhere. That night, when she was off duty, she determined to solve the problem. Taking an old letter from a place where she kept old keepsakes, Miss Bradford sat down to read it again. It was a short letter from Mrs. Wentworth, informing Miss Bradford that Beatrice Morgan had died a week before the letter was written.

Miss Bradford was convinced that the woman had lied.

"Why did she?" the nurse wondered. "She had some reason for wishing me to think Beatrice was dead. Was it because she knew I did not care enough about the other inmates of the household to even return to visit them unless Beatrice was there?"

This seemed to be the only plausible reason for Mrs. Wentworth's action. The next question was: Why had Mrs. Wentworth wanted to be sure that she, Miss Bradford, would never return to the Morgan home? Was there something Miss Bradford knew that would have thwarted any plan Mrs. Wentworth might have made? The nurse remembered how strongly the two babies had resembled one another. Then she knew the solution of the whole problem.

"She changed the babies in their beds, causing her child to grow up in pleasant surroundings, while the girl who rightfully belonged to Mr. Morgan was known to the world as Norma Wentworth. What a despicable thing to do!" Emily Bradford thought. "I could be wrong and maybe Mrs. Wentworth had another motive for her duplicity, but she could not have had another that I can think of."

Before Norma left the hospital, Miss Bradford learned of the girl's love affair with Warren Allison, who everyone concerned believed to be Norma's brother. Miss Bradford sent a letter to Warren, telling him she had some information for him, which she dared not put on paper. She urged him to come to Boston immediately. In less than a week's time, Warren answered the summons. As Miss Bradford stayed at a home for nurses, when not on duty, there was no place where she could speak to him privately. This, she explained to him, so he called a taxi, telling him to drive through the streets until told to stop.

"I am a friend of Norma Wentworth she began, "knew her when she was a baby."

Warren was all attention at once. Then Miss Bradford told him of the accident, about Norma being placed under her care at the hospital. Warren was much concerned when he learned that Norma had been injured, and was relieved to learn that the results had not been serious. Miss Bradford went on:

"She tells me that you are acquainted with a girl by the name of Beatrice Morgan. Is that so?"

"Yes, we became acquainted when we were at college."

Miss Bradford gave him the letter she had received from Mrs. Wentworth many years before. As it was dark, he could not see to read it then.

"When you read that letter, and consider some of the things I am going to tell you, I think you will agree with me that there is a possibility that the girl known as Norma Wentworth is not your sister."

The faint hope of such a possibility made Warern feel almost cheerful again. Miss Bradford told him everything she could remember connected with the babyhood of the two girls, of Mr. Morgan's trip to Europe, of her dismissal, which left the housekeeper to do as she pleased in Mr. Morgan's home before he returned from Europe.

"I think it would be a good idea for you to spend a few weeks in that part of the country where the Morgans live. Pretend you are interested in Beatrice, as she is called. Be sure to let Mrs. Wentworth know, in a tactful way, who you are. If she learns that you are her son, and knows that Beatrice is her daughter, she will try to interfere with your friendship. In the meantime, I will not mention the matter to Norma as we may be mistaken after all."

Warren thanked her for the information and promised to leave for Illinois the following day.

CHAPTER XIII

The winter following the Morgan's sojourn to California passed very slowly and monotonously to Beatrice. Few young people lived in that neighborhood, and Mr. Morgan, although inclined to humor most of Beatrice's whims, was still wrapped up in his business affairs to such an extent that his company did not make the time pass more quickly or pleasantly to her. Mrs. Wentworth showed a strong desire to be an intimate friend to Beatrice, but the girl, being very proud, resented Mrs. Wentworth's advances, and the woman soon ceased to trouble her.

During the coldest months, letters from various friends and acquaintances were the only communications Beatrice had with the outside world. She often wondered why Waren did not write but allowed the long pages she received from Bill Harvey to console her for Warren's neglect. One day, she tore open an envelope post marked "Eastfield." It contained a card bearing the following information:

"Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Call announce the marriage of their daughter, Helen, to Mr. George Wyman," etc.

Beatrice was surprised at the news as she had not expected that they would marry so soon.

"Even being married to a poor man isn't so bad as living in this place with plenty of cash and no chance to spend it," Beatrice complained. "The monotony of this life is nearly killing me." She could not see what the near future held for her, or she would have been worried over another matter. The cold winter came to an end, and the air grew warm. Then came a special delivery letter from Warren Allison. Beatrice was surprised to receive a letter from him and wondered why he had written her after waiting so long.

"He is coming to see me, and will be in this neighborhood for several weeks. Now, I shall learn why Mrs. Wentworth acted so queer when she saw his name. The old cat! She's got a past all right," Beatrice said half aloud, after reading Warren's letter.

In a few days, the writer himself, knocked at the front door of the Morgan home. Beatrice, looking through a window saw who it was. As Mrs. Wentworth was also in the same room, Beatrice allowed her to go to the door, and closely watched the expression of the woman's face. Warren was wondering whether or not he was face to face with his own mother. He handed the woman a card, bearing his name. She gave a little start, then instantly controlled herself, but Warren and Beatrice, both watching her intently, knew that she was agitated. Although Beatrice was more perplexed than ever over the situation, Warren was rapidly nearing a satisfactory conclusion. He lost no time throwing his hook.

He stepped inside the house, and took both of Beatrice's hands in his, under the eyes of Mrs. Wentworth.

"How's my sweetheart?" he asked.

"Who are you talking to?" Beatrice asked impudently. "You were looking directly at our housekeeper, Mrs. Wentworth."

Warern realized that he had blundered, but was quick to retrieve himself.

"I was merely wondering why she was so slow to leave the room," he said in a low tone.

As this was the first time she had seen anyone "from a civilized world," as she put it, since she and Helen had parted the previous autumn, Beatrice was very glad to see Warren, though she acknowledged to herself that she was longing to see Bill Harvey, too. It did not require much coaxing to persuade Warren to take his evening meal with the Morgan family. Mrs. Wentworth supervised the meal, seeing that everyone's wants were supplied. Warren noticed that her hand shook nervously when she placed a cup of coffee beside his plate. When he had gained all of the information obtainable that day, Warren took his leave, determining to call every day until he had solved the mystery, or rather, proved his and Miss Bradford's theory to be correct.

THE WHY of SUPERSTITIONS
By H. IRVING KING

PEARLS

There is an ancient and deeply rooted superstition that pearls have such a sympathetic connection with their owner that they lose their luster when the owner sickens and change to a dull and lifeless hue when the owner dies. Madame Thiers had a famous necklace of pearls presented to her by her husband, the president of France, which she left in her will to the French nation. The story at once began to go abroad that these pearls had "sickened and died" owing to the death of their owner. This story appeared at intervals for several years and came to be accepted by the majority of people as a "strange fact." Then Dr. George Frederick Kunz, an authority on the history of precious stones, went to the Louvre where the necklace was deposited and made an examination. The pearls were in perfect condition. He had the director of the Louvre museum write him a letter on the subject and the director in the letter stated that the pearls were then and had always been in a perfectly "healthy state. The story had no foundation whatever and yet there are thousands today who will quote you Madame Thiers' pearls as a proof of the truth of the superstition.

Doctor Kunz suggests that this idea of the "sickening and death" of pearls was invented by unscrupulous persons to account for the deteriorated appearance of gems which were no good in the first place. But the antiquity and ubiquity of the superstition would hardly bear out that superstition. The origin of the superstition must be looked for among those mystic and mythological conceptions with which the ancients surrounded the pearl, principally it would seem because of the (to them) mystery of its origin. The dews of heaven according to Pliny, the tears of the Naiads according to the Greeks, the blood of a princess according to the Tonquinese, are among the many origins anciently assigned for the pearl. And always the pearl has been accredited with possessing a particular affinity with its owner or wearer. Some primitive people today wear them as amulets to bring them health and luck; while others reject them as bringing bad luck and sapping their vitality. As late as 1692 a German scientists seriously discussed the question as to whether the mysterious deaths of Popes Leo IV and Paul II might not have been largely caused by the great number of pearls those pontiffs were in the habiting of wearing.

Developers of Better Homes on the Hilltop

2836 WEST BROAD ST.

We have several high-class and strictly modern homes in Broadview, Westgate and Westgate Park, built by responsible builders, who are offering them at this time at prices we believe to be below their present market value and on terms that will enable anyone who is desirous of owning their own home to buy.

Our West Side Branch was established for the purpose of serving the people of that section of Columbus and we want you to feel that your interests are our interests. We know real estate values and will not offer anything to the buyer that in our judgment is not worth the price asked.

We have also several real nice homes in desirable neighborhoods at prices from $4500 up, on reasonable terms. Now is the time to buy real estate before the summer rush increases the price.

We have a number of calls for rental property. List your rental property with us and we will secure you desirable tenants.

OBITUARY

CHARLES MANTLE THOMAS.

Mr. Thomas, retired employe of the Columbus Railway, Power & Light Co., died at his home 75 South Ogden avenue, Sunday night, of paralysis, with which he was stricken April 20. He was 76 years of age. Mr. Thomas had resided in Columbus 25 years and held membership in Glenwood Methodist Episcopal church. The pastor of that church, Rev. George F. Barber officiated at his funeral services, which were held at the residence at 10 o'clock, Wednesday morning. The interment took place in Pleasant Hill cemetery, West Jefferson. Surviving him are his wife, Mrs. Rockesiana Thomas; four sons, Laris F. Thomas of Willard, Ohio, and John C., Ferls A. and Smithfield, all of this city.

THELMA JANE CRAWLEY.

6-month-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Alphonso Crawley, rear 365 Belvidere avenue, died at 8 o'clock Monday morning at the family home after a brief illness from indigestion. Funeral services were held at the residence of the child's grandmother, Mrs. H. L. Kelly, 423 Oakley avenue Wednesday. Burial was made in Union cemetery.

MRS. WILLIE SUE CHAPMAN

Mrs. Chapman, aged 55, widow of Harvey H. Chapman, 345 Highland Ave., died of creeping paralysis Monday at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Nannie E. Jones, 150 N. Twenty-second street. Surviving are a son, Noble C. Chapman; her daughter, her mother, and five brothers. Funeral services were held Wednesday afternoon at the Shiloh Baptist church. Burial in Green Lawn cemetery.

JOSEPH BARKENDUS

Joseph Barkendus, 42, of 1481 Thomas Ave., painter, died at his home Tuesday from complication. Surviving him are his widow, Clara Barkendus; a son, two daughters, three brothers and three sisters. Funeral was held at St. Aloysius church, followed by interment in Calvary cemetery.

CARDS OF THANKS

I wish to thank my friends and neighbors for the kindnesses shown me during my recent loss, the death of my husband. For the beautiful floral offerings and to Rev. Hutchinson for his consoling words.

Mrs. Belle Schwartzle.

We wish to extend our heartiest thanks to our neighbors and friends for their kindness shown us at the death of our mother, Mrs. Phebe Hand; also for their beautiful floral offerings, and to Rev. Hutchison for his kind service, and to Mr. and Mrs. Kohn for their kind services rendered.

Mr. and Mrs. Philip Hand and Relatives.

Dr. C. E. Turley, former pastor of Glenwood Methodist Episcopal church and Mrs. Turley, returned on Friday to their home in Dayton after a visit of five days with Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Phalor, 2528 West Broad street. Dr. Turley is pastor of the Epworth Methodist Episcopal church in Dayton, which was dedicated on Easter Sunday. In a party motoring from Columbus to Dayton for the dedication were: Mrs. E. L. Phalor and daughter, Mildred, 2528 West Broad street; Mrs. Virgil Cone and son, Robert, 31 North Park avenue; Miss Helen Hulsey, 208 North Terrace street; Mr. and Mrs. Wiley Phillips, 48 Midland avenue, and Mrs. Edith Williams, 50 Midland avenue.

The library of Congress at Washington, D. C., contains a collection of section is the second largest in the more than one million item of music world.

SOME folks call up and ask if we Will clean an awfully dirty suit. Our answer then is "Certainly— And press it very nice, to boot."

Of Interest to the People of the Hilltop and Vicinity

Vol. XI. The Hilltop, Columbus, Ohio, May 5, 1927 No. 1

Open House at Hilltop Library Friday, May 6

Six Thousand Books Available to Hilltop Youth—Is It Worthy of Your Support to Help Keep Kiddies Kontented?

May 9th to 16th has been set aside for the raising of funds for the Holmes Hilltop Library. Think of it—only $1500 to finance this library for one year. We wonder how it is done.

What would our city be without a library? What would our Hilltop be without a library? Our boys and girls must be cared for and surely our fine Hilltop Library is a means of further developing the minds of our youth. The convenience of it all—a Hilltop institution, centrally located, supported by Hilltop citizens—an excellent librarian, from the Hilltop, if you please. What more could be asked?

A great many Hilltop business men and busy Hilltop housewives are going to give generously of their time and talent to make the library a success in 1927. You will be called upon to give of your money. Let's put it over!

Dr. Rauch, as chairman of the residential division, has about completed his organization.

When you are called upon be ready with your contribution. Surely no person on this good old Hilltop would or could argue against such a splendid community asset—so be ready when your busy friends call upon you. Support it with cold hard cash.

Through the Hilltop Record the committee will publish for you the names of all who subscribe to the library fund. The names will be grouped as follows: Group No. 1, $5 and over; Group No. 2, $2 to $5; Group No. 3, $2 and less

We want everyone to visit the Hilltop Library this coming Friday, May 6. Remember, open house from 12 noon to 9 p. m. Mrs. C. W. Barrell will be in complete charge, with members of the three Hilltop Parent-Teacher Associations as her co-workers. Tea will be served from 2 until 4 and from 7 to 9. Here is a fine opportunity for you to chat with your neighbors and friends and become better acquainted with the workings of our library. Remember, Friday, May 6—noon until 9 p. m.

The following district captains have been appointed and will work under the direction of Dr. Rauch, residential district chairman:

District No. 4—Mrs. O. J. Llaville, North Wheatland avenue to North Burgess avenue, inclusive, north of Broad street.

District No. 5—Mrs. J. Looker, Ogden avenue, west to Big Four tracks, north of Broad street.

District No. 7—Earl Meyers, South of Sullivant avenue west of Eureka.

District No. 8—Mrs. Richard McIntyre, south of Sullivant avenue east of Eureka avenue.

The following business district captains have been appointed and will work under the direction of H. G. Butler and M. W. Seiller, business district chairmen:

District No. 1—Park to Wheatland, north of Broad; Oakley to Lechner, south of Broad, J. Q. Hartsough.

District No. 2—Oakley to Terrace, south of Broad, Fred Raether.

District No. 3—Park to Terrace, north of Broad, W. L. Millikin.

District No. 4—Hague avenue, west, C. W. Barrell.

District No. 5—North Terrace to Hague and South Terrace to Hague, M. K. Weber.

District No. 6—Both sides of Sullivant avenue from Eureka avenue west to Hague avenue, H. A. Rapp.

District No. 7—Both sides of Sullivant avenue from Eureka, east to Central avenue, Earl H. Douglass.

Partially Overcome By Monoxide Gas

John Jones, 237 N. Harris avenue, was partially overcome by monoxide gas last Friday night while working in his garage with the doors closed.

While working on his automobile in his garage he began to feel faint and staggered to the house. Members of the household rushed him to a physician where he quickly recovered. He was able to go to his work Saturday morning.

Mr. and Mrs. Daniel Churton and sons John and Dan and Miss Leonie Isaacs of Huntington, W. Va., spent Sunday with Mrs. Churton's mother, Mrs. Isabel Burnside, 93 N. Powell avenue. Paul Churton, who has been in Columbus the past five weeks returned to Huntington with his parents Sunday.

MINSTREL SHOW; SPECIALTY ACTS

Westwood K. of P. Lodge Will Entertain For Members and Friends Monday Eve.

A minstrel show and specialty acts are on the two-part program next Monday night when Westwood Lodge No. 770, K. of P. will entertain for K. of P. members and their friends at their hall, West Broad street and Burgess avenue.

The minstrel talent will all be K. of P. members, mostly of Westwood lodge and will be assisted by Mentor lodge orchestra, with music.

The second part of the show will be made up of specialty acts, those taking part being Jack Sherrick and his partner, in acts that will bring down the house; Dorothy Hammerstein, Lillian Smoot, Floyd Carson and two others.

An added and interesting feature of the evenings entertainment will be the prize given to the member of any K. of P. lodge having the largest family present at the entertainment. Any K. of P., whether a member of Westwood lodge or any other K. of P. lodge is eligible to enter this contest.

The committee feels that they are offering to K. of P. members something really worth while and that they will enjoy and are looking forward to a packed house next Monday night.

Friday evening the Junior High school department of Glenwood church will have one of the most interesting meetings of the year. E. J. Yantis, in charge of the identification bureau, will give an interesting talk on "Crime and Criminology and Finger Print Signs." Games and recreation will be under the direction of H. C. Weiler.

New Auto Paint Shop

A new auto paint shop has been opened on the Hilltop by the Beck Piano Repair Co., Floral avenue. Mr. Beck, in charge of the shop, is well known on the Hilltop as a fine piano finisher, and with his new equipment is now able to spray paint and turn out a finished auto job in 24 to 48 hours.

Miss Evangeline Reams, of the Friend's Rescue Home on North Hague avenue, left Tuesday for Brighton, Mich., to spend ten days with friends.

The weekly meeting of the R. C. S. club was held at the home of Emma Lohr, 444 S. Ogden Ave. Those present were Edith Temple, Catherine Maupin, Madge Marking, Corinne Miller, Emma Lohr, Olive Grimm, Lucinda Groves and Lucille Miller.

LEGIONNAIRES AID SUFFERERS

Five Hundred Legion Posts in State Asked to Aid in Relief Work.

Herbert R. Mooney of Woodsfield, commander of the American Legion in Ohio, last week issued a call to the five hundred Legion Posts in the state for contributions to the fund being raised for relief work in the Mississippi Valley.

In his communication to the Posts Mr. Mooney stated that in order to save time it is advised that the contributions of individual Legionnaires or of Posts be made directly to the local Red Cross organization instead of through state headquarters of the Legion.

J. J. Saslavsky, Department Adjutant, citing the Lorain, Santa Barbara, Lake Denmark and Florida disasters, states that the response of the Legion Posts has always been prompt when the ex-service men have been called upon in an emergency, and the Red Cross can depend upon the full co-operation of the Legion in Ohio.

Mrs. S. A. S. Ziroll of 142 S. Warren avenue returned Saturday from an extended trip throughout the east during the past two weeks.

NEW PASTOR AT FRIENDS CHURCH

Rev. Carson W. Cox, has been called as pastor of the Highland Avenue Friends church to fill the unexpired term of Rev. E. L. Elford, resigned.

Rev. and Mrs. Cox, are returned missionaries from the Orient, having spent six and one-half years in mission work in China under the direction of the Friends' church.

OPEN HOUSE AT LIBRARY

That everyone on the Hilltop may become acquainted with the workings of the Hilltop library and come to realize what a value this institution is to this community, members of the three Parent-Teacher Associations on the Hilltop will hold open house at the library Friday, May 6 from 12 noon until 9 p. m.

Tea will be served from 2 to 4 and from 7 to 9 p. m. Every Hilltop resident is urged to visit the library during the hours from 12 to 9 p. m. on this day. Mrs. C. W. Barrell is chairman of the committee on arrangements.

Mrs. T. S. Fox, 2046 W. Broad St., entertained members of the Hilltop Embroidery club Wednesday afternoon at their regular meeting.

The general Ladies' Aid of Hoge Memorial Presbyterian church will hold their all day meeting Thursday (today) at the church-house on S. Eureka avenue. The different groups will meet at 11 o'clock and a covered dish luncheon will be held at noon. The business meeting will follow at 1:30.

Mr. and Mrs. J. R. Alford, 276 N. Burgess Ave., announce the birth of a baby daughter, Carolyn Jean, on April 28th.

HIGHLAND ACTIVITIES

The art exhibition held recently at Highland merited considerable attention and admiration. The work of the pupils was on display all last week in the art room, for parents, friends and teachers to enjoy, and a most pleasing display it was. Among articles designed and executed by the pupils, of unusual interest were hand-painted scarfs, lamp shades, toilet articles, candle sticks, book-ends and other articles of practical usage. The exhibition was a credit to Mr. Birmingham the art teacher, and a compliment to the interest and skill of Highland pupils.

Great interest is being shown in the baseball games this spring and various pep meetings have been held acquainting the pupils with school yells preparatory to the games. Two games have been played so far, the first with Barrett Junior High, when the score stood 5-4 in favor of Barrett, and the second with Franklin which resulted in a score of 20-8 in Highland's favor.

One of the chief coming events in the school calendar at Highland, is the 9A graduating class play, which is not far off. A play of unusual interest and charm is to be presented this year, and the pupils of the 9A class are already hard at work on this production. The name of the play, and the date are being kept secret until a later date.

Carl Bolander, of the Art Gallery recently was the chief speaker at an assembly of Highland pupils held in the Glenwood church auditorium. At this meeting, prior to the lecture Richard Dorman, 9A, entertained with a beautiful violin solo, and Grace Belle Day, 8B, rendered a pleasing monolog selection. Mr. Bolander's talk, which was elaborately illustrated was well given and enthusiastically received. His first lecture was to Junior High School pupils and his second to the elementary grades.

BONNEY SPEAKS TO BROTHERHOOD

Outlined Sewer System As It Now Exists on the Hilltop.

"The sewer situation on the Hilltop will be relieved and flooded basements will be a thing of the past as soon as the citizens remove all their miscellaneous conductors from the sanitary sewer system."

Words to the above effect were given by O. Bonney, city consulting engineer in the department of sewer construction before Hilltop citizens at a meeting held Tuesday, April 26, at 8 o'clock in the auditorium of the U. B. church at Burgess and Sullivant avenues. The meeting was held under the auspices of the Men's Brotherhood of the church.

Mr. Bonney outlined the sewer system as it now exists and explained that there was not much hope for relief until the citizens take it upon themselves to take their house drainage pipes from the sanitary system. Out of 5000 homes on the Hilltop he explained that nearly 4500 had pipes leading directly from the roof to the sanitary sewer pipe.

At present the sanitary sewers are 8 inches and are adequate to take care of the waste waters of the homes but not the drain waters.

A date will be announced for the removal of all these miscellaneous pipes and all that are not disconnected by that time will be shut off from the sewer by the service department. There will be no trouble if everyone will comply with the city orders.

Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Skipper (Hazel Wagner), 143 N. Burgess Ave., announce the birth of a baby daughter, Isola Archelene, Tuesday, May 3.

John Burroughs P.-T. A.

The last meeting of the year of the John Burroughs P.-T. A. will be held Friday evening, May 6, at 7:30. Election of officers for the coming year will take place at this time.

The Westgate chorus will furnish the music for the evening, and Rev. A. C. Baughman will give an address on "Values at Last." Following is the program:

Piano solo, Helen Marshall.
Piano solo, Mary Sullivan
Dance, Martha Swiekard.
Dance, Catharine Swisher.
Cornet solo, C. A. Hackman.
Dance (Jigg), Carl Hackman.
Reading, Mary Louise Luggar.
Reading, Edna Hackman.
After the program refreshments will be served.

Camp Fire Girls To Plant 60 Elm Trees

A grove of 60 elm trees will be planted by the Camp Fire Girls of Columbus on ground north of the O'Shaughnessy Dam next Saturday afternoon. There will be a pageant and musical numbers. Mayor Thomas will speak.

Mrs. Anna Good, 20 North Eureka avenue, announces the marriage of her daughter, Cleo Mae, to Mr. Walter Davis, jr., son of Mr. Walter Davis, sr., 150 Chicago avenue, Rev. Perry E. Smoke, pastor of the Miller Avenue Evangelical church read the nuptial service in the presence of the immediate families, on Thursday afternoon at 4 o'clock, at his home, 283 Miller avenue. Following a trip to Toledo, Mr. and Mrs. Davis will be at home at 20 North Eureka avenue.

TAIT TO DELIVER TRAVEL TALK

Will Appear at Memorial Hall Under Auspices of Izaak Walton League.

The Columbus Chapter of the Izaak Walton League of America is fortunate in being able to make the following announcement:

On Saturday, May 7, at Memorial hall, 8 p. m., Robert H. Tait will deliver a travel talk on "Unknown Newfoundland," illustrated with exclusive films and slides.

This splendid program was recently given in Carnegie Hall, Pittsburgh, and was well received by a capacity audience.

There is no admission charge, nor will any solicitation of funds be made.

This travel talk is furnished by the Bureau of Commercial Economics, of Washington D. C., and is a part of their contribution to President Coolidge's outdoor recreational policy, the object being to promote national health and welfare.

The scope of the bureau is international, both in source and display of its films, co-operating and allied with 20 governments.

It is worthy of an evening—and is highly recommended for children of 10 years and upward.

W. C. Gummere is secretary of the Columbus chapter of the league.

The marriage of Miss Rita Shaffer, 562 South Ogden avenue, and Mr. Robert H. Babcock of Washington, D. C., which took place April 17, in Newport, Ky., is announced. Mr. and Mrs. Babcock are at home at 562 South Ogden avenue. The bride had been employed at the city prison as record clerk.

Buys Grocery Store

Miss Helen Hoffman, 247 S. Ogden avenue, has purchased the grocery store at 2071 Palmetto street, formerly operated by A. L. Waymer. Miss Hoffman took charge of her new store Wednesday morning.

The Women's Missionary and Aid society of St. John's Lutheran church will hold its next regular meeting Wednesday afternoon. Topic: "Our Missionary Work in Canada." Hostesses: Mrs. O. P. Nuetzel and Miss Mary Metzgar.

Mrs. W. L. Millikin was pleasantly surprised Sunday evening at a dinner given at the Athletic Club. Mr. Millikin and son Arthur planned the dinner in honor of Mrs. Millikins birth anniversary.

BREAKS LEG IN 15-FOOT FALL

Lawrence Armstrong, son of Mr. and Mrs. George C. Armstrong, 91 S. Hague Ave., suffered a broken leg and numerous bruises and scratches when he fell from the top of the foundation work of the new West High school, Powell avenue and Olive street, to the basement floor Wednesday evening, April 27.

Young Armstrong was playing about the construction work, when in some manner he fell sustaining a fracture of the bone between the foot and the knee. He fell about 15 feet.

Mr. James M. Scott, Cheshire, O., and Miss Alice Mable Fielder, of Akron, O., were married Saturday, motored to Columbus on Sunday and were guests at dinner given by Mrs. W. C. Estabrook, 40 S. Oakley Ave., sister of the groom. After spending a few days in Columbus and vicinity the newly married couple left for Middleport, Ohio, where they will make their future home.

King's Heralds and Home Guards will meet Monday at the church at 4 o'clock. Pot luck lunch and mite box opening. Pins will be given boy and girl having the most money in mite box. Bring covered dish and sandwiches.

Great Array of Talent for Hilltop Chautauqua

Musical Novelties, Lectures, Two Fine Plays and Junior Town Makes Up a Well Balanced Program—Dates Are July 16 to 22

Opening with the Filipino Collegians and Arthur Walwyn Evans, brilliant Welsh orator, this season's Hilltop chautauqua, July 16-22, will offer a series of headline events with a strong appeal to the public at large.

Two distinct musical novelties are scheduled, in addition to the well-staged Filipino programs. Gilbert's Gypsy Revelers, also known as the Romany Glees, are announced for the third night. This Kansas City singing group is beautifully costumed and their program is enhanced by beautiful scenic and lighting effects. The other big musical event is the historic production of the Jackson Jungle Jubilees. This traces the development of the colored race from primitive days, down through the period of slavery and into the present. Two special stage settings will be used and the company of ten jubilees will present an entertainment melange entirely different from anything previously offered in the theater or on the chautauqua platform. Featured in the company is Van Osborn, a nine-year-old piccaninny, who has appeared in many of the leading theaters of Chicago, Kansas City, St. Louis and other western cities.

From a lecture standpoint the chautauqua presents, in addition to Arthur Walwyn Evans on the opening night, the always welcome and nationally known humorous philosopher, Ralph Parlette, who is to return May 25 from a world tour. B. P. Hivale, a native of India, a graduate of Bombay university and post-graduate of Harvard, will present a junior specialty, "What a Child Can See in India," and an afternoon discussion of "The Conflict of Civilizations." Mrs. Louise McIntyre, whose time in recent years has been divided between Battle Creek, Mich., Winona Lake, Ind., and Los Angeles, Calif., is to present two practical health talks. Major John J. Hill, after 18 years with various Cecil Rhoden enterprises in Africa, is to tell of his thrilling adventures.

As usual, two fine plays are on the Redpath program—"The Patsy," which recently enjoyed long runs in both New York and Chicago, and "A Message From Mars," a clever dream play of a more serious nature. Both of these productions are of New York Origin and will have New York casts.

The Conservatory Artists are announced for two quality programs at chautauqua, with special emphasis on the instrumental. McDonald Birch and Company, magicians, have a big afternoon in store for the youngsters. The Junior Town idea will be developed in such a way as to make a great hit with the junior generation.

BOOSTER TEAM IS ORGANIZED

Last week a Booster Team was organized at the class meeting of the 9A Class of Highland Junior High school.

The purpose of the organization is to encourage more pupils to attend the baseball games and to back the team. Mary Wiseman was elected girl cheer leader and Dick Cramer boy cheer leader.

Milton Banning, president of the class, presided.

A discussion was held in regard to buying class pins or rings. It was decided that they should have pins and a committee was appointed to gather details as to the price. Another meeting will be held next week.

Miss Ann Elizabeth Hill, 435 S. Park Ave., entertained at bridge tea in the Maramor, Saturday for the pleasure of Mrs. Donald Shifflette, (Mary Marker), her guests included Mrs. Henry Auld, Mrs. John Nichol, Mrs. Paul Bowen, Mrs. Vernon Buckingham, Miss Alice Chapline, Miss Margaret Burnside, Miss Clara Stewart, Miss Virginia Krepps, Miss Jane Miller, Miss Violet Sharp.

The regular meeting of the Music Box club will be held May 6 at the home of Lucille Truman, 2444 West Broad St., at 7:30 o'clock. The hostesses for the evening are Mary Campbell and Lucille Truman.

The Men's class of St. Paul's United Evangelical Sunday school met at the Parsonage Thursday, April 28, and organized the Men's Bible class, choosing the following officers: S. B. Norris, president; Mr. Hammond, vice president; T. Armstrong, secretary-treasurer; H. Maupin, chairman of lookout committee; teacher, Rev. E. J. Broadway.

The Hilltop Child Conservation circle will have a children's party at the home of Mrs. R. H. Campbell, 237 N. Warren Ave., on Thursday, May 12, at 3 p. m. Special committee will have the arrangements in charge.

Last Wednesday night the Hilltop School of Music presented pupils for the P. O. of A. at I. O. O. F. hall on South High street. Numbers included readings, violin and piano solos, banjo, cornet and songs.

DR. ROBERTSON ADDRESSES "Y"

Chinese Worker Tells Many Interesting Features of Chinese Customs.

Dr. C. H. Robertson, former professor at Purdue University and for the past 20 years an education worker in China addressed the Freshman "Y" council at Ohio State university Wednesday night and brought out many interesting features of the Chinese customs and supplied much food for thought.

Dr. Robertson states that eminent thinkers and philosophers of the day consider China as having the greatest civilization on earth. The basis of such a statement is in the fact that near all the nations of the west would have risen up but only to fall again. The great empires and government of Egypt, Rome, Greece, Babylon and various others existed at the time when China too was enjoying the culture of their well established civilization. All these other nations declined and fell but China has endured until today the greatest resources of natural wealth and brain material rest in that same country.

Dr. Robertson stated that China is now in the midst of a renaissance and is coming to be the leading nation of the world.

NEW LOCATION FOR SCHOOL OF MUSIC

The Hilltop School of Music will occupy new quarters at the northwest corner of West Broad street and Eldon avenue after June 1st. Pupils may enroll now for summer work as the school will be kept open all year.

Mr. Frank Musser of Cincinnati visited his brother, F. C. Musser at his home, 346 Clarendon avenue last week.

How It Started

By JEAN NEWTON

"SOFTLY NOW THE LIGHT OF DAY"

This hymn, which for over three-quarters of a century has been sung all over the English-speaking world and is known affectionately as the "Even-Song," may be said to be a product of contracts.

The author, George Washington Deane, said of his ancestors that "My forbears were men of war from their youth up and I am strictly in line with them." Being a bishop, however, his fighting was along theological lines. Being also a high churchman during the early Eighteenth century, there was always plenty of fighting at hand!

It was during the height of a battle royal with the broader faction of the church that the bishop returned late one day to his study. Opening the Bible, as he later told of it, in the light of the setting sun, his eyes chanced upon the words: "Let my prayer be set before thee as incense and the lifting up of my hands as the evening sacrifice."

The contrast between the erstwhile conflict and the peaceful evening hour, between the calm words in the good book and the turmoil in his own mind impressed him so deeply that he was inspired at that moment to the writing of the immortal hymn:

"Softly now the light of day
Fades upon my sight away."

Before long these words were known wherever English is spoken. And though it was in the '50s that Bishop Deane passed to his rest, they are still sung every Wednesday evening during chapel services at St. Mary's Hall, the well-known school for girls which was founded by their author.
